CARGOES 1987

VISIT one of the student lounges at Kent Place and you will be amazed at the diversity in style. From preps to punks, brains to jocks, each class has it all. This individual spirit seems to thrive at KP. It is this spirit that propels Jessica Pukash to scream energetically about Student Affairs meetings during morning assembly. Yet, it is this same uniqueness which inspires Emily Barton's subdued and poetic Windward announcements. Even our teachers express themselves in their own way. Mrs. Dillon chooses a conservative approach, whereas Dr. Cole is known for her zaniness.

September and the beginning of the school year offers different paths for KPS student to choose. Will you try out for the play? Perhaps a varsity team? Maybe you would prefer something less physical, such as being a member of the Ballast or Cargoes staff? Or, as the typical KPS student tends to, you will do it all and still find time for Community Service.

Kent Place is the melting pot of these separate personalities. Like doesn't befriend like. Instead, we witness friendships between total opposites. Furthermore, the star forward of the hockey team could very well be an ace Physics student.

No matter what interest we eventually pursue, we all gather together. Class competitions, special assemblies, sports events, and plays are all examples of these distinct talents.

Kent Place is distinguished by this blend of multi-talented characters.

A UNIQUE BLEND

"Happy Morning Everybody!" Sherwood Quantz, left, opens the school day with a smile. "Another schedule change? Fifth meets fourth, seventh meets ninth, and where does eighth go?" wonder Shannon O'Boyle and Jenny Stull below.

The Montgomerys

OUR LOVE AND APPRECIATION

T

HE most meaningful remembrance is quite often the simplest. Because this year Kent Place will lose two of our most valued members, we want to dedicate this yearbook to them. In their seven years here the Montgomerys have become the guiding spirit of school life. Their obvious love for each other and every girl, as well as their care for the school, has earned them a lasting respect. Whether hosting a luncheon at their home, or simply saying "hello" in the halls, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery have led the school with a warm personal touch. Together they have made Kent Place what it is- a family.

They are a unique couple who have touched us all and closed the distance between those who teach or administer and those who learn.

We wish them well and give to them this simple but sincere gift of our love and appreciation.

IT'S BETTER TOGETHER

Chumley fascinates his fans with friend Gretchen Farrar.

With all the different activities, classes and traditions, each girl can find her own area of excellence here. We have actresses, athletes, painters, photographers and scientists. We have leaders, readers and writers, organized and unorganized. But, when it comes to Alma Mater Day, morning assembly or class get-togethers, no school can rival KP's group spirit. We are all originals with different opinions and interests, and yet we are all part of the Kent Place family. The fact that we can make each unique person part of the whole is what makes our school so special.

Sharing a hug, Marcy Meenan and Santa Claus, alias Mr. Richmond, exchange Christmas wishes.

Volunteering

Reaching Out

The challenge of serving the community faced us all at Kent Place. For the first time, a volunteering campaign with the slogan, "She who gives, gets" was really publicized and promoted.

At Christmas we were all asked to bring in gifts wrapped in shoeboxes to put under the lobby tree and, later, to give to the homeless in our area. Also during the Christmas season, some socialized and played basketball with the mentally and physically handicapped at Delbarton. Marcy Meenan organized and invited all to join in a successful blood drive in January. At the end of February we donated our stuffed animals to an orphanage in Bolivia.

Throughout the year volunteering projects included babysitting at Neighborhood House and tutoring with the Elizabethport Tutoring program. Other volunteering opportunities such as helping at a KP open house or working in the library at school were also made available.

As always, volunteering was spurred on by Mrs. Montgomery and her assisting coordinator, Liz Harrison. Thanks to their success, we expect that next year there will be more willing volunteers than there will be places to fill.

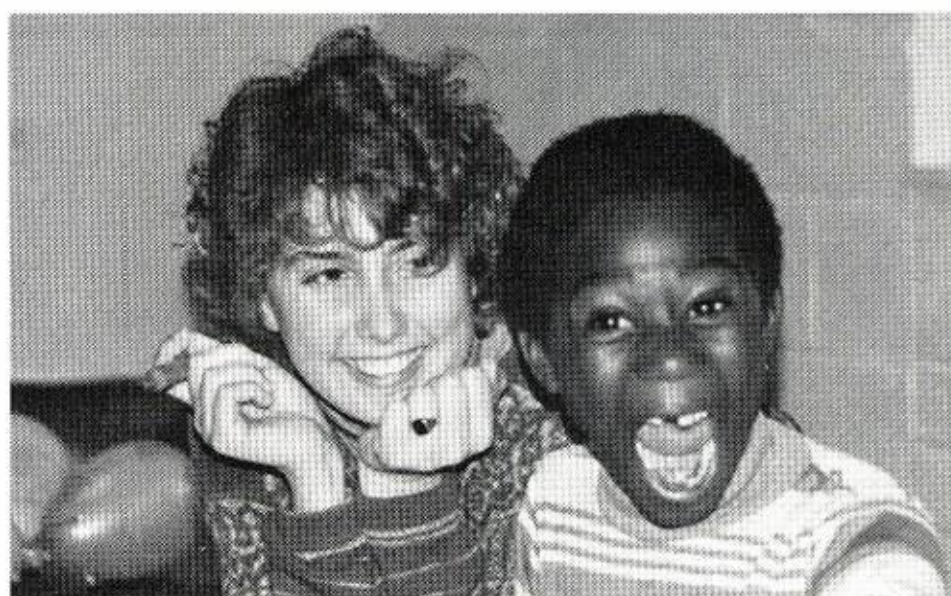

A DAY AT THE ZOO: Sophomore Tanda Tucker, Sarah Humphries and Kim Anderson make friends with stuffed animals headed to orphans in South America.

HALLELUJAH!

"Our goal is to learn enthusiastically and intelligently the music for the Star, which we dedicate with much love and admiration to the Montgomerys", read the Chorale blackboard. Each Wednesday we trooped into the auditorium to participate in one of Kent Place's most treasured traditions.

At the church, the singers, in black bows, carried "candles". Ensemble played the prelude before the angelic procession of the upper school. Highlights included part of Handel's "Messiah" and the premiere of "Starred Trilogy" composed and conducted by Chorale president Virginia Boyer. With Chorale's gift of balloons and a silver star, we dedicated this special Star to the Montgomerys.

News flash: 1986-1987

No one could ever accuse a KP girls of not being informed of the current events of her world. Assemblies on anorexia and bulimia or life in Russia broaden our horizons or sometimes open our eyes. Class discussions often revolve around front page news like the Iran-contra affair or the latest possible cure for AIDS. Always well rounded, we are equally aware of the Wall Street insider trading scandal as we are of the current music and video trends. We travel to the Van Gogh exhibit at the Met or the R.E.M. concert at the Felt Forum. We watch and later discuss the topics on the Oprah Winfrey and Donahue shows in the lounges. We want our boyfriends to cut their hair like Tom Cruise in Top Gun and we keep up with current events, because we are aware that we are as much a part of it as it is of us.

As AIDS spreads, heterosexuals must face the threat of deadly sex

The disease is moving beyond the homosexual world, forcing many American men and women to surrender the sexual freedoms of the past two decades in favor of a more cautious life-style. ▶ As the number of victims climbs, comparisons between AIDS and the great epidemics in history become plausible. ▶ Deaths in Africa reach 50,000, and millions more are at risk.

LINKS WITH

In June as the school community buzzes with excitement at the end of another year, some Kent Placers still have one thing to do; Bay Head. The Bay Head conference is just one of the many aspects of Kent Place that make this school so special. It is a gathering of students, faculty and graduated seniors to discuss the school year, past and future. Besides being a great deal of work, it is a lot of fun too. There is always time for sunbathing, swimming, eating and talking.

This year's conference was blessed with beautiful shore weather. Music played constantly and there was always a game of Trivial Pursuit going on. On the more serious side, the group seminars out in the sunshine discussed such topics as volunteering and school spirit, and they left Bay Head with a motto for this year: "She who gives gets." Besides accomplishing a great deal for the school, Bay Head is also a chance to have fun and enjoy the time with friends.

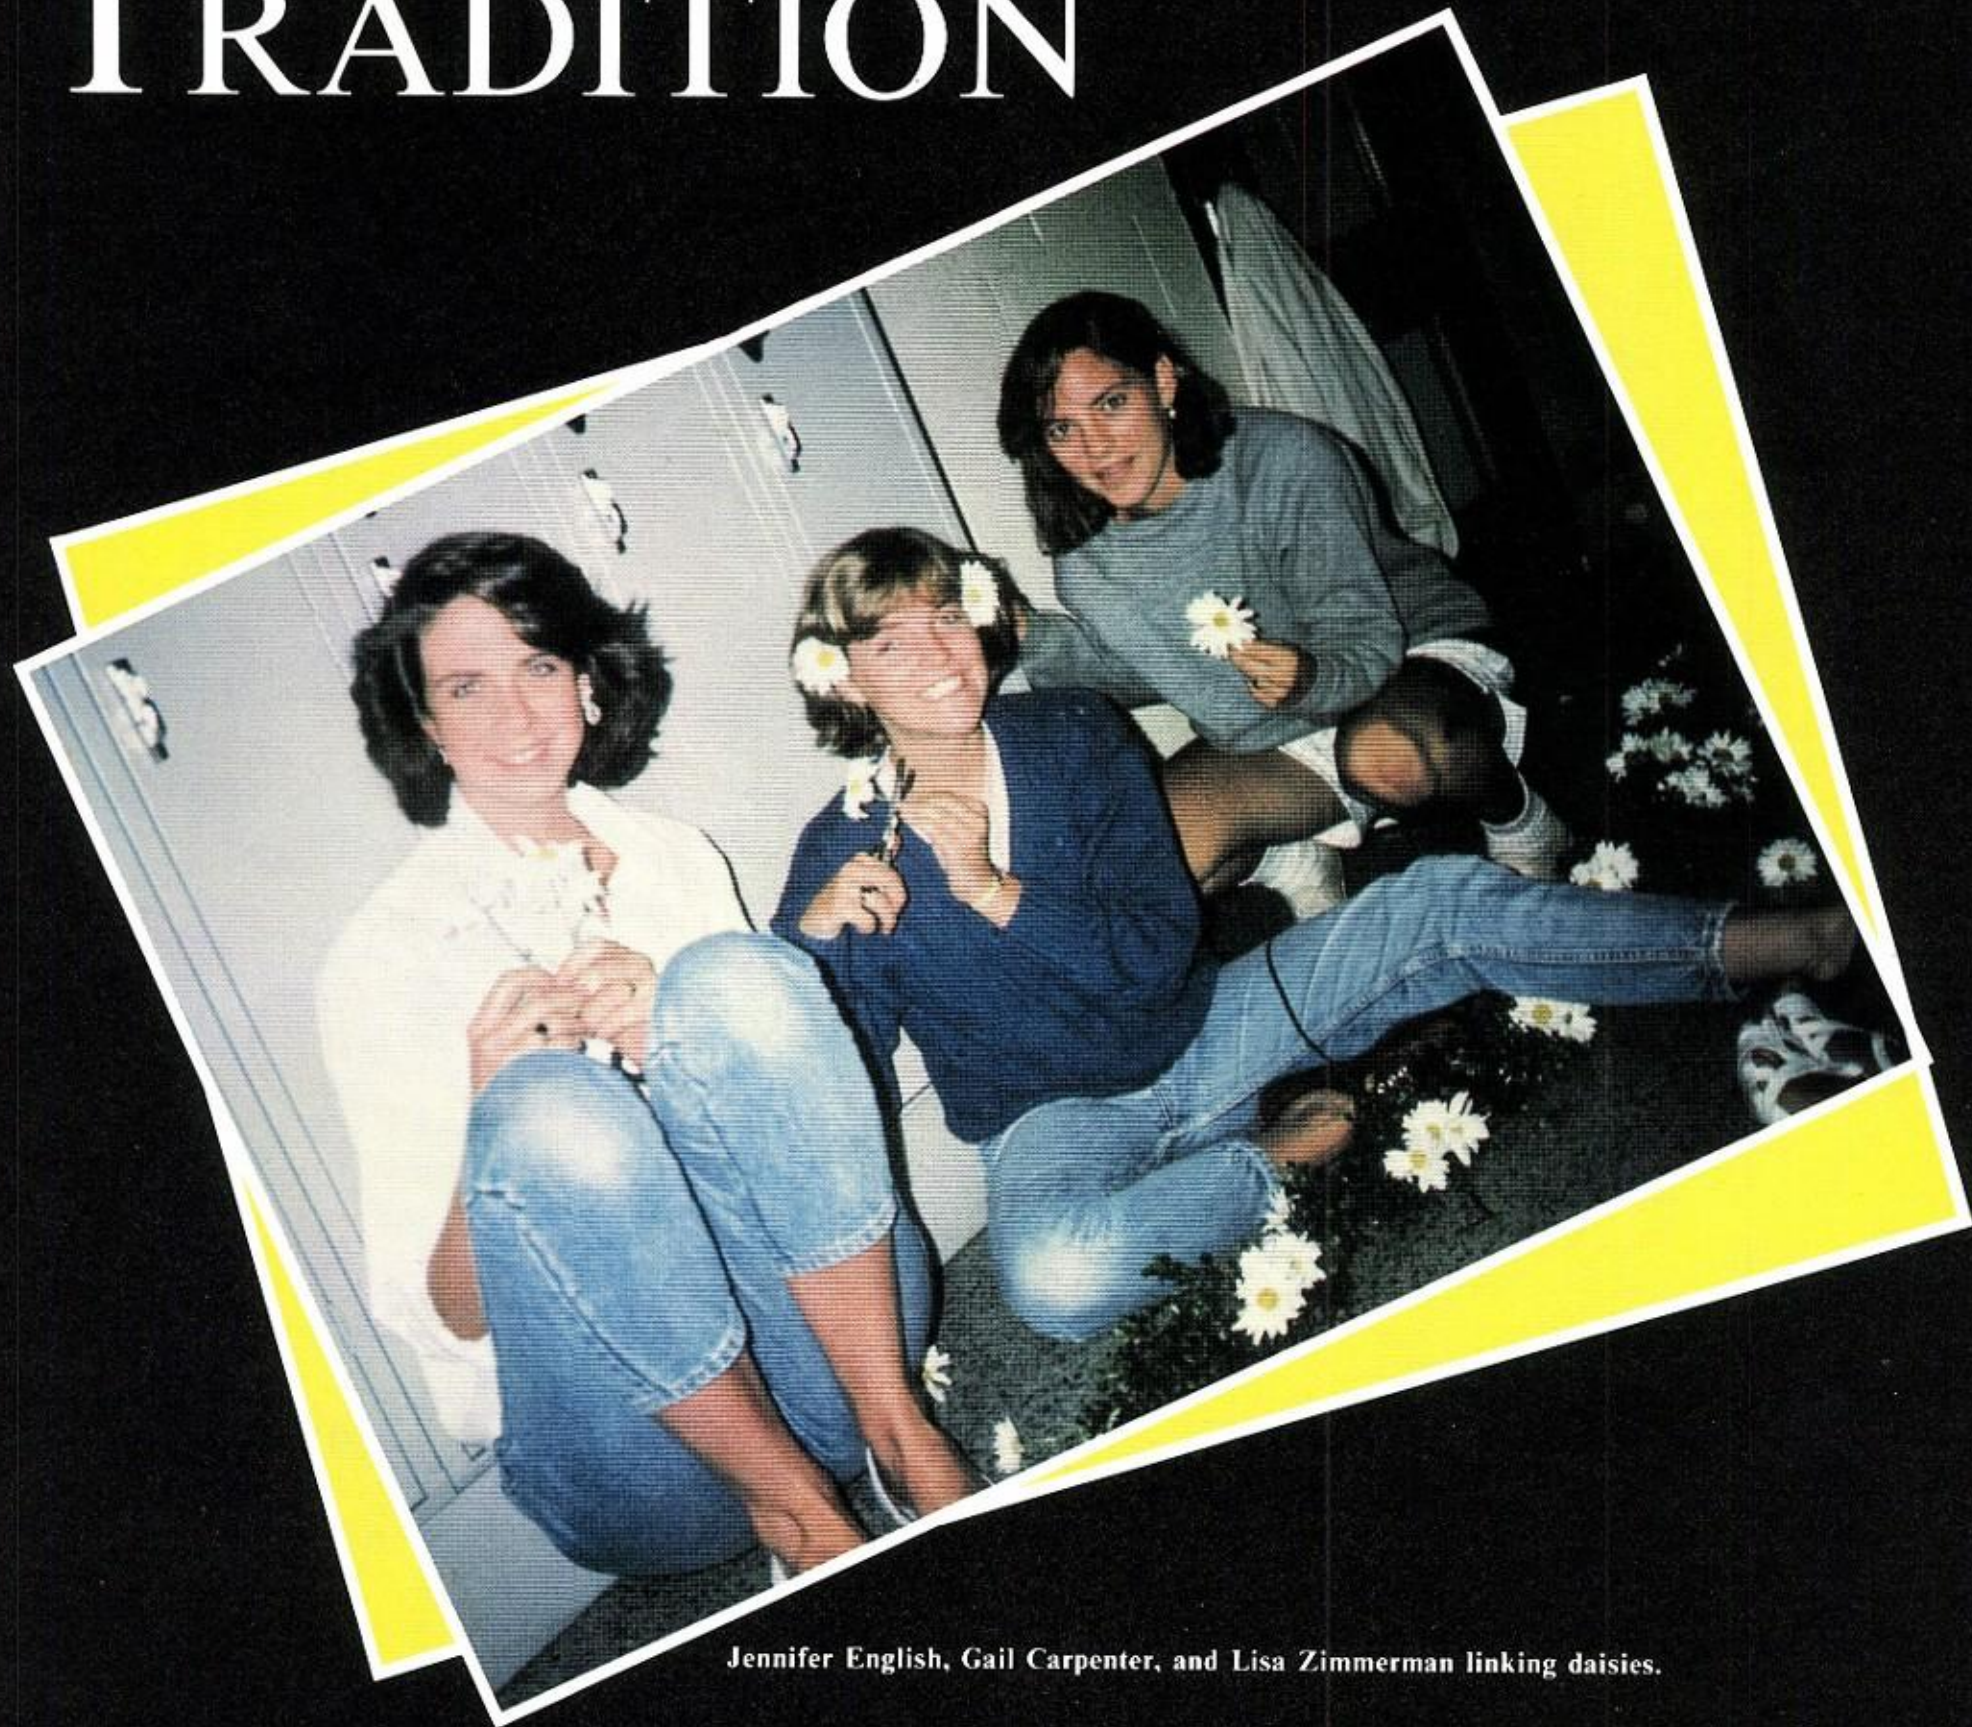

Katie Hogan, Jessica Pukash and Sarah Humphries have their hands on the real reason to come to Bay Head.

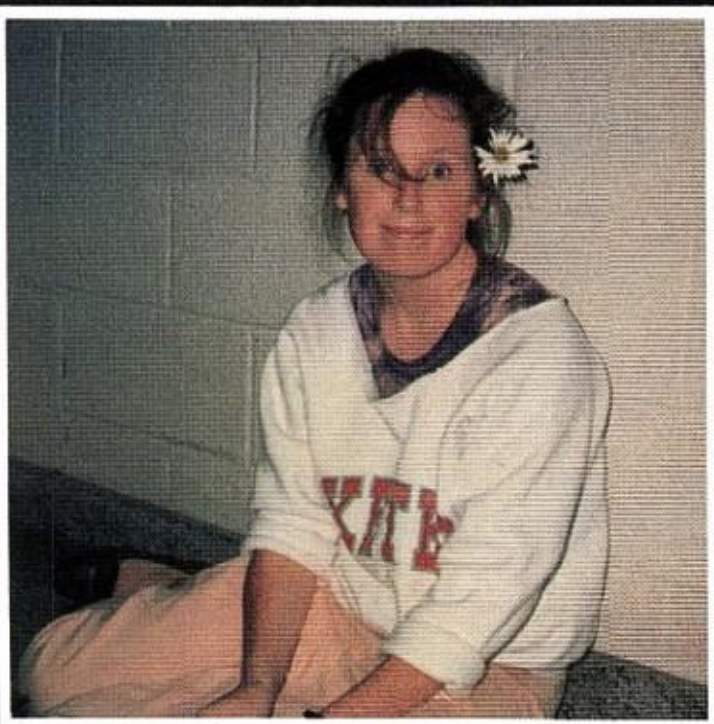

And they call this a "conference"?

THE BLIND LEADING THE BLIND. Christy Remy encourages her Freshmen group at Brady Life Camp.

AHH . . . the freshmen jamboree was here again. This year was no different, although of course a new band of freshmen were on the loose. The usual field trip activities, singing, shouting, nonstop talking added to the atmosphere of anticipation. The group arrived, poured off the bus, and jumped into the prepared activities, including trust tests, ball games, evening skits, and, naturally, flashlight tag. Wading in the riverlet nearby, devouring watermelon (and everything else remotely edible) and playing frisbee also kept us busy. Everyone got to know each other well, had smiles on their faces, and got very little sleep. They talked, played murder, danced, and sang.

At the end of two days, the bus FINAL- LY arrived, and chaperones Miss Ziebarth, Miss Greulich, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Dillon, and Mrs. O'Mara, were all too happy to herd the class back on the bus.

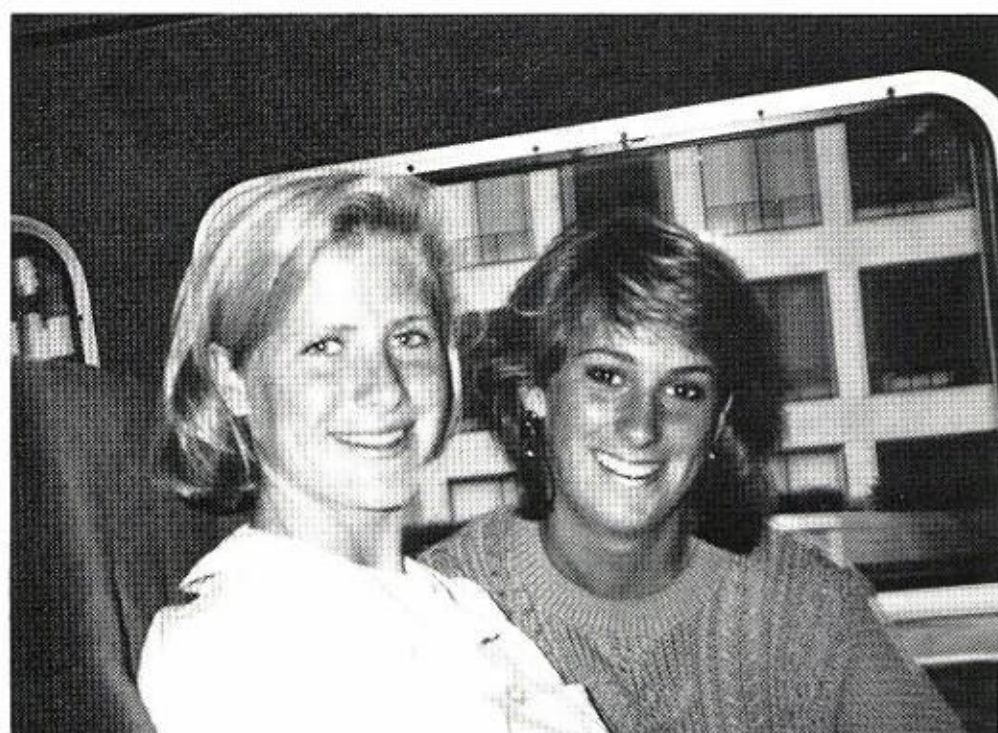

NURSE OFF DUTY. Mrs. Merkel prefers to sleep on an airmattress than on the floor.

BOUND

Loose

"WE'RE FINALLY HERE!" Margot Fell and Carter Flegal set out to scout the Georgetown guys.

The junior class swarmed into Washington D.C. We had been looking forward to the trip for weeks, and now we were ready to "paint the town red." We started off with a trip to the Treasury. Next, we arrived at a classy Howard Johnson's motel, which would be our campsite for the weekend. After an evening tour of the city, the balcony dancers got out their music, entertainment for all below.

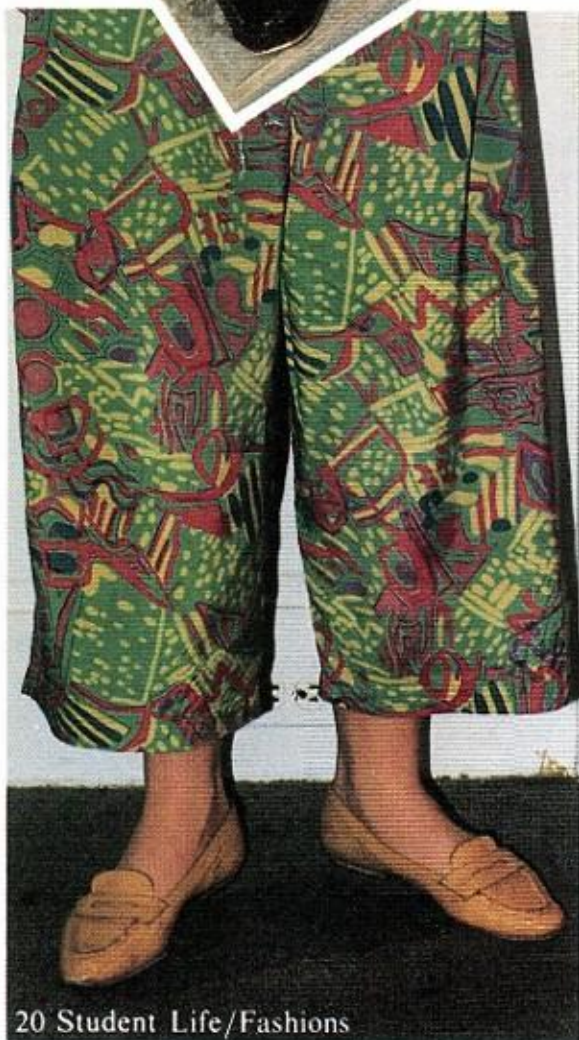

The following day was packed with sightseeing and picture taking. Those of us who didn't get lost in the Arlington cemetery or a Georgetown boutique finally headed back to get ready for a hilarious performance of "Life After Highschool." Our final night was a celebration with pizza. For chaperones and juniors alike it was a "capital" experience.

STYLISH

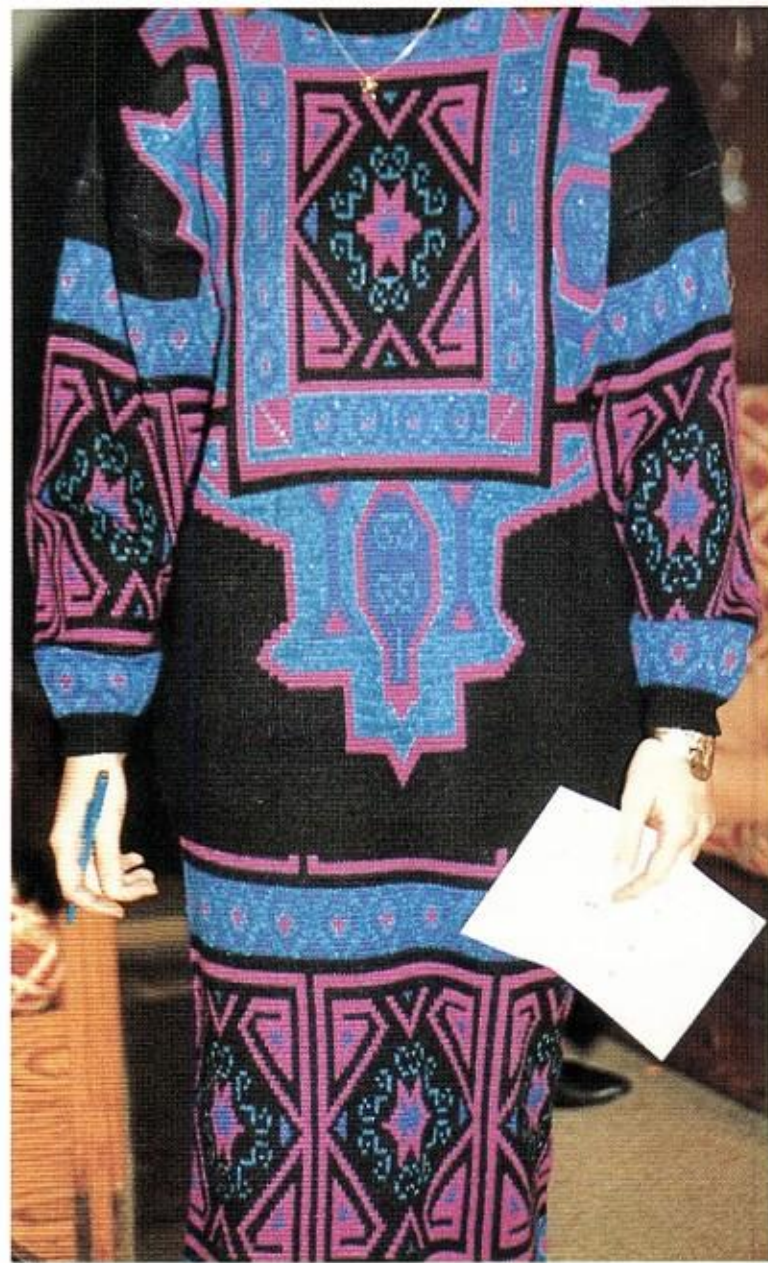

20 Student Life/Fashions

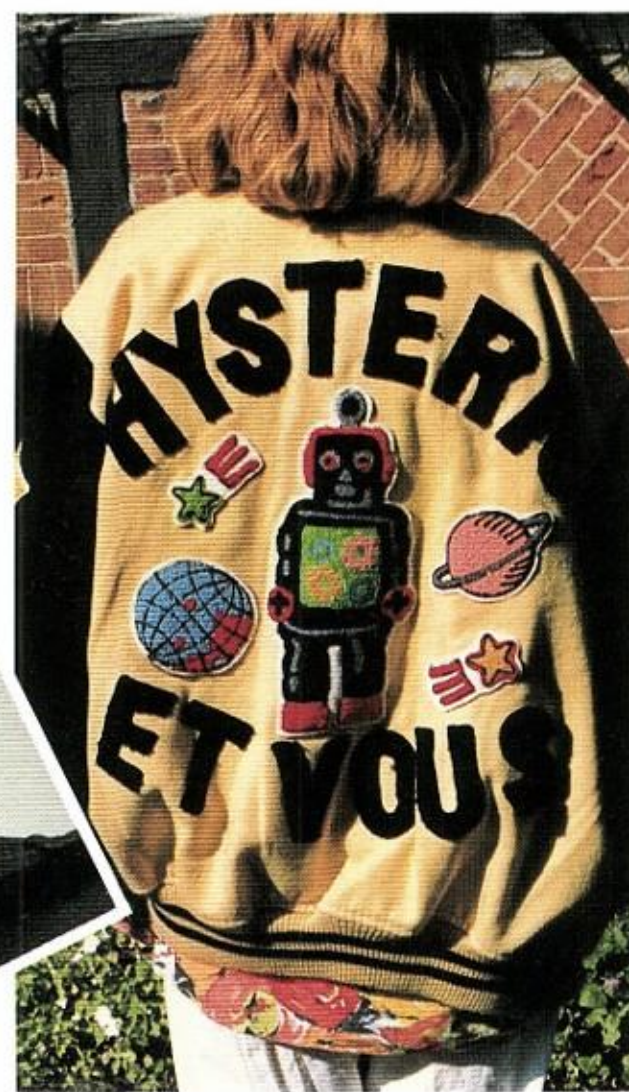

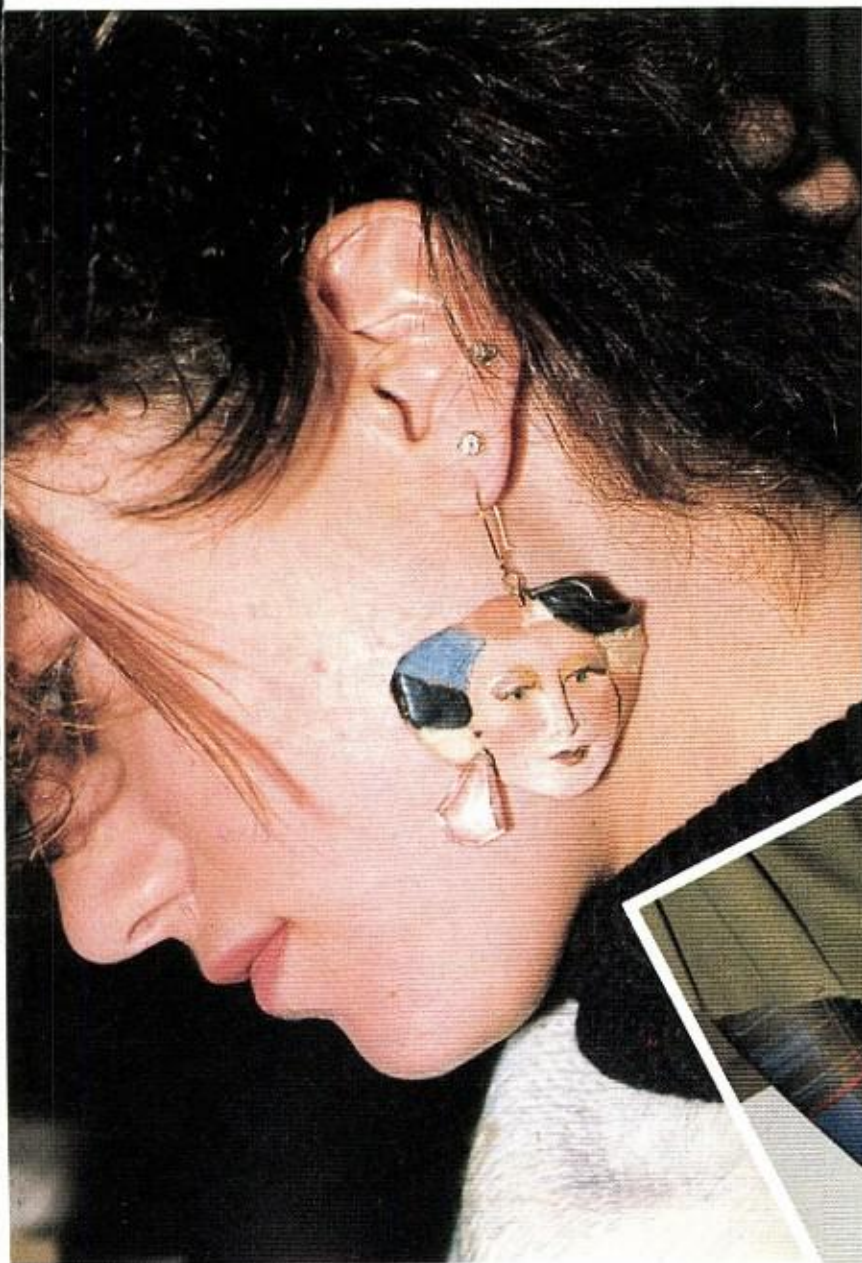

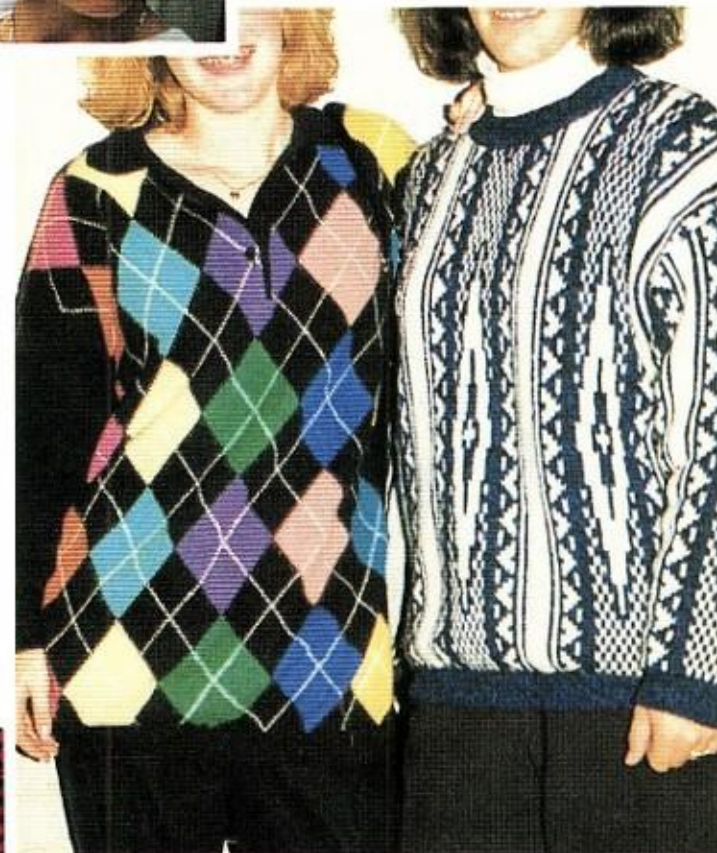

For an idea ever to be fashionable is ominous, since it must afterwards be always old-fashioned.

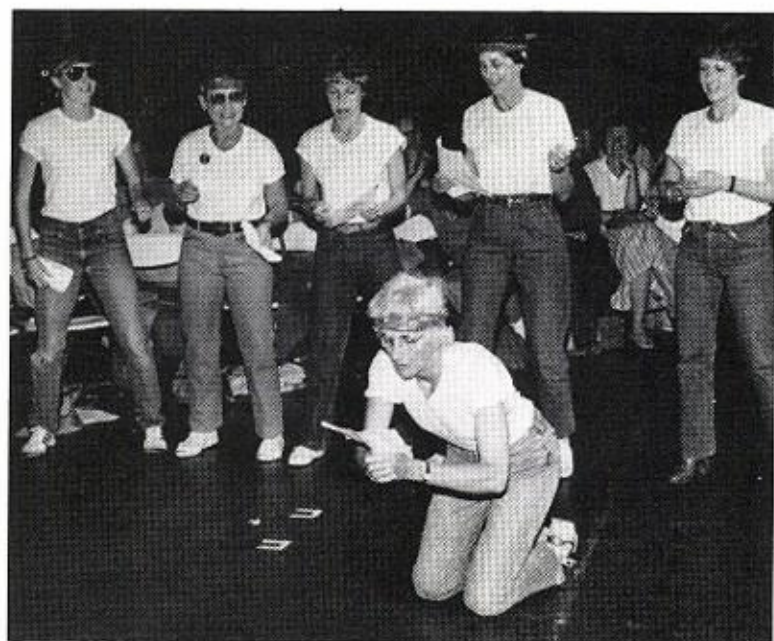

- WINDS OF DOCTRINE

Although no one looks forward to fall, everyone looks forward to fall fashions. This year disappointed no one. The list of dress code violations became longer, so jeans jackets, untucked shirts and bizarre hairstyles were outlawed and became obsolete. We compromised and polished up our acts. Ranging from glamorous gold or silver large hoop earrings to bohemian Indian print shirts, everyone had her individual style-though some managed to combine a few. Some strove for the casual and relaxed look seen in oversized clothing. Elegance was achieved in velvet or satin bows worn in the hair. Black knee-high leather boots made an overwhelming debut. The traditional Short Hills Mall stores, such as Benetton and Ann Taylor, presented, as always, a large appearance. Still, one's costume basically expressed one's character. If this pattern continues, Kent Place girls will never go out of style.

SELF - EXPRESSION

ALWAYS THE EPITOME OF COOLNESS, the Science and Math departments dance their way into our hearts.

TRUE REBELS AT HEART, Mrs. Dillon and the History department break the dress code as they serenade the Seniors.

STEPPING UP

Catching Caliban

Of the many Kent Place traditions, Step-Sing is one of the most treasured. The former Seniors step down to make room for the Juniors, and from then on the new Seniors rule the school. Serving as a catharsis for emotions, the evening is dedicated to the old and new seniors who recall the past year with smiles and tears. The underclassmen all step up, too. The new seniors this year filed in singing their class song, "Forever Young", as their mascot swung in on a vine. The Tarzan and Jane antics did not end here either; the audience caught dropped bananas while Caliban, the realistic, stuffed gorilla, made his entrance. This year's euphoric atmosphere definitely foreshadowed the new breed of seniors and their effect on the school year ahead.

OUR FAVORITE DUO, the Montgomerys tunefully usher in the new Seniors.

Walk into Kent Place October 31 and you're apt to think you are in the wrong place. On Halloween, the entire school celebrates as bizarre costumes, on teachers and students alike, reign supreme. The Student Affairs party the night before sets the scary mood with a screening of "The Omen", pumpkin carving, and barbecuing. The next day Seniors showed off their costumes which ranged from a team of Crest Fighters chasing the Cavity Creep to roller-skating waitresses to three characters from The American Dream: Willy Loman of Death of a Salesman, Huck Finn and a Great Gatsby flapper. During lunch, they paraded their costumes in the front oval while lower-classmen spectators ate orange and black cupcakes. Faculty also showed their creativity, with Mr. Page as a computer geek and Miss Del Tufo and Miss Hattersley in leaf-covered garbage bags. Kent Place proves once again that, once a year, it can become a Little School of Horrors.

TRIVIA

- #1. What was the original property of Kent Place?
- #2. How has the 4th floor been used in the past?
- #3. What was the cost of attending K.P. for one year as a boarder in 1895?
- #4. Which faculty member has been at Kent Place the longest?
- #5. How many magazines does the library subscribe to?

Answers

- #1. Kent Place was the former summer home of James Kent, chancellor of the State of New York and Professor of Law at Columbia University.
- #2. In the past, the 4th floor has been used for art, music, drama, typing, and the quiet room.
- #3. In 1895 the cost of attending K.P. for one year as a boarder was $600!!
- #4. Mr. Headley has been here since 1965!!
- #5. Our library subscribes to 65 magazine—that's a lot of pin-ups!!

Did You Know . . .

In 1894 there were approximately 60 students who attended Kent Place, 3 of whom were boarders.

During the first years of operation, the entire school was contained within the Kent home and all grades were taught in the drawing room.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST

There was a strange breed of Senior roaming the halls this year. We looked at Kent Place with the sage and jaded eyes of students who have been at a school longer than many of its faculty. We were the "lifers"—nine students who survived the rigors of KP life for at least eight years.

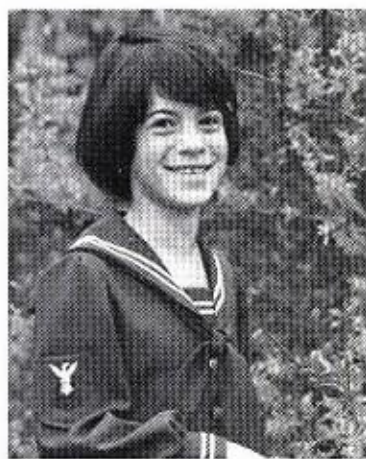

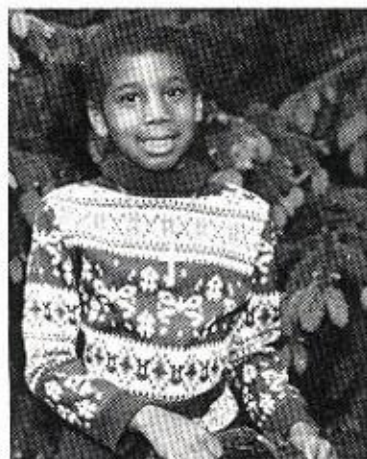

We have seen many changes over the years. Some of us remember the first Sugar Plum in '74, as well as Primary School uniforms. We remember the creation of the dreaded "reprimand" in the sixth grade. The nine of us have seen faculty members come and go. How many of you remember Mr. Roberts, the music teacher? Mrs. Bowman, the first grade teacher? Mrs. Reiber, Mrs. Heyne, Mr. Caley, or Headmaster Halsey? We all remember three of them, and three of us remember them all. We've also welcomed new teachers: Mr. Pridham in first grade, Miss Moser in sixth, Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Culver in seventh.

Many people ask us if having attended Kent Place for so long has been a blessing or a curse. I think it's been both. We all certainly know the school well, and we appreciate the "new" improvements: the upper hockey field, the Field House, and the theatre. When we entered the Upper School, most of the teachers already knew us by name- or reputation. This phenomenon was both comforting and foreboding: "You mean she knows I stuck my tongue out at Miss Gordon (Mrs. Santiuste) in second grade?!" On the down side, let me just say that after attending thirteen Sugar Plums, the novelty has begun to wear.

What all this means is that, for better or worse, the nine of us have been here a long time. Whether you envy or pity us, you have to respect anyone who could survive a minimum of eight years of KP pressure without cracking up.

"Making Spirits Bright"

Every October, there is a hint of Christmas joy and celebration at KP: The Sugar Plum Shop. Parents, trustees, students, faculty and friends join together in this magical tradition to raise funds for school.

The Patrons' Party of Saturday night opened three days of festivities. KP friends and family browsed through booths of fashion, fun and fantasies while the Ensemble played soothing background music. Vicky Dynes, Suzanne Lopez, and Hannah Sweets danced part of the Nutcracker Suite. Modeling furs, manning the KP booth and FSA Lollipop Shop, and serving treats from the Sugar Plum Cafe, other students also participated in the celebrations.

Chaired by Mrs. Peron, Sugar Plum once again combined the diverse talents and warm personalities that create the sparkle of Kent Place.

SOME SERIOUS WORK

A^t

Kent Place, academics adopt new meanings

Hoping to have a free night, Julie Fleischman studies intently in the library.

"It's tough. There is a ton of work," a Kent Place student is likely to respond when asked about school. Surviving high school and its challenging academics is top priority for Kent Place students. Luckily, Kent Place combines innovations and excitement in easing this survival test.

Academics. The word has connotations of books, teachers, homework, etc. At KP, however, academics adopt new meanings. Your quiet history class may suddenly erupt into a heated debate. In English, you might be asked to act out a scene from Shakespeare. You can even miss an entire school day by going to New York on a chemistry field trip.

Kent Place learning experiences are hardly the average core academics. They are bigger and beyond the norm. Furthermore, these new approaches inspire the student. Undeniably, the Kent Place student is even more rewarded when she aces her first year of college.

All of this? Graduates of Evelyn Wood Speedreading Jamie Johnson and Kirsten Westlund will have no problem with their homework.

The Young And Restless

PRIMARY AND MIDDLE SCHOOL

The goal of the primary school is the education of the total child, including the fundamentals of academics and the value of planned study.

While continuing to develop academic skills and independent study habits, the Middle School years supply a more structured environment to prepare students for the demands of the college preparatory years.

Speak And Spell

One never thinks of Latin as having been spoken in Rome; one usually envisions a make-believe "Latinland" where it originated. This statement illustrates the awakening one experiences as a language student.

Not all discussions in class are entirely based on phonics or word origins. At KP, each student realizes the diverse topics which evolve concerning languages.

Language classes become sessions in International Trivia. Subjects such as national cuisine, currency, and art arise in class and broaden a student's understanding of world culture.

CAUGHT OFF GUARD: Vicky Kove realizes she has left her Spanish essay at home. I CAN EXPLAIN! Jane Armstrong tells why she forgot her toga. FRENCH II: la cacophonie.

L LANGUAGES

CLASSICS

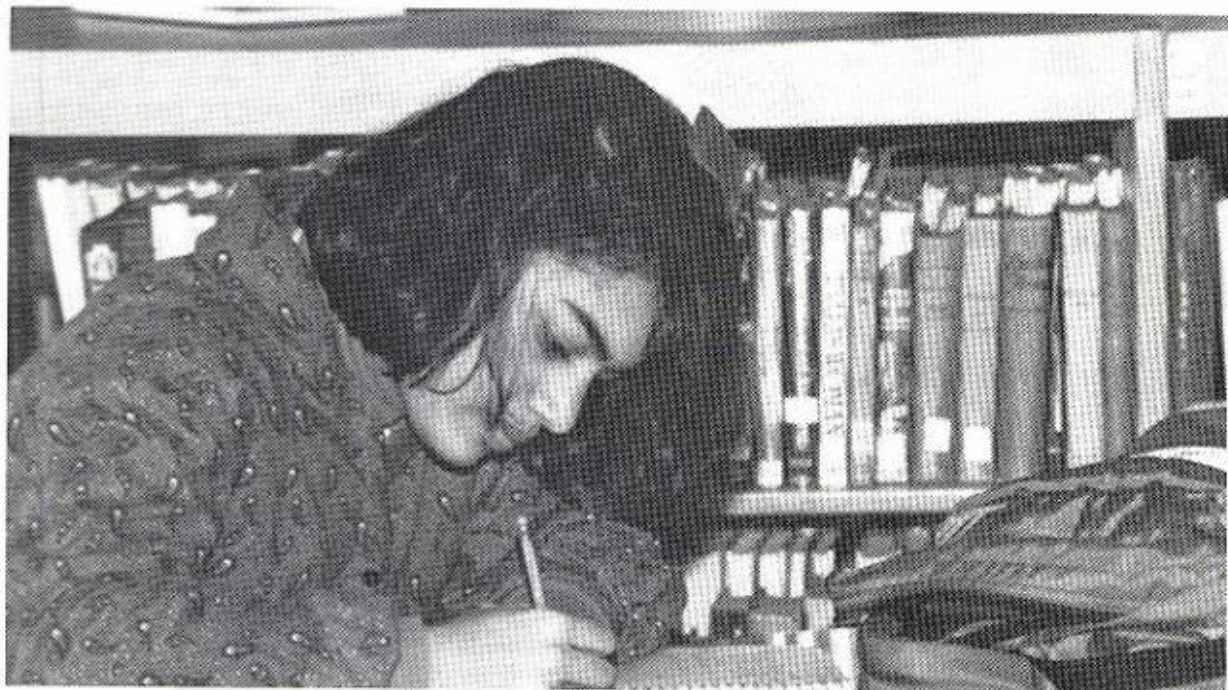

Though many may not realize it, the three languages, French, Spanish, and Latin have similarities.

Whether the course involves reading Candide, Vergil, or singing "Tuki, Tuki, Tuki" in Spanish, these and more conventional drills teach students different yet equally important aspects of the language. From making Latin flash cards and watching films spoken in French (without reading the English sub-titles) to reading Garfield comics in Spanish, a language student learns more than just the mechanics; she learns the life of the language.

Thus, students find their language classes more than merely attending a 40-minute period; they find it a 40-minute journey to experience a realm of discoveries.

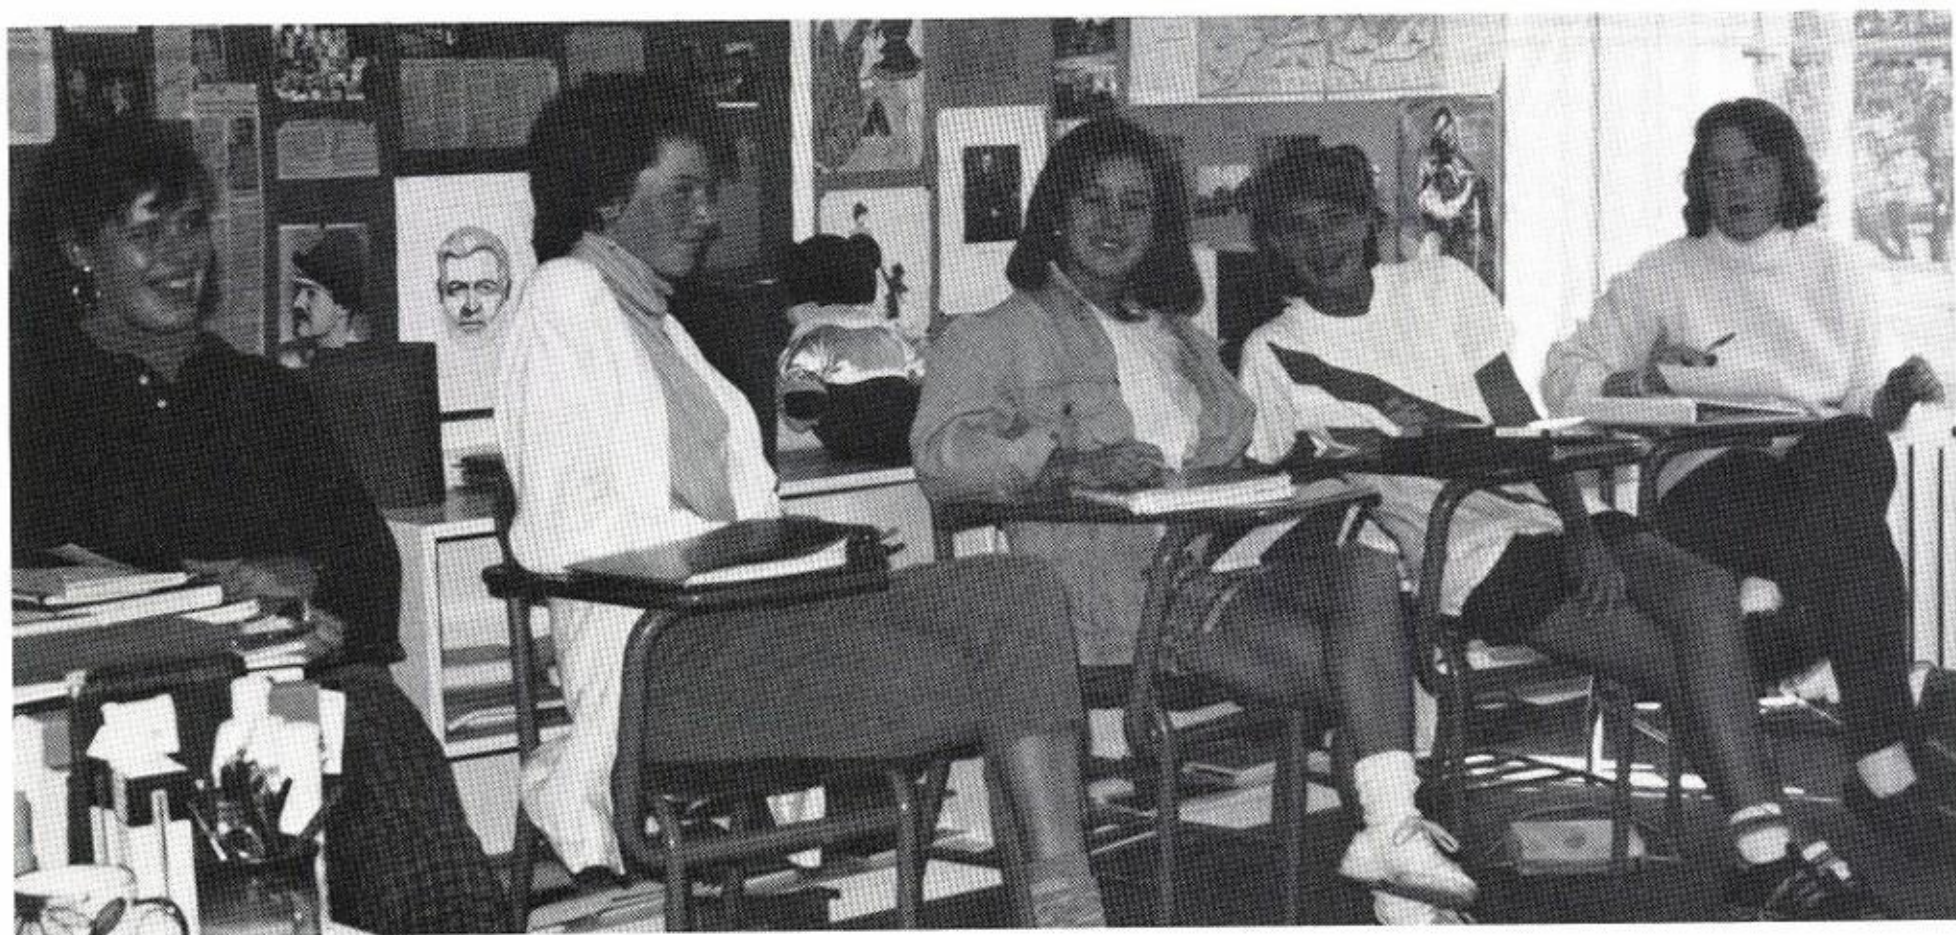

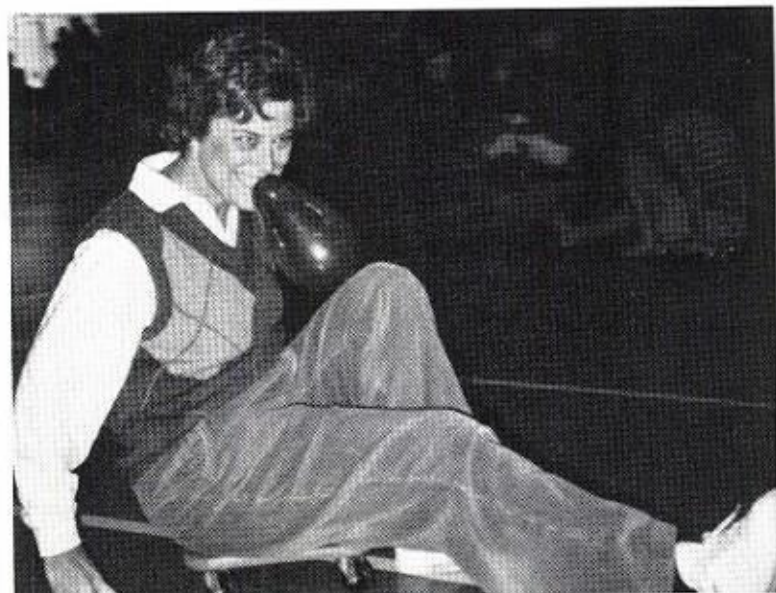

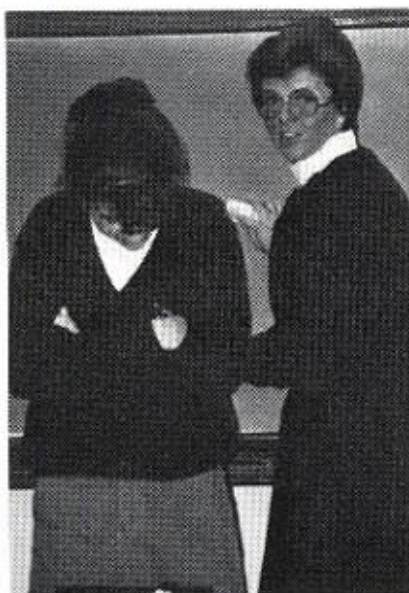

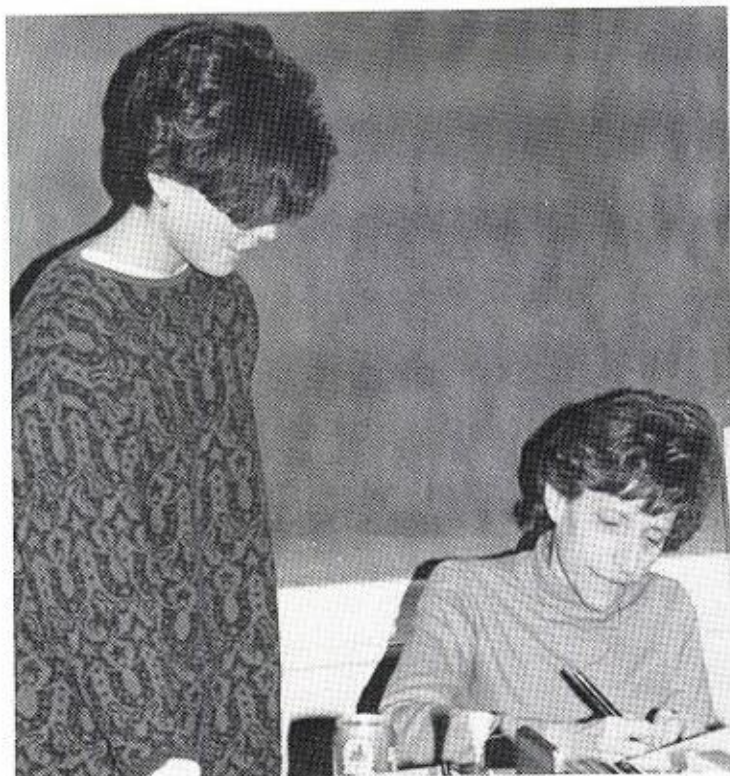

SHARING A LAUGH. Dr. Meier meets Sloane Albright in the front hall to discuss her French paper. A FEW STOLEN MOMENTS: Meena Patel takes time out to learn vocabulary while Cyndi Chiang cracks up over Merry Crandall's translation.

Insight Through Experience

English class is a struggle and a joy. Our odyssey from Julius to Romeo and Juliet, independent papers and finally Senior year was an eventful one. Mrs. O'Mara and Mrs. Britton inspired their sophomores with grace under pressure and tales of penance (or is it penitance?) while Mrs. Faber wove a Tale of Two Cities, and Pen to Paper prepared the Juniors for the big challenge: the independent paper. Dr. Cole made sure the Juniors met their deadlines while Mrs. Ryan expounded the beauties of Shakespeare and Emerson's "Self-Reliance". Seniors chose trimester courses ranging from poetry to the American Dream. The challenging journey is over for another year.

ENGLISH

HISTORY

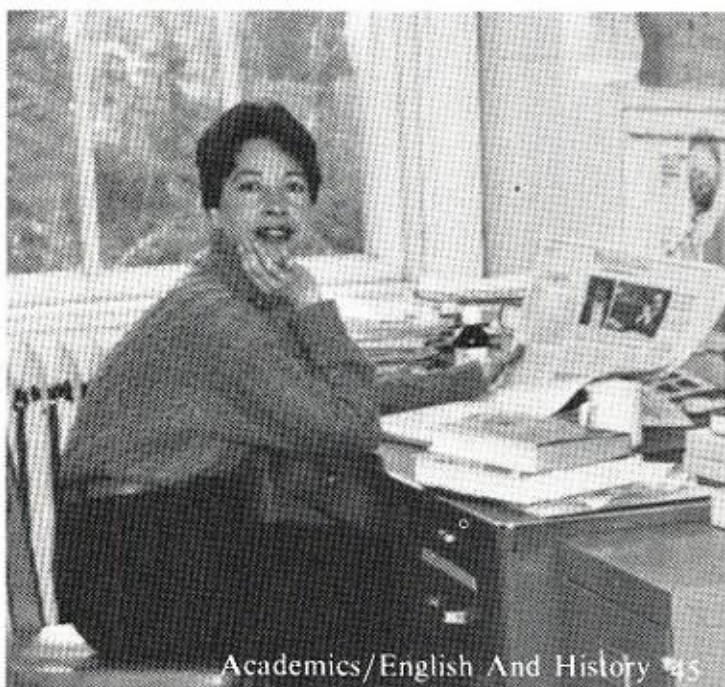

For the past few years, we've seen how, like love, the course of History never did run smooth.

Mrs. Van Voorhis's Patterns in History taught Freshmen the lives of the Greeks, feudal wars and the foundation of democracy. Battling opposers in World Wars, Mrs. Burns led Sophomores through European History. Mrs. Jacobus built on these foundations with her American History debates, civil war skits and numerous DBQ's.

Mrs. Burns guided Seniors through the intrigue of India, while the Constitutional Issues class, taught by Mrs. Dillon, sat in on a Supreme Court session in Washington DC and held moot court. Others, planning to make it big in business, took tips from Ms. Schwartz in Capitalism class.

Though the course was not always easy, we've made it through the trials and anticipate adding our names to the History books.

KELLY MANSFIELD catches Mrs. Jacobus's enthusiasm. CHECKING THE FINANCIAL PAGES, Mrs. Schwartz prepares for her Capitalism class. NO HISTORY TODAY due to Gretchen Ferrar's birthday.

It's Hip To B²

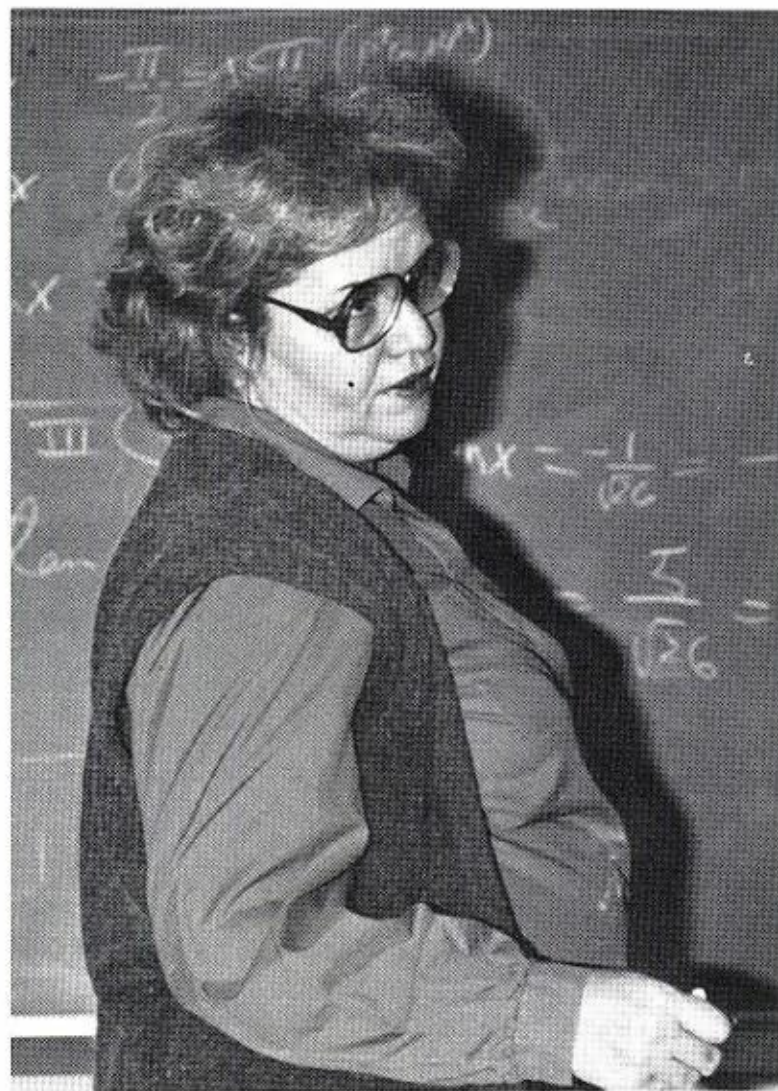

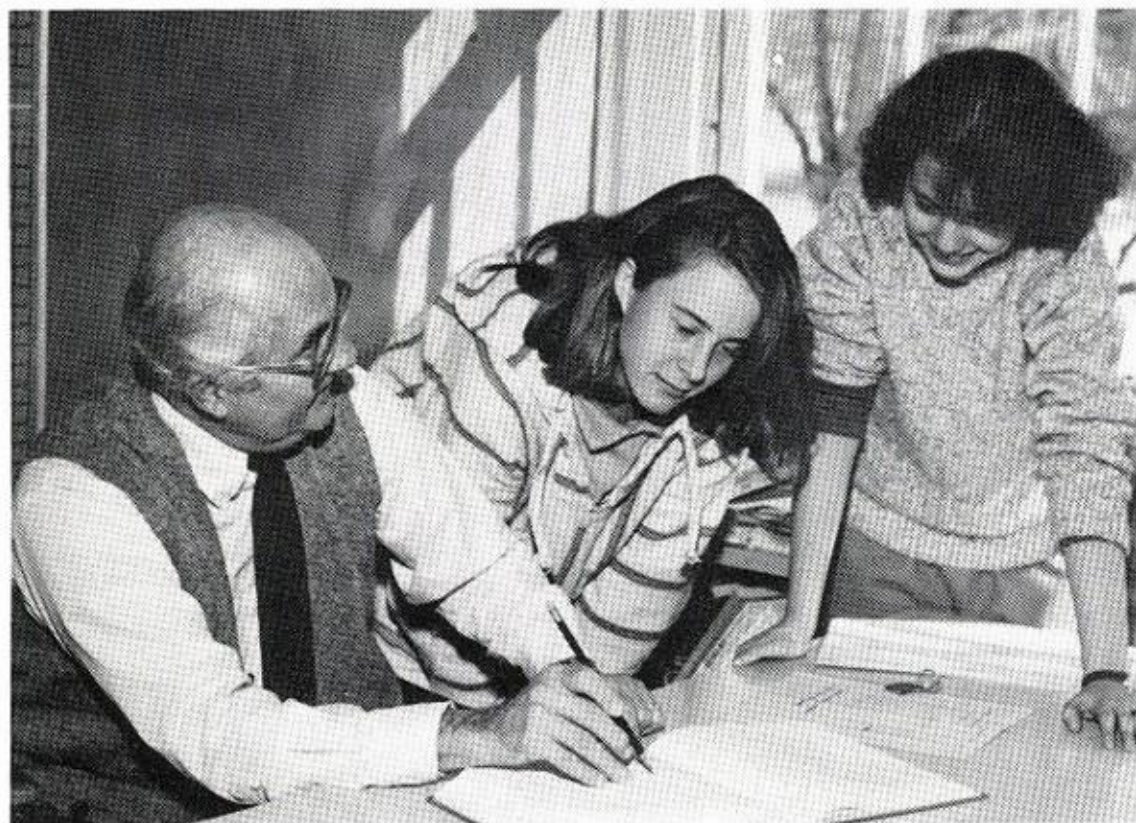

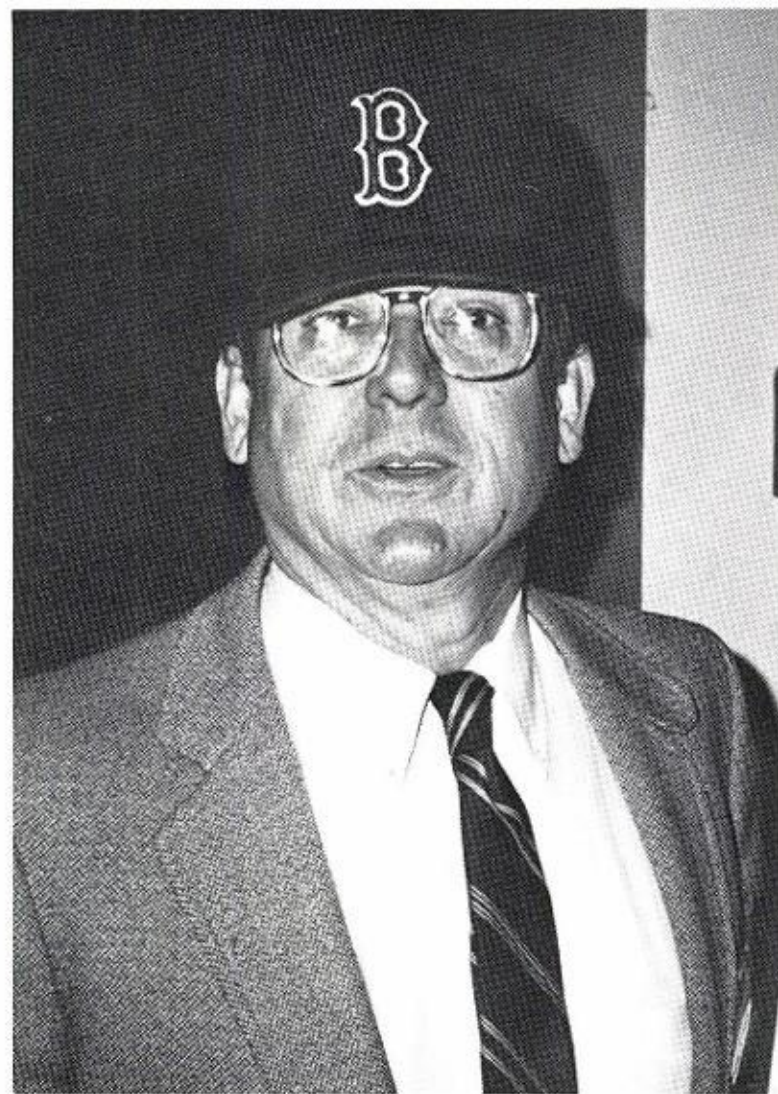

MATH IN 1987. Cavemen used lines to count the number of rocks they'd collected, the number of sun rises they had seen. They didn't have to worry about the stuff that math students in the 20th century must face.

In today's society, numbers serve only one purpose—to confuse us. Rather than concentrate on the more practical operations of math, namely addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, mathematicians feel compelled to complicate matters with trigonometric functions, methods of differentiation, and the quadratic formula. But what exactly will such knowledge do for us in our futures?

Students brave enough to work their way up to Calculus can provide some interesting answers. For instance, with some background in growth and decay problems, you can out-outsmart the bank and figure out whether it's more profitable to have your interest compounded daily, semi-annually, or annually. And then we can all have the bank work FOR us and make us millions and millions of dollars. Like that, eh? It's that easy, right?!

How about computers? Are we talking major confusion here? Not since we have Mr. Page to clear it up! His 4th floor computer lab is the scene for enlightenment and the whirr of printers and minds.

MATH MAGIC: Mr. Conley, Julie Roscoe and Pippa Leongard laugh at Trig, Mrs. Lopez defends Geo I and Mr. Page, our ultimate BOSOX fan.

MATHEMATICS

SCIENCES

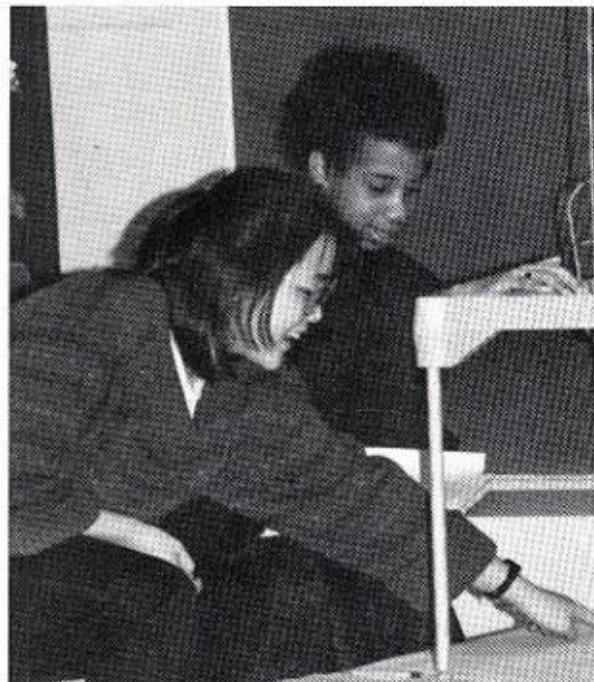

Journey through the new wing and meet a unique experience. Prepare to encounter curious scientists at work analyzing every organic and inorganic substance known and unknown. Rather than accept things as they are, they have to know what it's made of, why it exists, and how it works.

PSP and chemistry classes devote themselves to learning about density, volume, and other everyday facts. More importantly, Mr. Headley helps his students perfect their Snoopy drawings and senses of humor. Next door, Mr. Richmond and his chemists study electron configurations and chemical properties, applying their new knowledge in the laboratory, where danger abounds.

At the end of the hall, biologists try to find out why living creatures are alive. Dissecting everything from worms to pigs, they take apart the body's systems to understand life's processes. Some ambitious students attempt physics, where Mr. Headley concentrates on the mechanics of the world. Playing with inclined planes and the pendulum, students learn the motions of motion.

THE SCIENCES: Tara Williams rehearses her Apple computer commercial, Kristen Moscatello teaches Minetta Liu the facts of life and "X" marks the spot where Jane Lee and Jamie Johnson experiment. Mr. Headley demonstrates to Stephanie Carson the intricacies of the microscope.

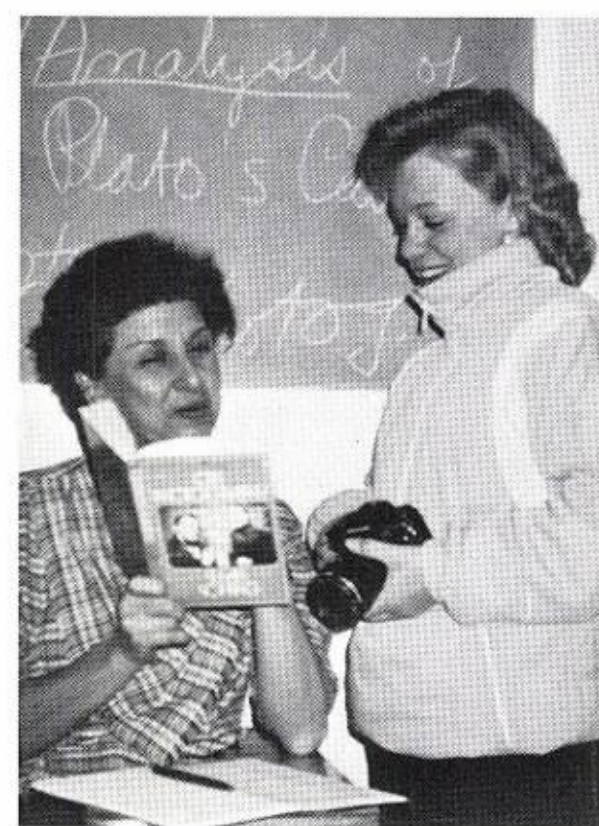

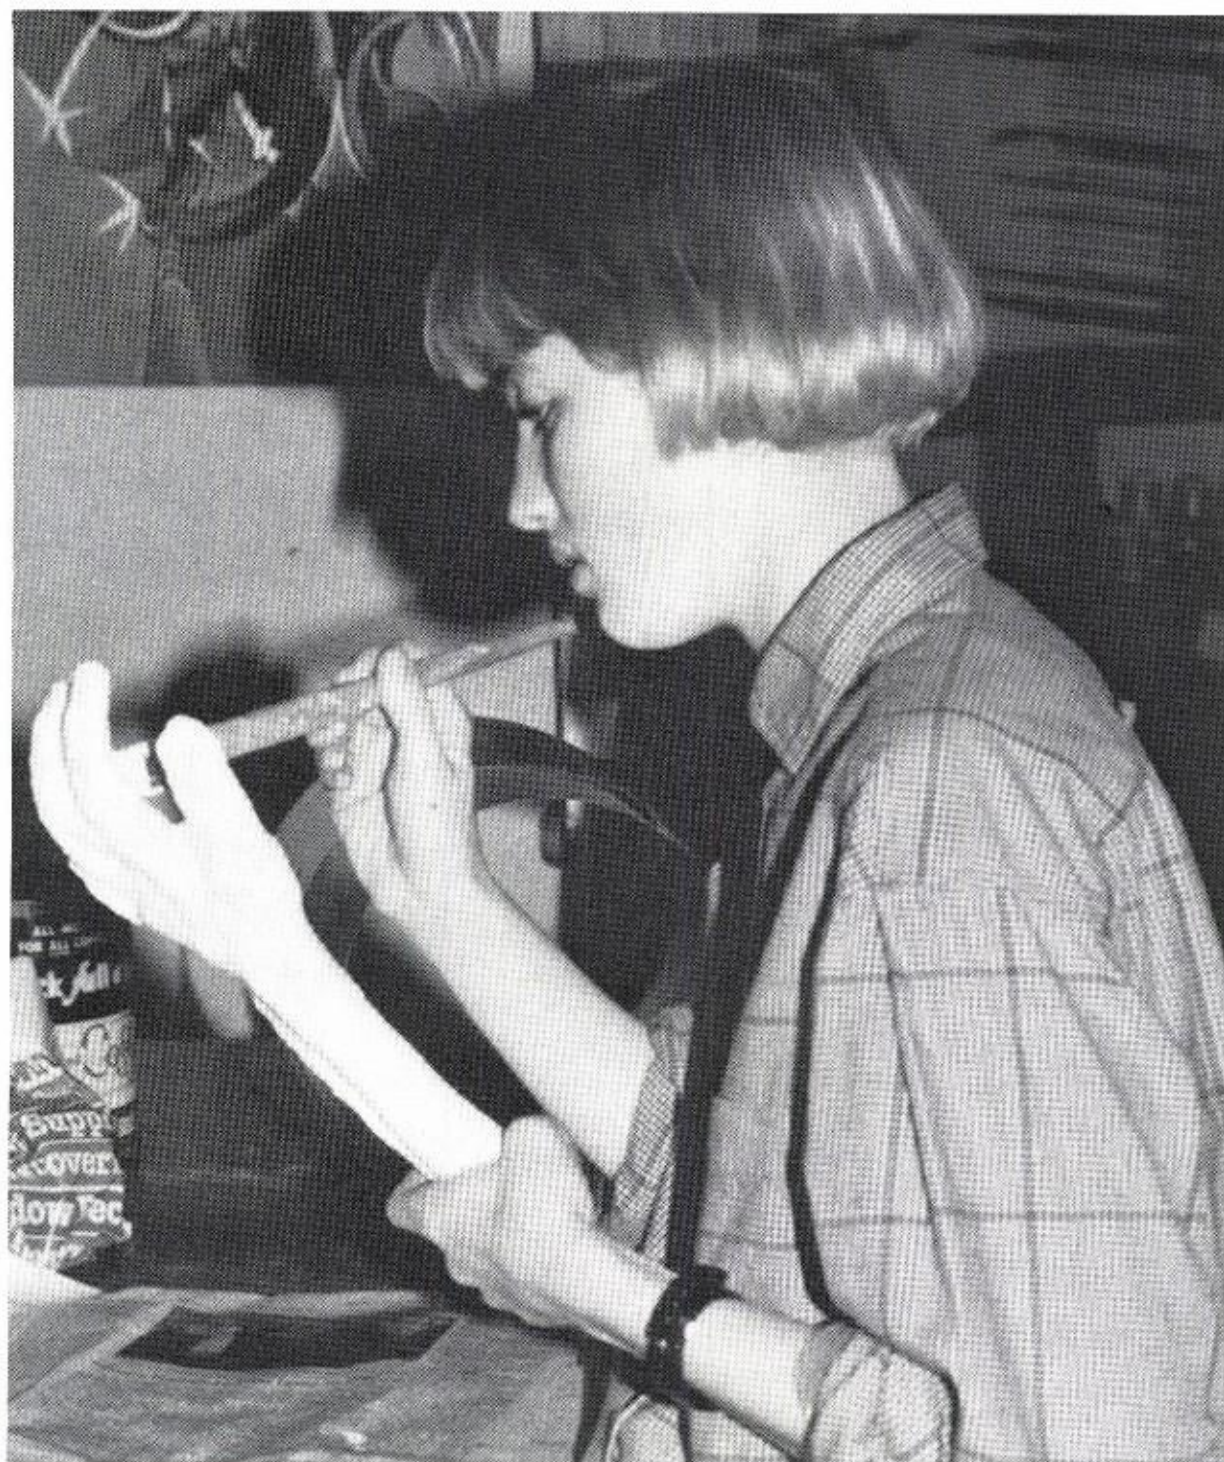

Notable Achievements

The art and photography department has developed tremendously in the past few years. Whether it is student work displayed in the hallways or teacher and local artists in the fine arts gallery, art is an important part our life.

We are active participants every year in the Teen Arts Festival, with nearly every art student submitting two entries. This year the Basic Composition and Design class (BCD) has a different teacher and focus for each trimester, allowing a broader introduction and development of artistic skills and style.

The photography department has become increasingly popular, due to Mrs. Fondiller's enthusiasm and expertise. The art departments broaden our artistic perspectives and offers K.P. students an extensive outlet for creativity.

PHOTOGRAPHY

MUSIC, ART

Music is an integral part of the life of a Kent Place student. Whether one participates in Ensemble, Chorale, Kent Place Singers, Chamber Singers, private lessons, or just appreciates listening to music on the radio, each student here encounters music in some aspect.

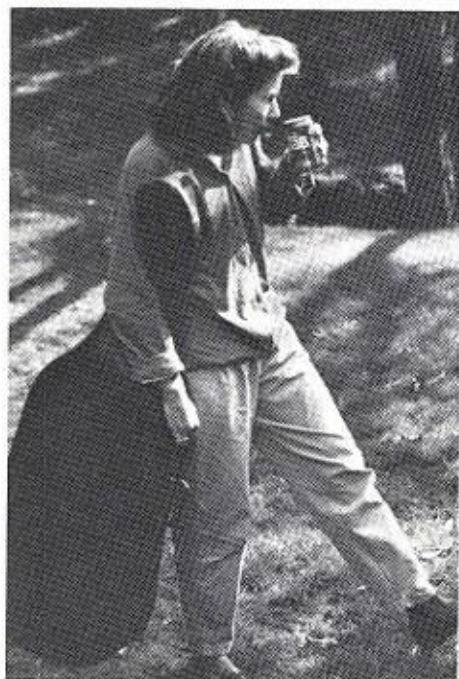

Kent Place Singers, Chamber Singers, and Chorale are select singing groups whose members sing in concerts both on and off campus.

DANCE:

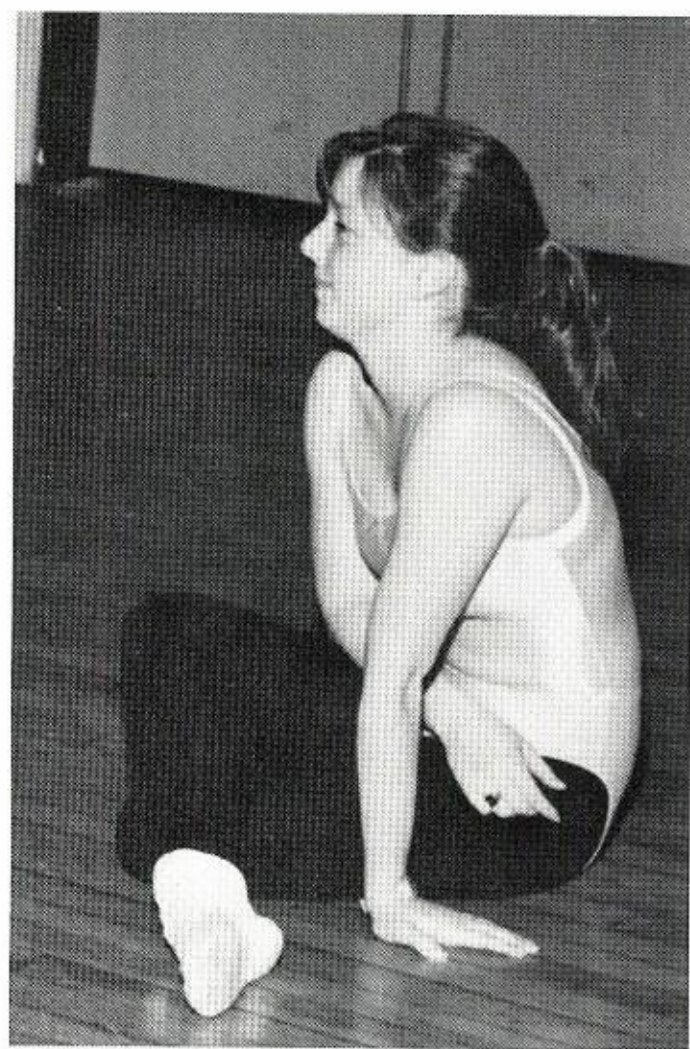

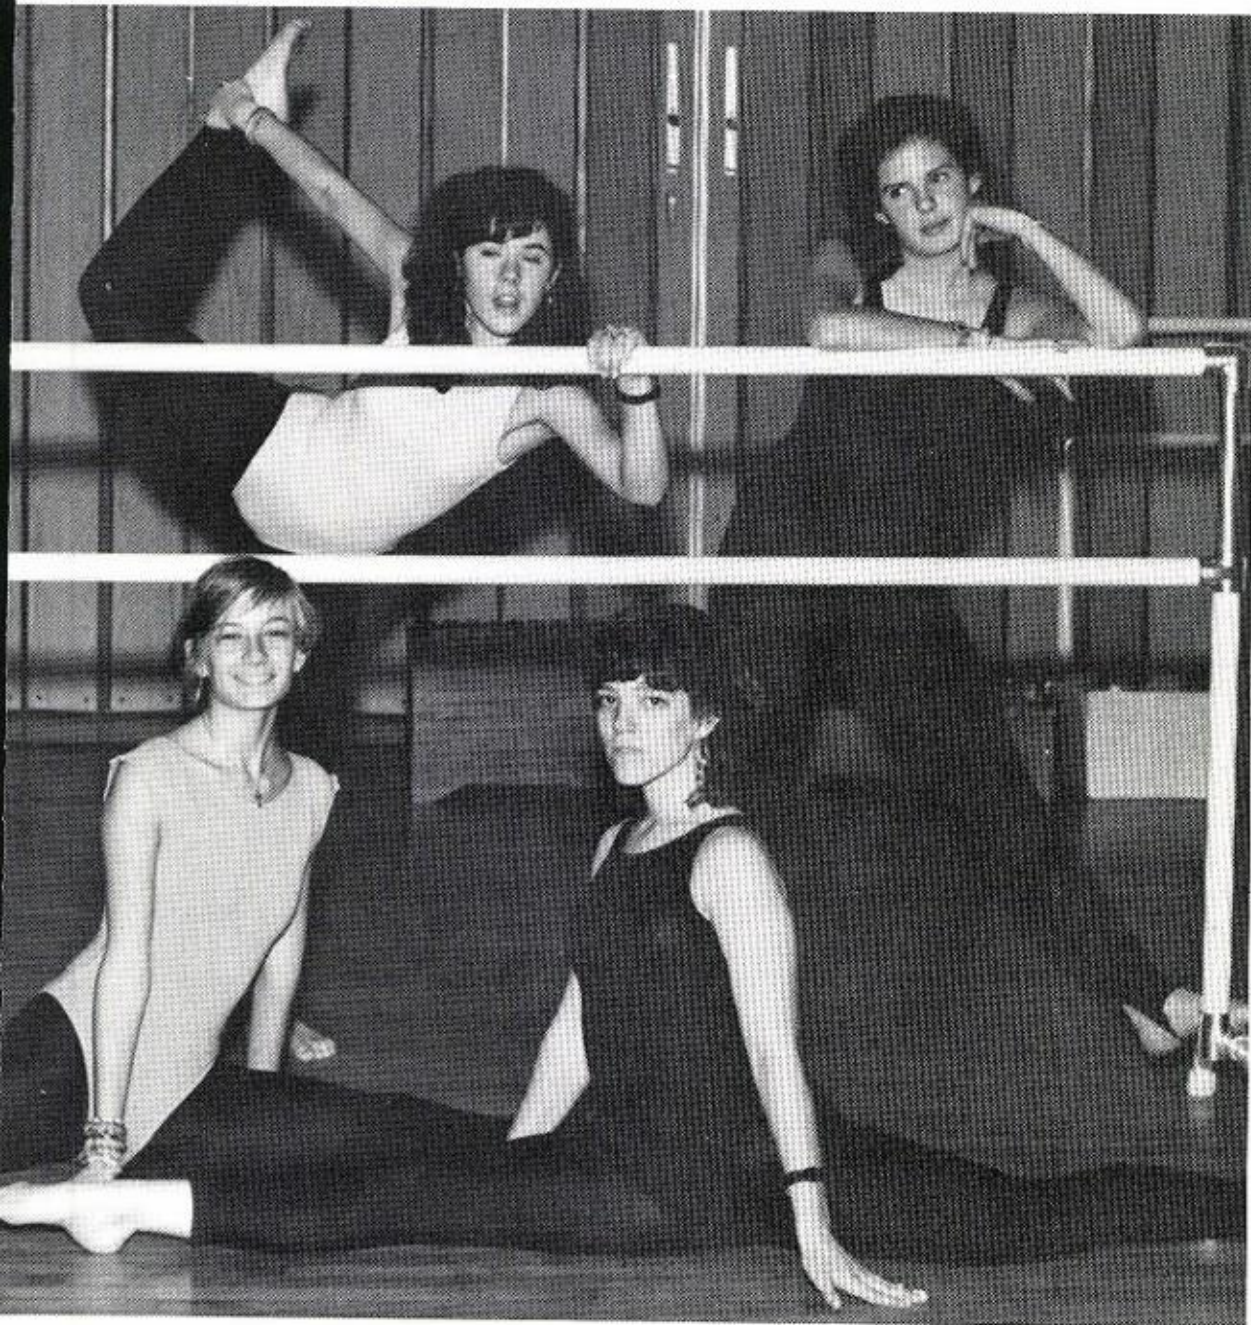

Taking A Bow

Leotards, tights, and ballet slippers litter the locker room. Upstairs, vibrant music fills the Dance Studio as the dancers practice with long, stretched arms and legs, moving in harmony and beauty.

Dance Troupe and Chamber Dancers, with more participants than last year, started off with many new projects. Both groups, led by Ms. Schmidt, choreographed and rehearsed for their big concert in April with shorter performances along the way at FSA Night, morning assemblies, and before community organizations.

The dancers performed their routines at Teen Arts and the Bridgewater Dance Festivals. They combined modern dances and classical ballet, and their assemblies were always a highlight. Chamber Dancers, Dance Troupe, and Ms. Schmidt enjoyed a busy season and look forward to further success.

DRAMA

You're walking along, minding your own business, when you innocently walk into the theater. You are greeted with screams of, "I must look like a-pant!-drowned gerbil-pant, pant!" and, "People think you're a twit if you twirl".

You shake your head vigorously, knowing that you're experiencing audio hallucinations. You listen again. "I have seen a man healed by a Big Mac! Yes, I have," you hear.

You run out of the theater, screaming. "Okay", you think, "I'll wait until after Christmas vacation and then I'll try again".

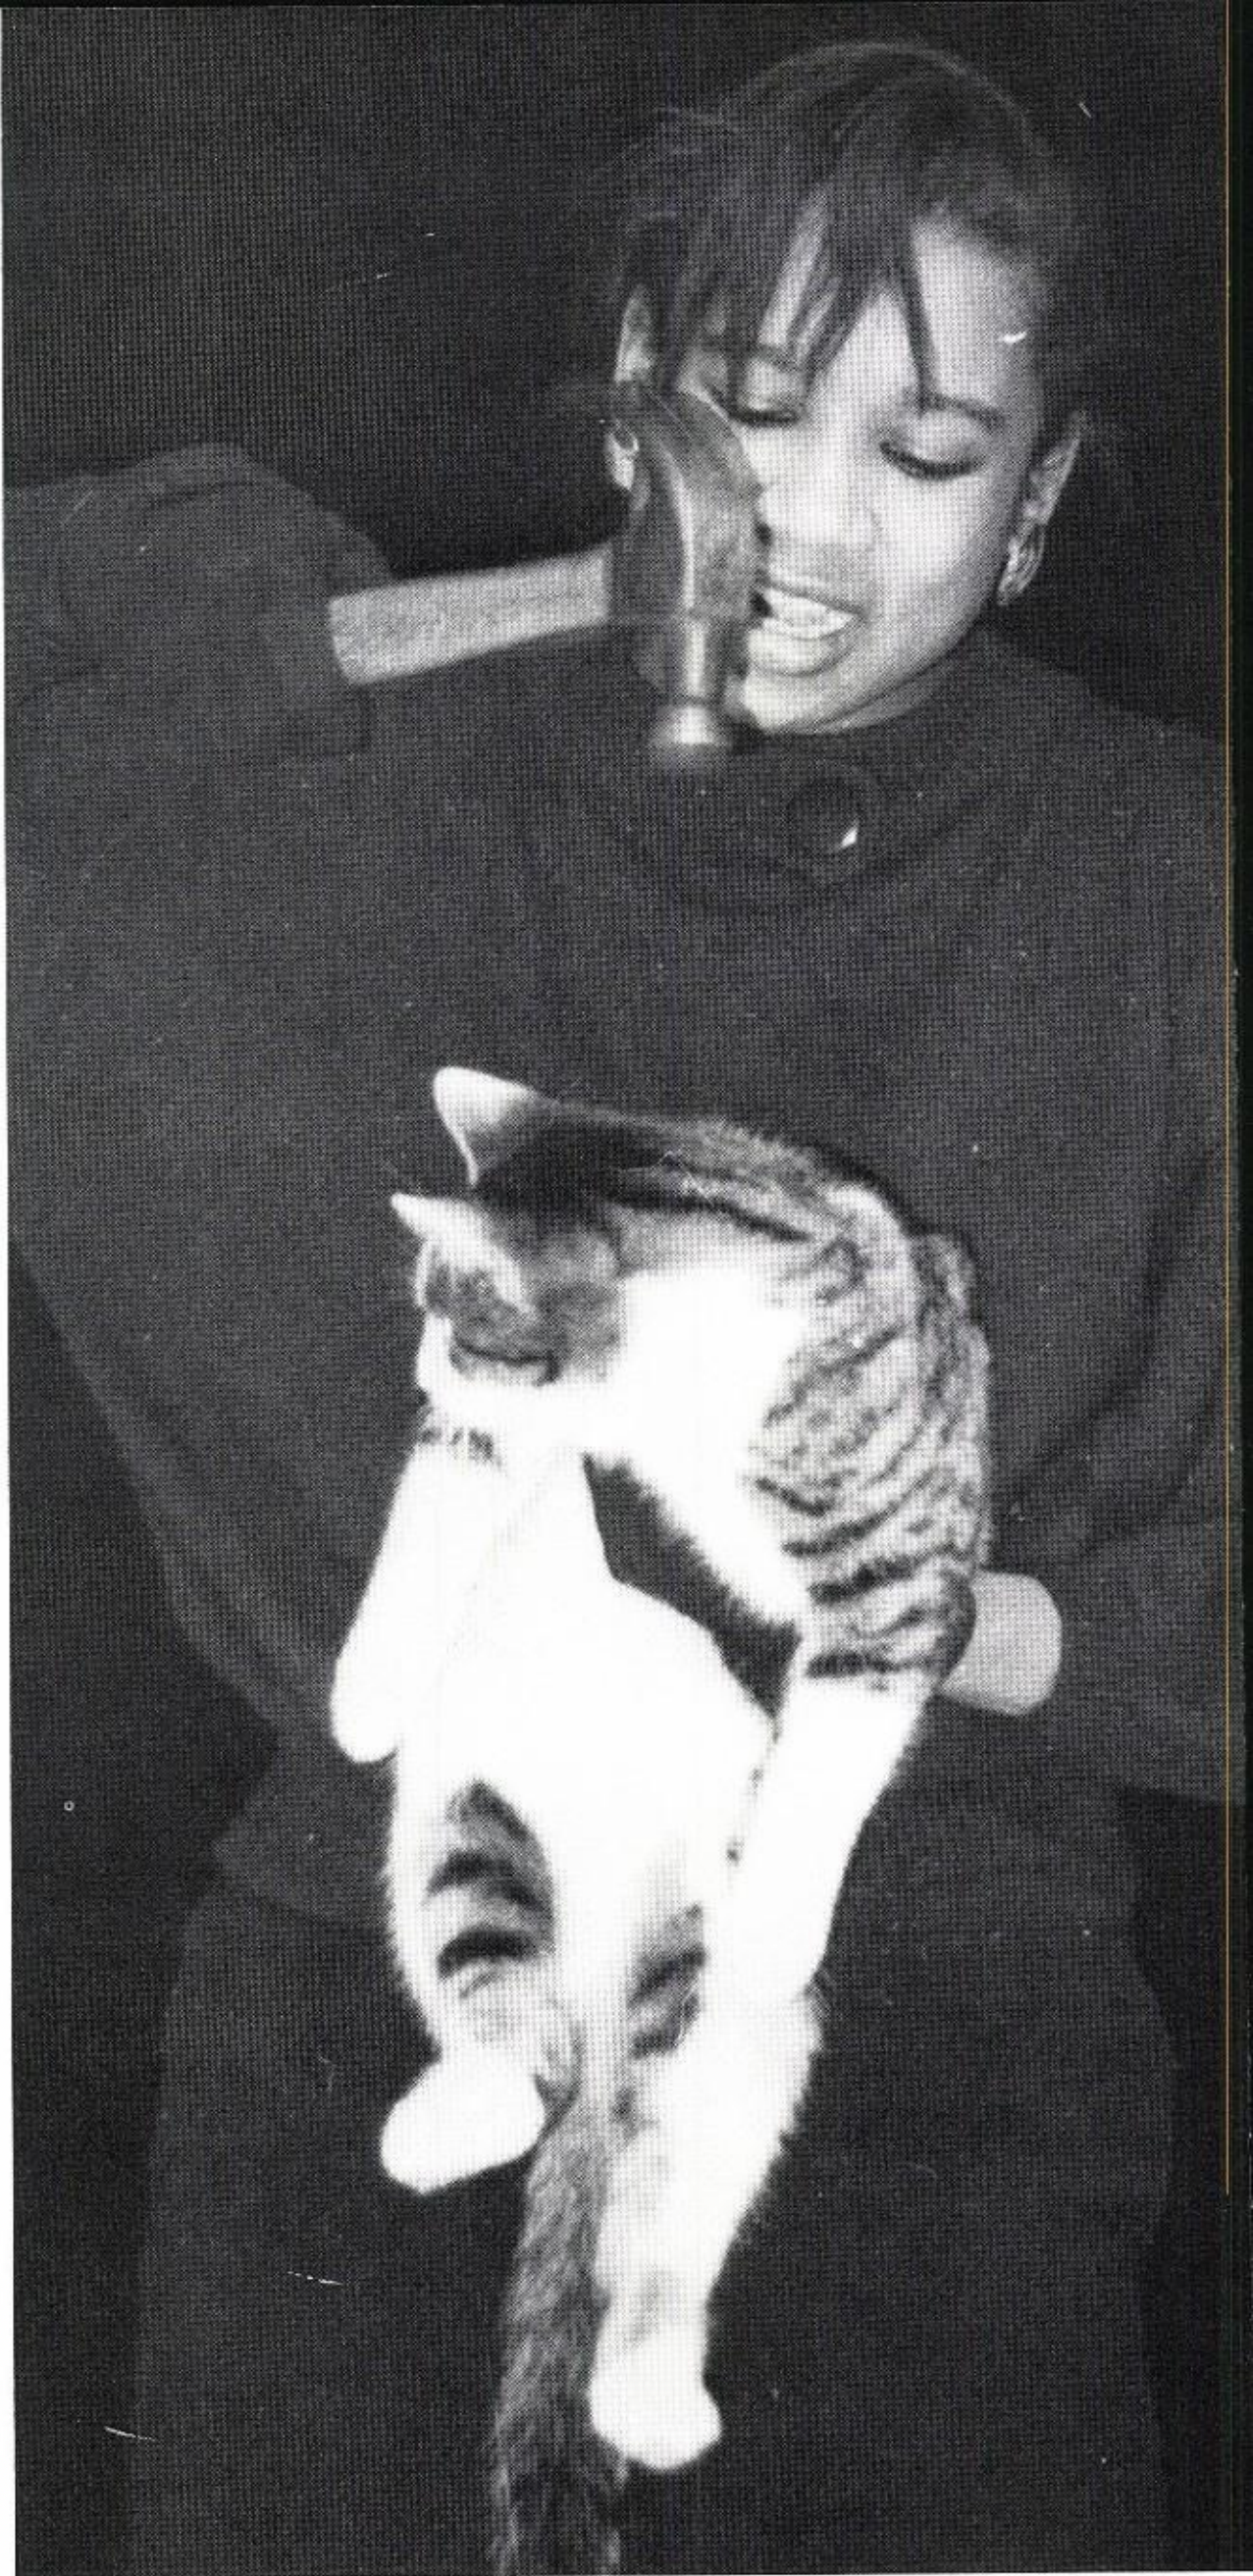

Bad move. You walk into the theater yet again, and you hear, "Ooo, ooo, ah, ah, AAAA! Schreech!" and a talking ape proclaims, "My name is Blue". This is just too much. You beat a hasty retreat, thinking you'll never walk into the Kent Place theater again.

However, after March vacation you hear that those theater people are doing a musical. "Great!" you think. "Finally, something I can deal with. I wonder what they're doing? West Side Story? Oklahoma?"

You enter the theater with a smile on your face and a song in your heart. But you were mistaken to expect something ordinary from the Kent Place drama department. On stage are over thirty girls dressed in fish-net stockings and satin singing a requiem mass, "Requiem enterenam dona Evita! Salve regina mater miseri cordiae!". Who are they singing about? Who else? An ex-prostitute/actress/saint named Eva Peron.

As you hyperventilate, someone tells you that Calliope, written by Emily Barton, is also in production. "What's it about?" you gasp. "Oh, just a boy in an asylum who talks to a girl who's a figment of his imagination and speaks mathematically".

What have you just experienced? A journey into the Twilight Zone? An out-of-body experience? Hell? No, just a typical year of drama at Kent Place School. From Talking With . . . and Animal to Calliope and Evita, this year's plays were certainly . . . different. Some people may think our productions are a bit outlandish (even frightening), but if our plays weren't so avant garde, we wouldn't be Kent Place.

WITH A SARCASTIC GRIN Chermayne Holloway threatens to bash in the head of Kent Place's kitty.

BAAARGH! Senior Stephanie Hodde berates the audience with ape-screams in Animal.

CURTAIN CALL

WEARING HER NEW BOA (constrictor, that is), Emily Barton sends shivers up the audience's spine.

SALUD! Although she's not yet twenty-one, Erika Amato enjoys a martini in Talking With . . .

CARGOES WINDWARD MIRABLE DICTU BALLAST

Ballast received its sixth Medalist rating from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, highlighting a year of fascinating interviews and ace reporting. This year's major topics included school and student finances, adoption and divorce, and the E.R.A. movement. With a loyal staff and a newly written handbook, Ballast maintained its high standards and gained more respect from its readers.

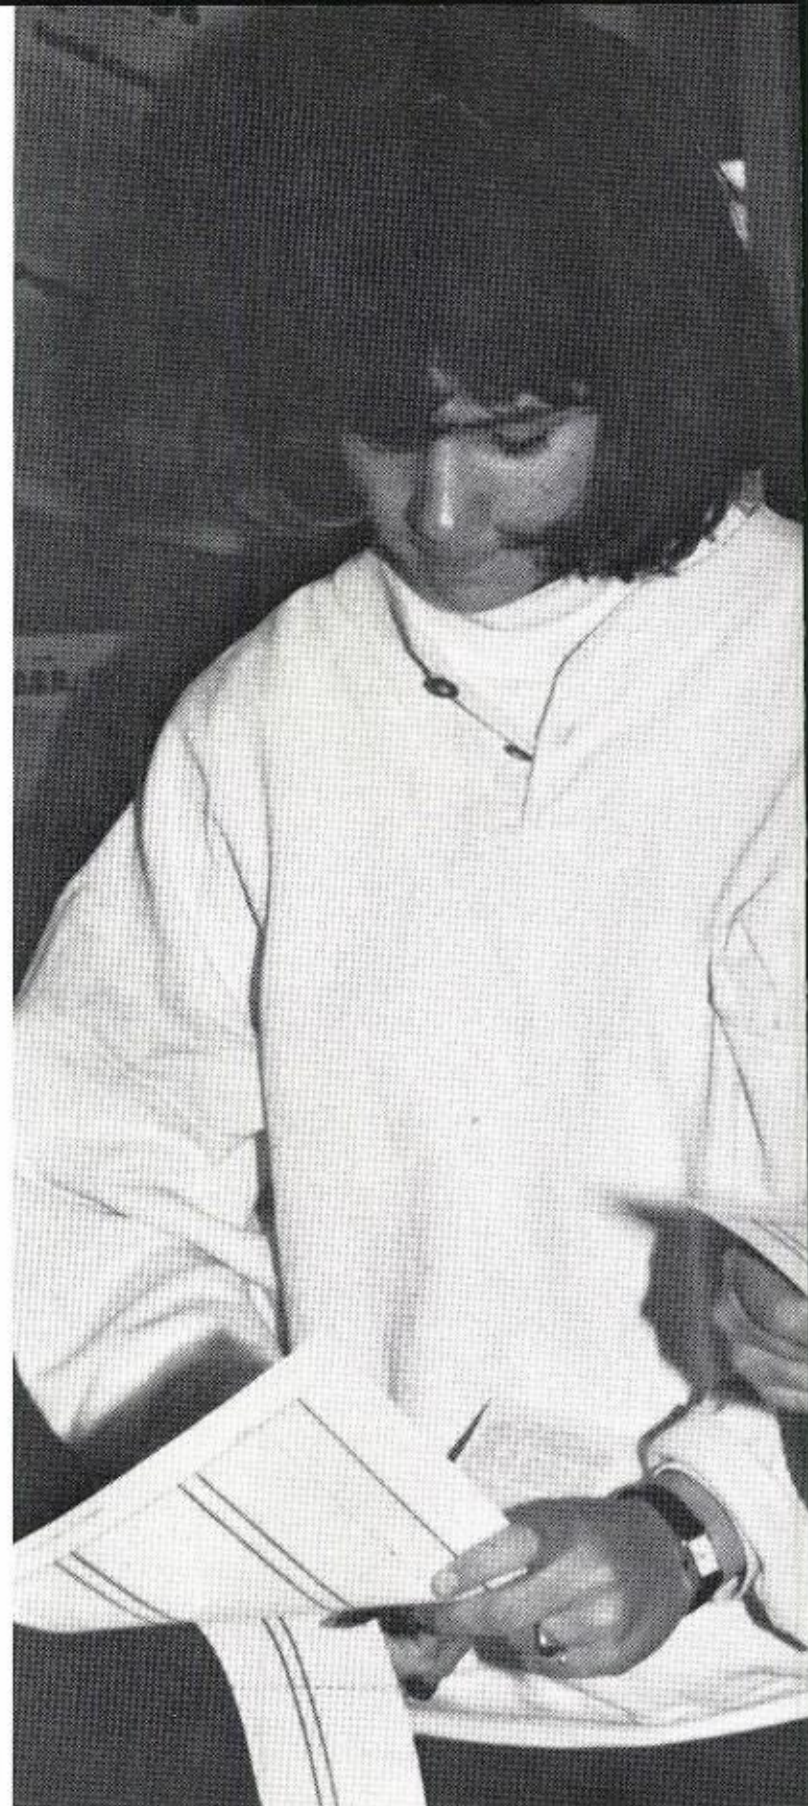

Windward kept the creativity of the school at a peak all year by sponsoring its annual competition and the famous literary bake sale, featuring "Elizabeth Barrett Brownies" and "Ezra Poundcake." Equally inspiring were the weekly quotes posted on the bulletin board pertaining to every aspect of life.

Miracle Dictu, the foreign language magazine, added culture to the school with its Spanish crossword puzzles, Latin phrases, and a special page of Swedish sayings a la Stina.

The Cargoes staff has been working to create a yearbook that is innovative, while maintaining tradition. We have adapted ideas from such resources as Glamour, Elle, G.Q., and Rolling Stone magazines to the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations. We have managed to update the yearbook and introduce new pages such as food, fashion and trivia reflecting the character of the students. Working six to seven hour days on Sundays to meet deadlines has been a tough but rewarding challenge.

Organized and directed by The President's Council, three of Kent Place's busiest clubs continued to keep busy through 1986-1987.

French Club, under Kim Scott, sponsored a croissant sale and hosted a French luncheon with fondue. The Black Cultural Association, with President, Jamie Johnson, enriched our lives with assemblies on black leaders. BCA also raised funds through tie-dying boxers, T-shirts and long-johns.

Student Guides' President Jessica Stein not only arranged tour guides for prospective students, but also hostesses for KP Open Houses. Mrs. Van Voorhis and Deirdre McGuire, as heads of President's Council, monitored the clubs' successes and helped with suggestions.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

KP goes international

The Junior Statesmen of America has a new chapter at KP. Junior State parallels U.S. government on several levels. Its members elect a charter President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer from their school. The charters are grouped together into Regions and then into States. Members of Junior State practice and improve their debating skills. The KP chapter attended Congress '87 in January to discuss some of the issues facing this year's U.S. Congressmen. Nine members attended the Philadelphia Conference for the Mid-Atlantic Region to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Constitution.

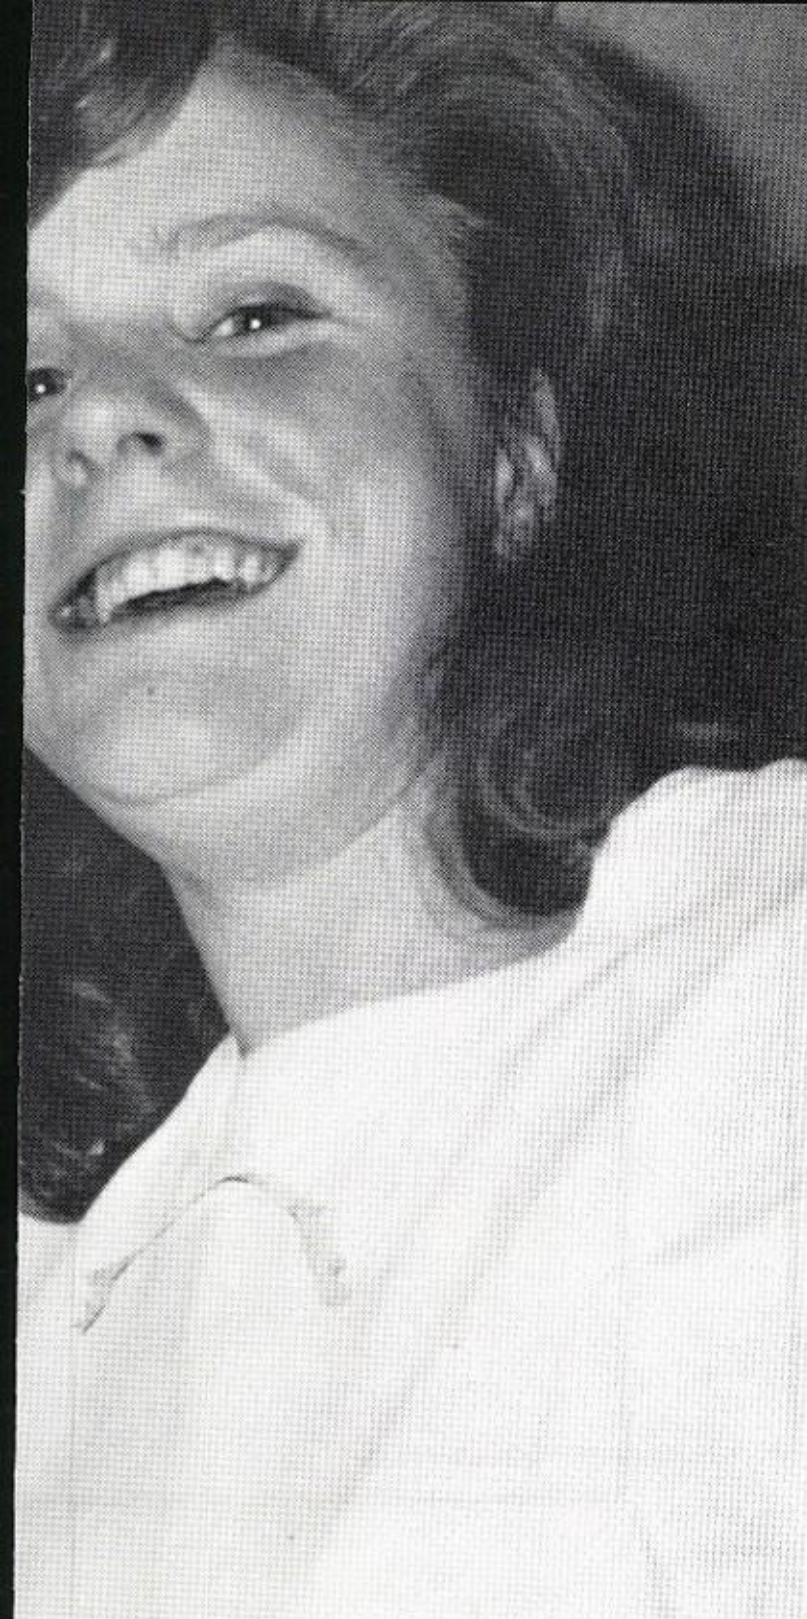

The Model United Nations Club,

started this year by seniors Christy Remey and Kim Kanner, also helps its members to learn about politics and to meet new people. Its focus is on the world, rather than the American scene. At Harvard and then Georgetown, its members participated in simulations of the UN General Assembly, debating topics such as Angola and the Middle East. At the Harvard Conference, KP represented Angola and at Georgetown they represented the PLO. In each session, we learned to draft resolutions, to debate, and to speak to a large group. Each member left with a new sense of the world and its problems.

Let's make a deal

The year started out strongly for the new representatives of Senate and Judiciary as well as for their new presidents. Cindy Buck of Judiciary and Catherine Humphries for Senare worked closely to deal effectively with loads of points to be given and changes to be made.

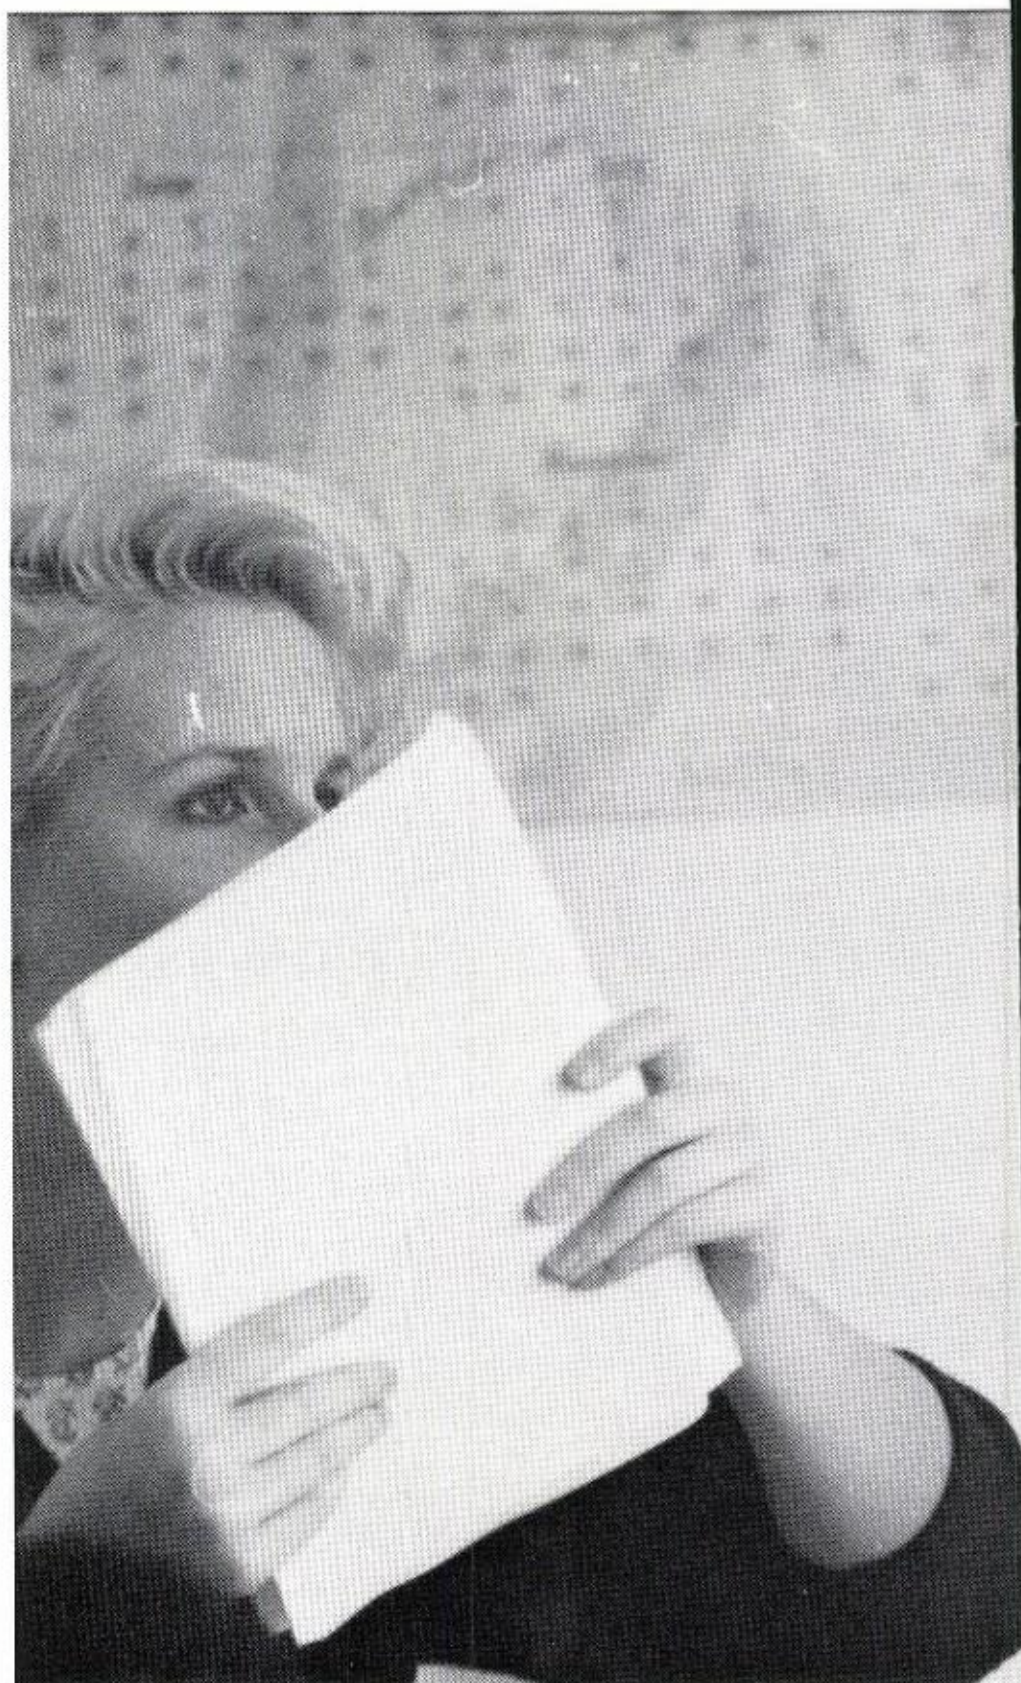

Senate's Christmas party and bizarre words of the day kept student government accessible to the students, and as always its room was jammed with Juniors on the day Senate voted on Junior Priviledge.

Judiciary coped with a seemingly increasing problem of dress code offenses and point problems. But the cooperation between the two evened the responsibilities and managed to minimize the problems.

Together they stressed the uniqueness of the system at Kent Place that allows such a close relationship between the teachers and students. Their work has set a good foundation for next year's leaders.

STUDENT AFFAIRS SOCIAL COMMITTEE

“And we’ll have fun, fun, fun”

In the continuing pursuit of making sure that every girl at Kent Place has fun inside and outside of school, the Social Committee and Student Affairs work enthusiastically in creating news adventures. First, Social Committee went on a quest to match up couples through a computer dating service. Some of the pairs were as unexpected as the long-awaited Surprise Day, planned in February by Student Affairs. A new Student Affairs event, Character Day, proved to be great fun for costume clad, dress code offending students and teachers. Always count on Social Committee and Student Affairs to make school more liveable.

"What Are Men To Rocks And Mountains!"

Squash Club met its third season under new co-presidents Jessica Stein and Amanda MacKenzie, who were advised by Mrs. Jacobus. Members play twice a week and take lessons from a squash pro. Some joined the Delbarton Junior Varsity team to play in a "round robin" tournament against other area schools and others watched General Hospital during well deserved breaks. Squash Club has all areas, both athletic and social, covered!

Throughout the year, The Athletic Association cheered every athlete and fan at KP. Our spirit and friendliness, captured in our green dragon mascot Chumley, appeared at all the games, and A.A.'s bouncy president, Karen Lindner, cheerfully announced the winning scores during morning meetings. The entire A.A. crew invented creative means of showing support, selling new school sweatshirts and raffling KP rugby shirts.

Wanting to expand on the fun that A.A. was creating, the A.A. president re-activated the Outing Club to entice people to enjoy the great outdoors. Promising rough adventures such as hiking and canoeing, the club immediately received a great following which should carry through until next year.

FSA NIGHT - ORANGE BOWL

Good Vibrations

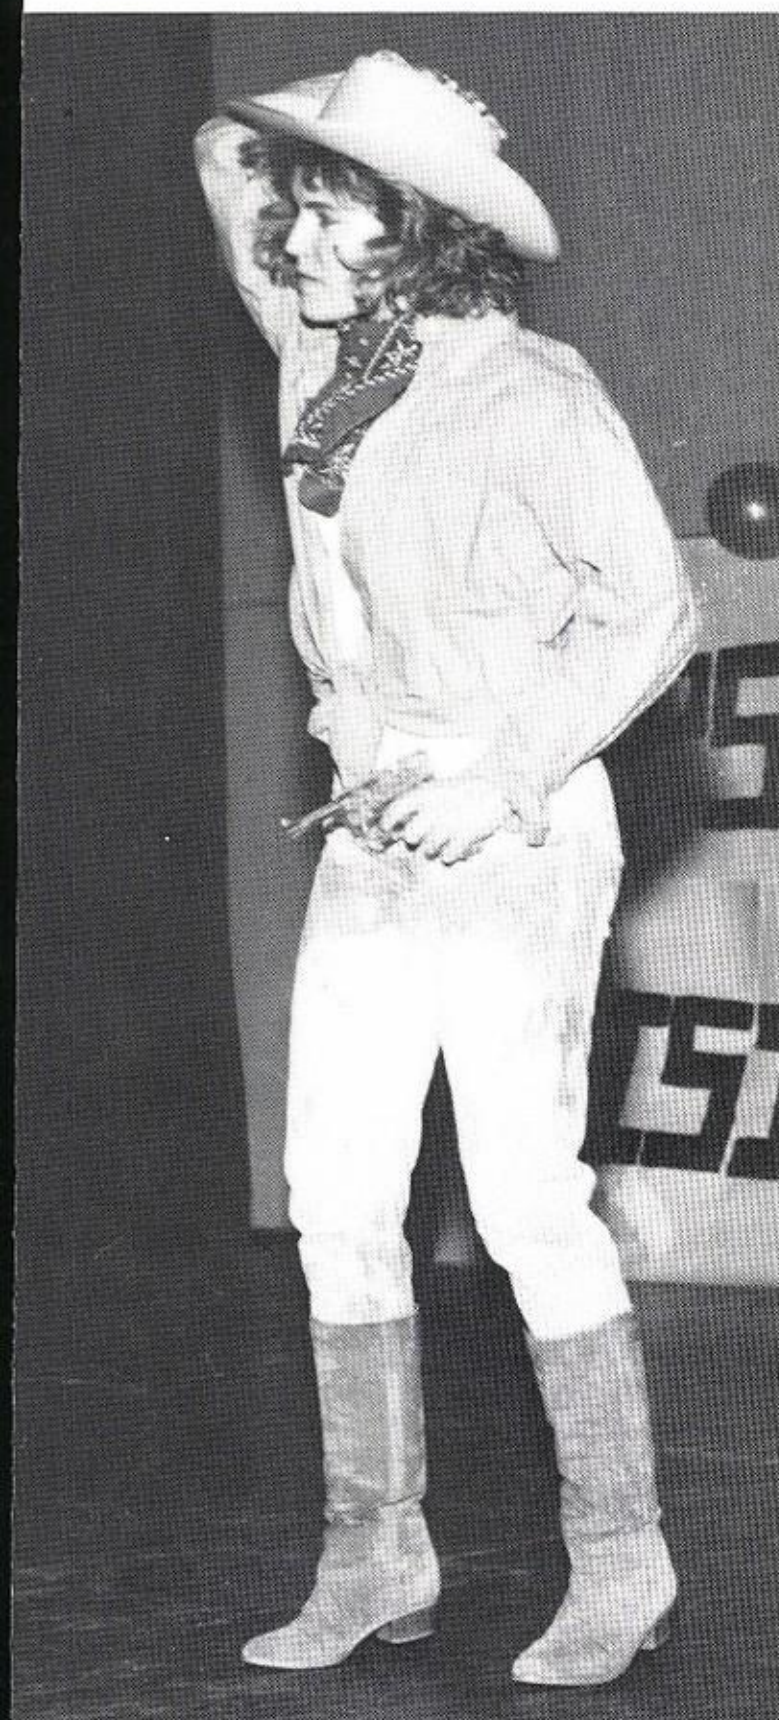

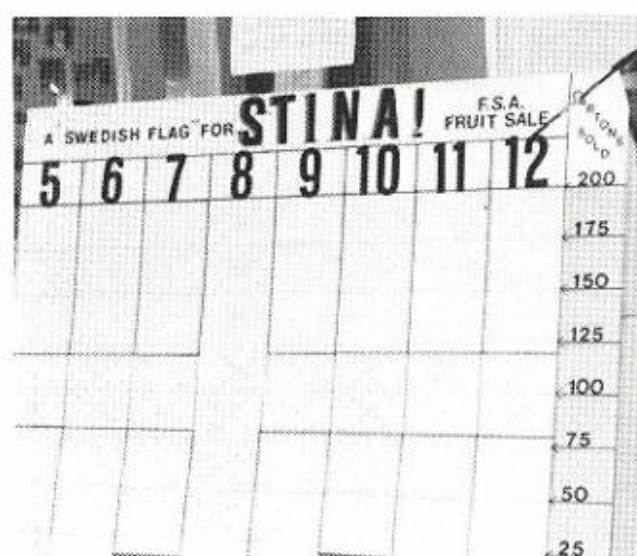

Good vibrations flowed through Kent Place's veins on FSA Night. The fundraising citrus fruit sale provided the theme for The Orange Bowl, evident in the dangling orange and white streamers and the scoreboard recording the act numbers. Each class created its own float ranging from a jungle setting to a Valentine's Day scene.

The decorations were just the setting for the entertainment. Highlights included The Supremes and a Blue Brothers trio. Halftime introduced FSA students from other schools, and the dedication of the evening to our FSA student, 'Stina. After the sold-out performance, everyone went home with their fruit, humming "Good Vibrations."

THE PEOPLE OF FSA: Jenn Dorsey leads the seniors in a round of "Jungle Love", while Erika Amato and Emily Barton reveal how opposites attract. Right, Village People Melanie Lewison and Gail Carpenter think it's fun to stay at the YMCA.

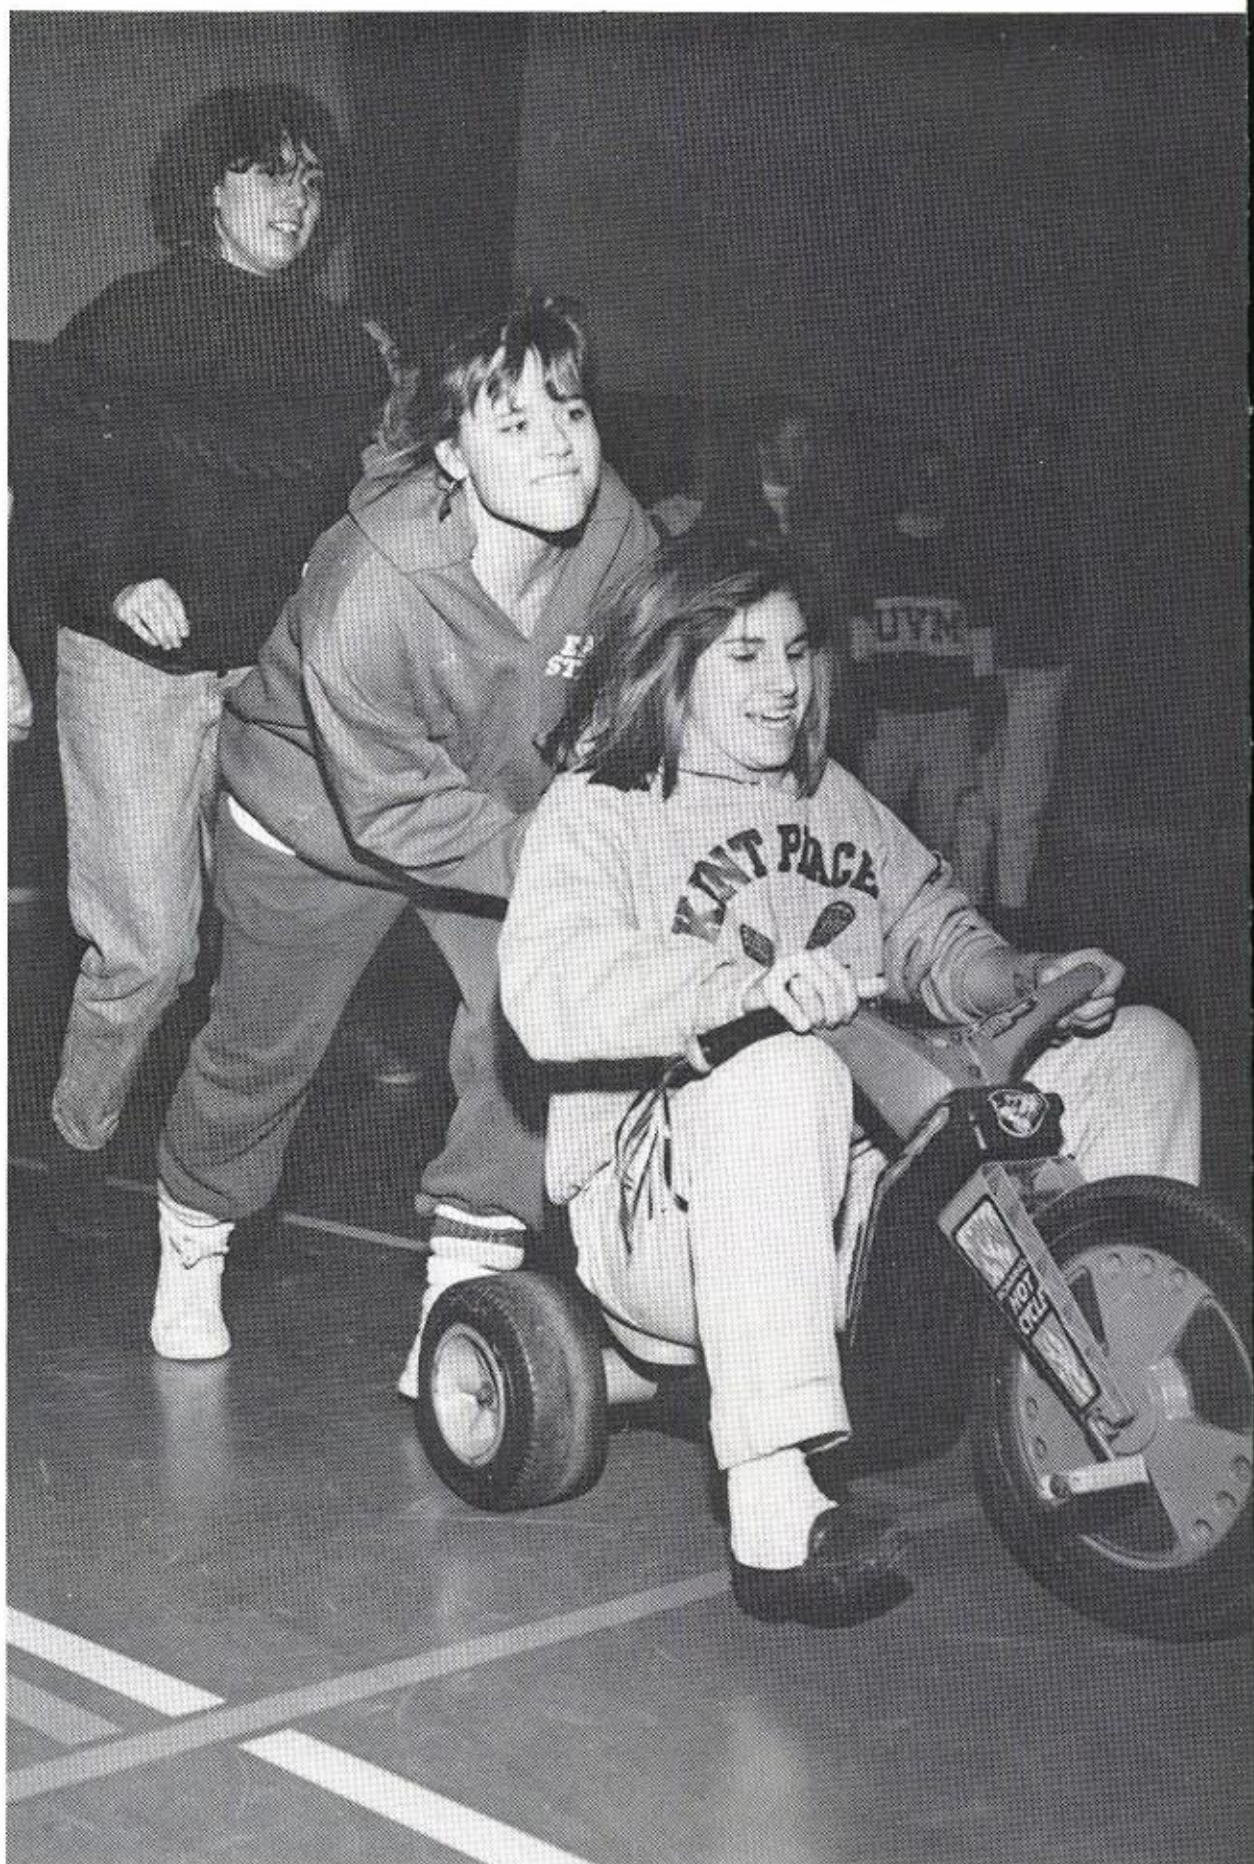

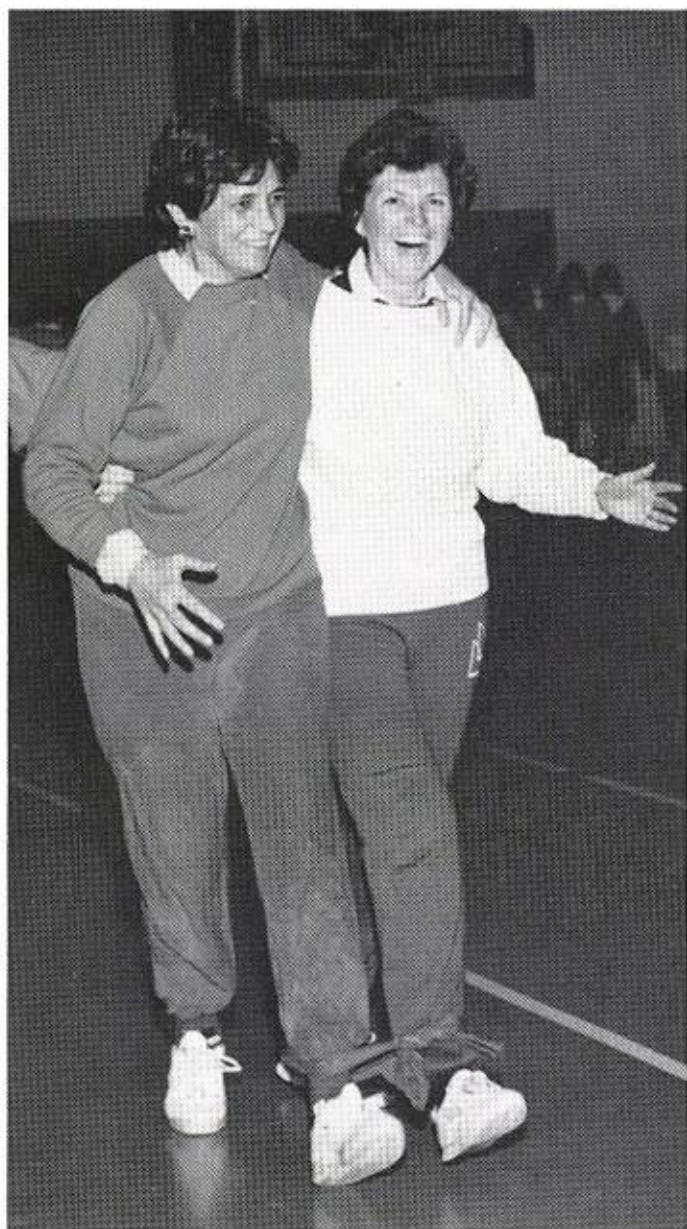

Stephanie Hodde, Kim Scott and Katie Hogan dance supremely.

FRIENDS STICK TOGETHER: Mrs. Faber and Mrs. Merkel in the three-legged race.

THIS IS WAR. The teachers tug desperately to regain their lead.

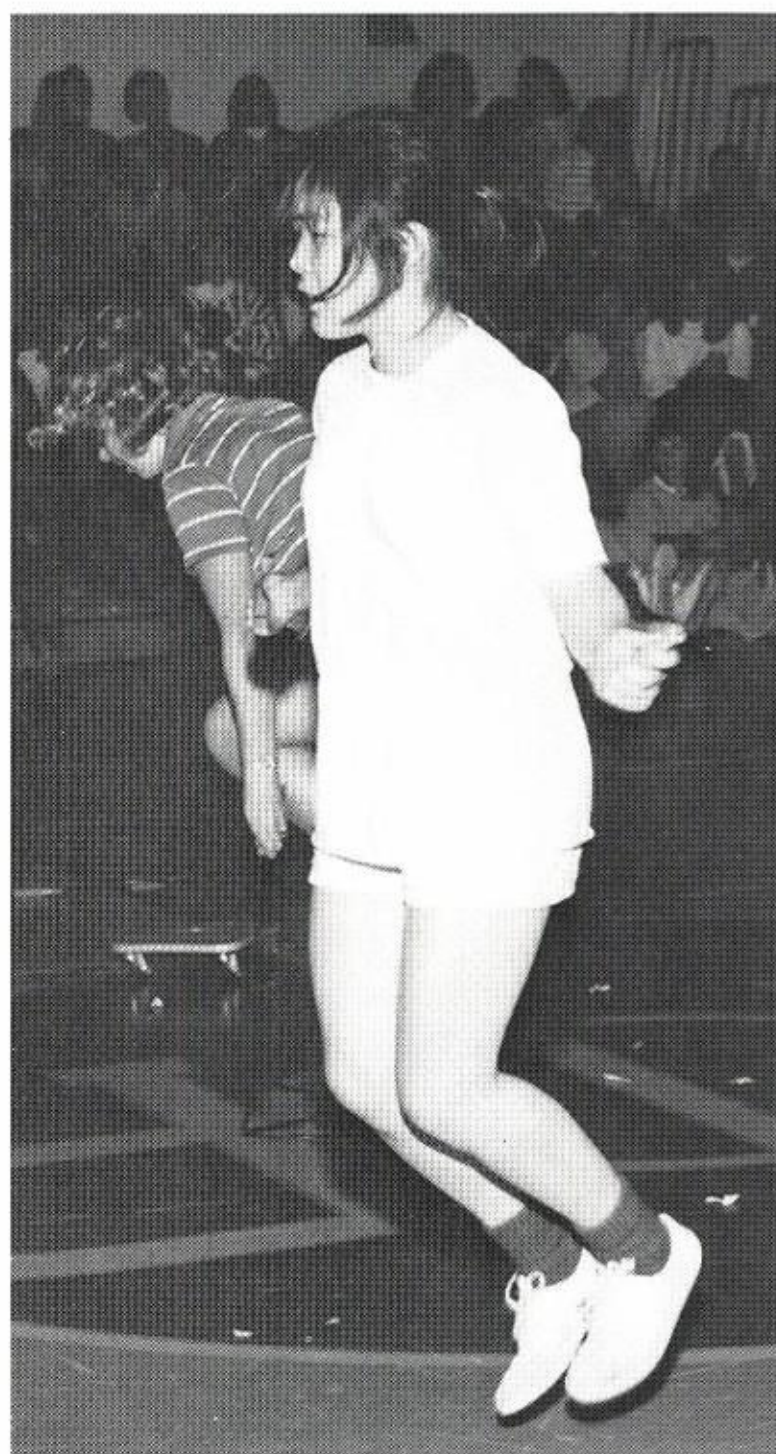

BATTLE OF THE GENERATIONS

Where's The Party?

For the first time in years, the students won the Battle of the Generations. A.A.'s biggest event of the year that pitches faculty against students in races of speed, agility and kindergarten skills. The Big Wheel Grand Prix was a big hit this year, and the traditional Tug of War and Three Legged Races were the greatest crowd pleasers, as usual. By the end of the relays, the students had overwhelmed the faculty: Seniors led with 80 points, Juniors 75 points, Sophomores 65 points and the Freshmen had 60 points.

TWIST AND SHOUT: Jane Lee jumps ahead in the obstacle race. PUMPING AHEAD TO A CLEAN SWEEP. Elisha Freifeld and Liz Keyser spur on Jen Grossas.

Go team! Annie Simpson, Kelly Mead and Susy Vignolo enjoy the other team's defeat.

Our field hockey team mixes inexperienced sophomores with veteran talents. Tennis also welcomes new players to the experienced staff and teaches them how to win. Gymnastics triumphs, thanks to perfect combinations of parallel bars, beam and floor performances. With both short and tall players, basketball is formidable in frightening off competition. The volleyball team, traditionally victorious, combines as many star spikers as star servers. Both lacrosse and softball are thrilling exhibits of speed, skill and strength.

Even our spectators are a perfect combination. Parents, teachers and students cheer all our teams to victory. Opponents are wary, because they are surrounded by talent and spirit on all sides.

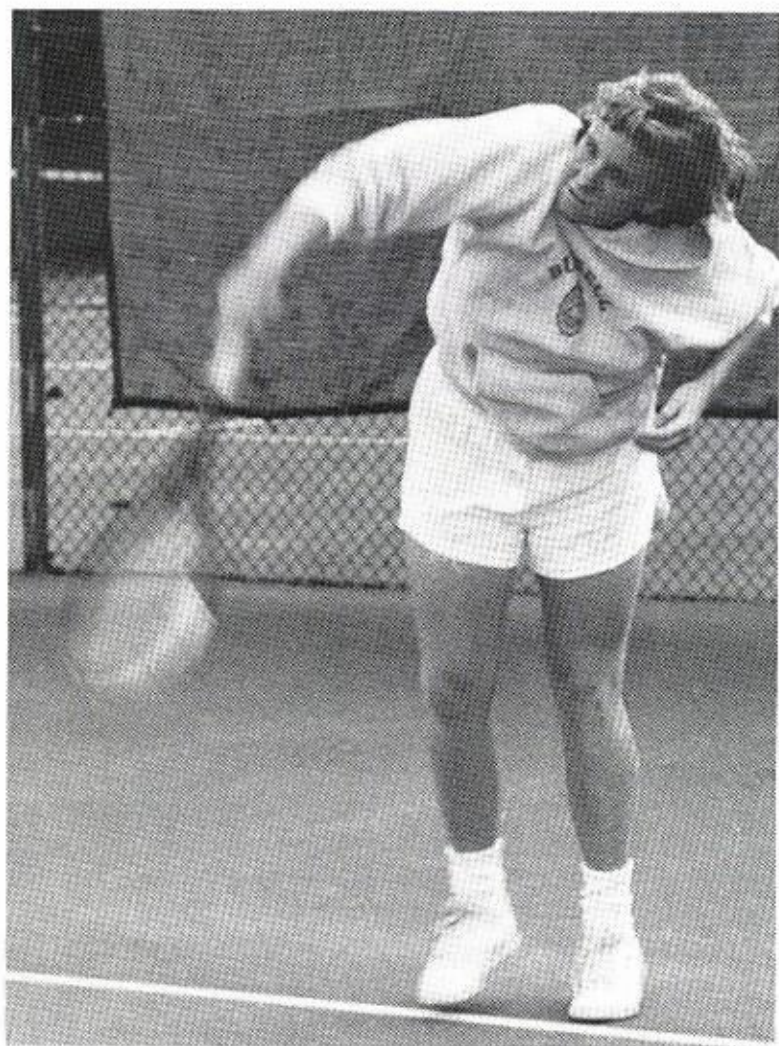

In a warm-up session with Tara King, Suzi Burry plans her attack.

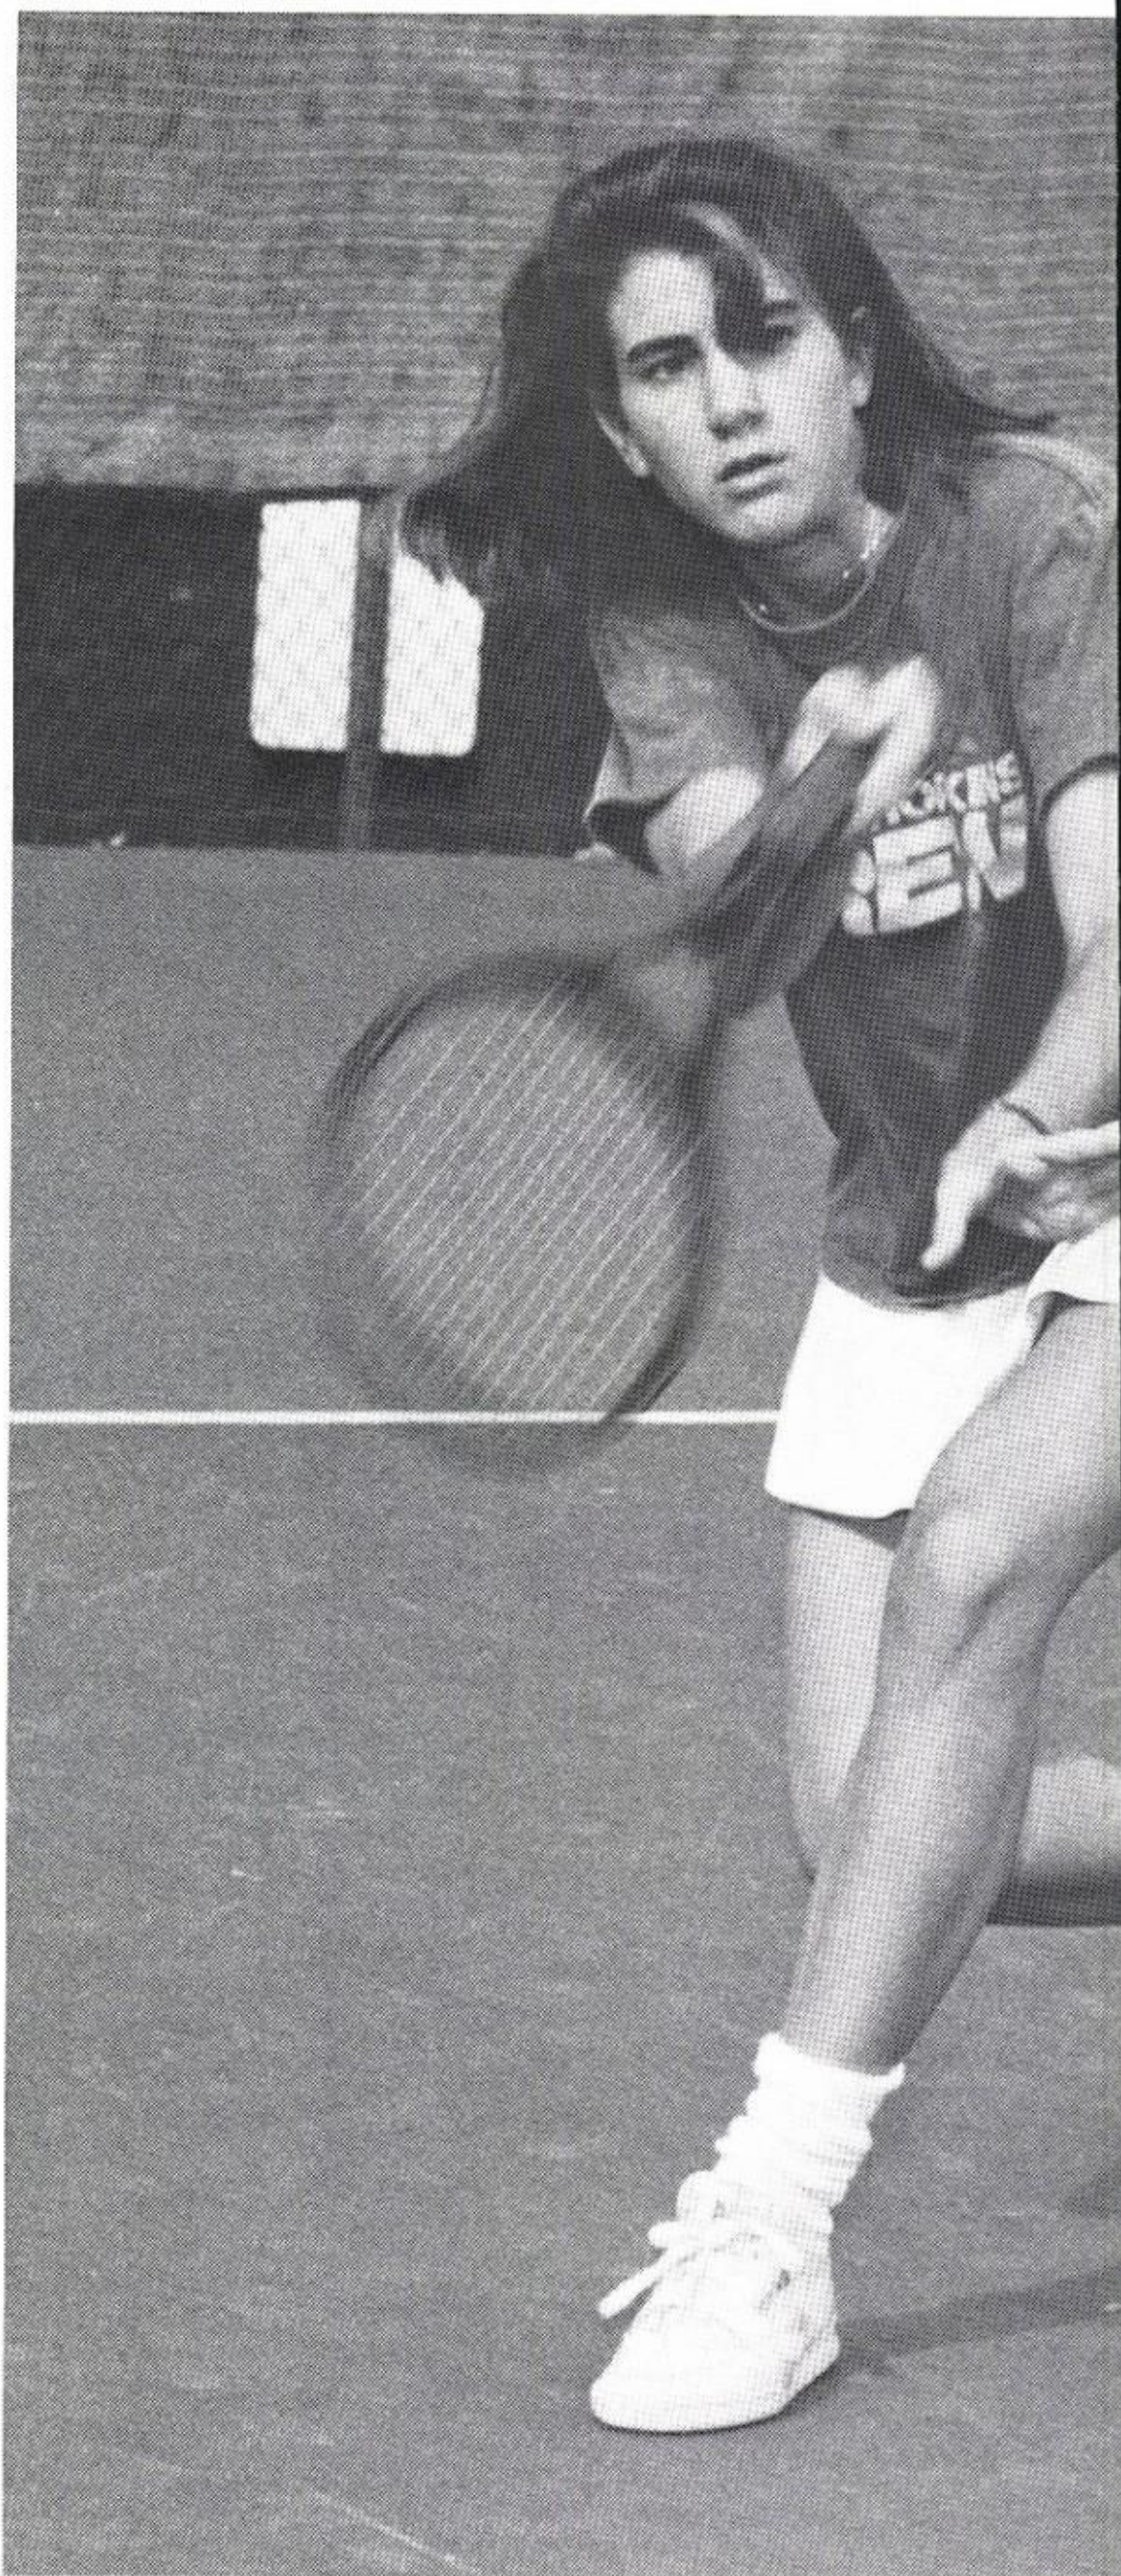

SMASHING SUCCESS

The 1986 Varsity Tennis Team had a difficult situation to overcome. With a new coach, Ms. Patti Hogan, and only a few returning players, we not only had to work on our game but also on becoming familiar with one another and working as an efficient team.

We succeeded in every area. The team had fun at matches while we won them. Our final record was excellent and we managed to gain 2nd place in the county tournament, missing the championship by only one point! While contributing to the excellence of the team as a whole, each member worked hard to reach her own individual goals. The combination of individual excellence and team spirit allowed the 1986 team to defeat all odds and to come out ahead.

'BEAM ME UP'

Even our FSA student, Kristina Nyberg, who competed on the balance beam for the Kent Place team, loves gymnastics! Also jumping into the swing of things, Annabelle Smith performed in all four events and received 6th All-Around in the N.J. Independent School Tournament. Suzi Burry, co-captain, was awarded 4th All-Around in the NJIS. As the organizers of this first Independent School Tournament, the KP team placed second.

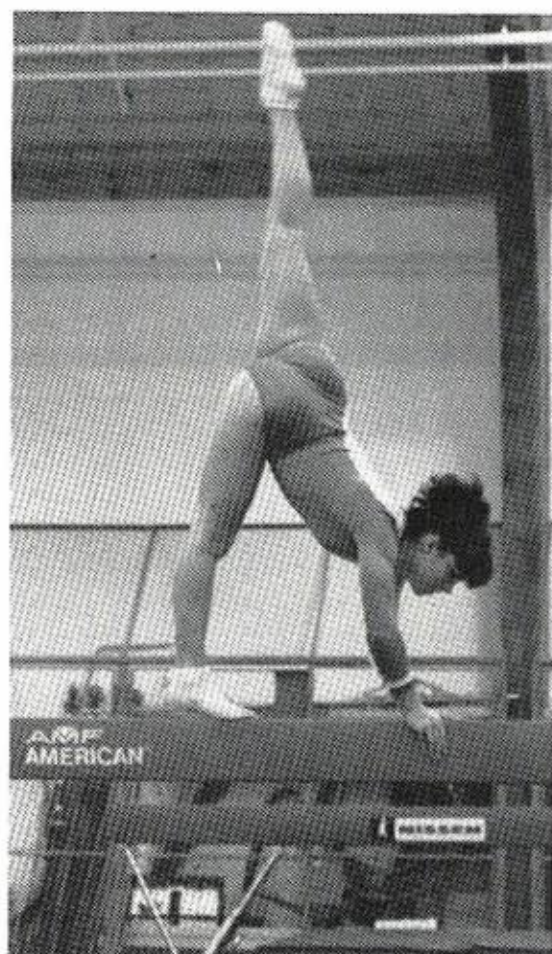

Returning seniors, Melanie Lewison and Nora Sheriff contributed their talents. Melanie's strength on the uneven bars and Nora's flexibility on the balance beam are their trademarks. Co-captain Melissa McCarthy performed skillfully to help the team. Smiling Nina Pyle added a special spark to her routines.

Each gymnast made significant improvement in her routine, but most important was the improvement of the team as a whole. They had their rough spots, but came out of the season with a deep sense of unity, friendship and accomplishment.

Building Up

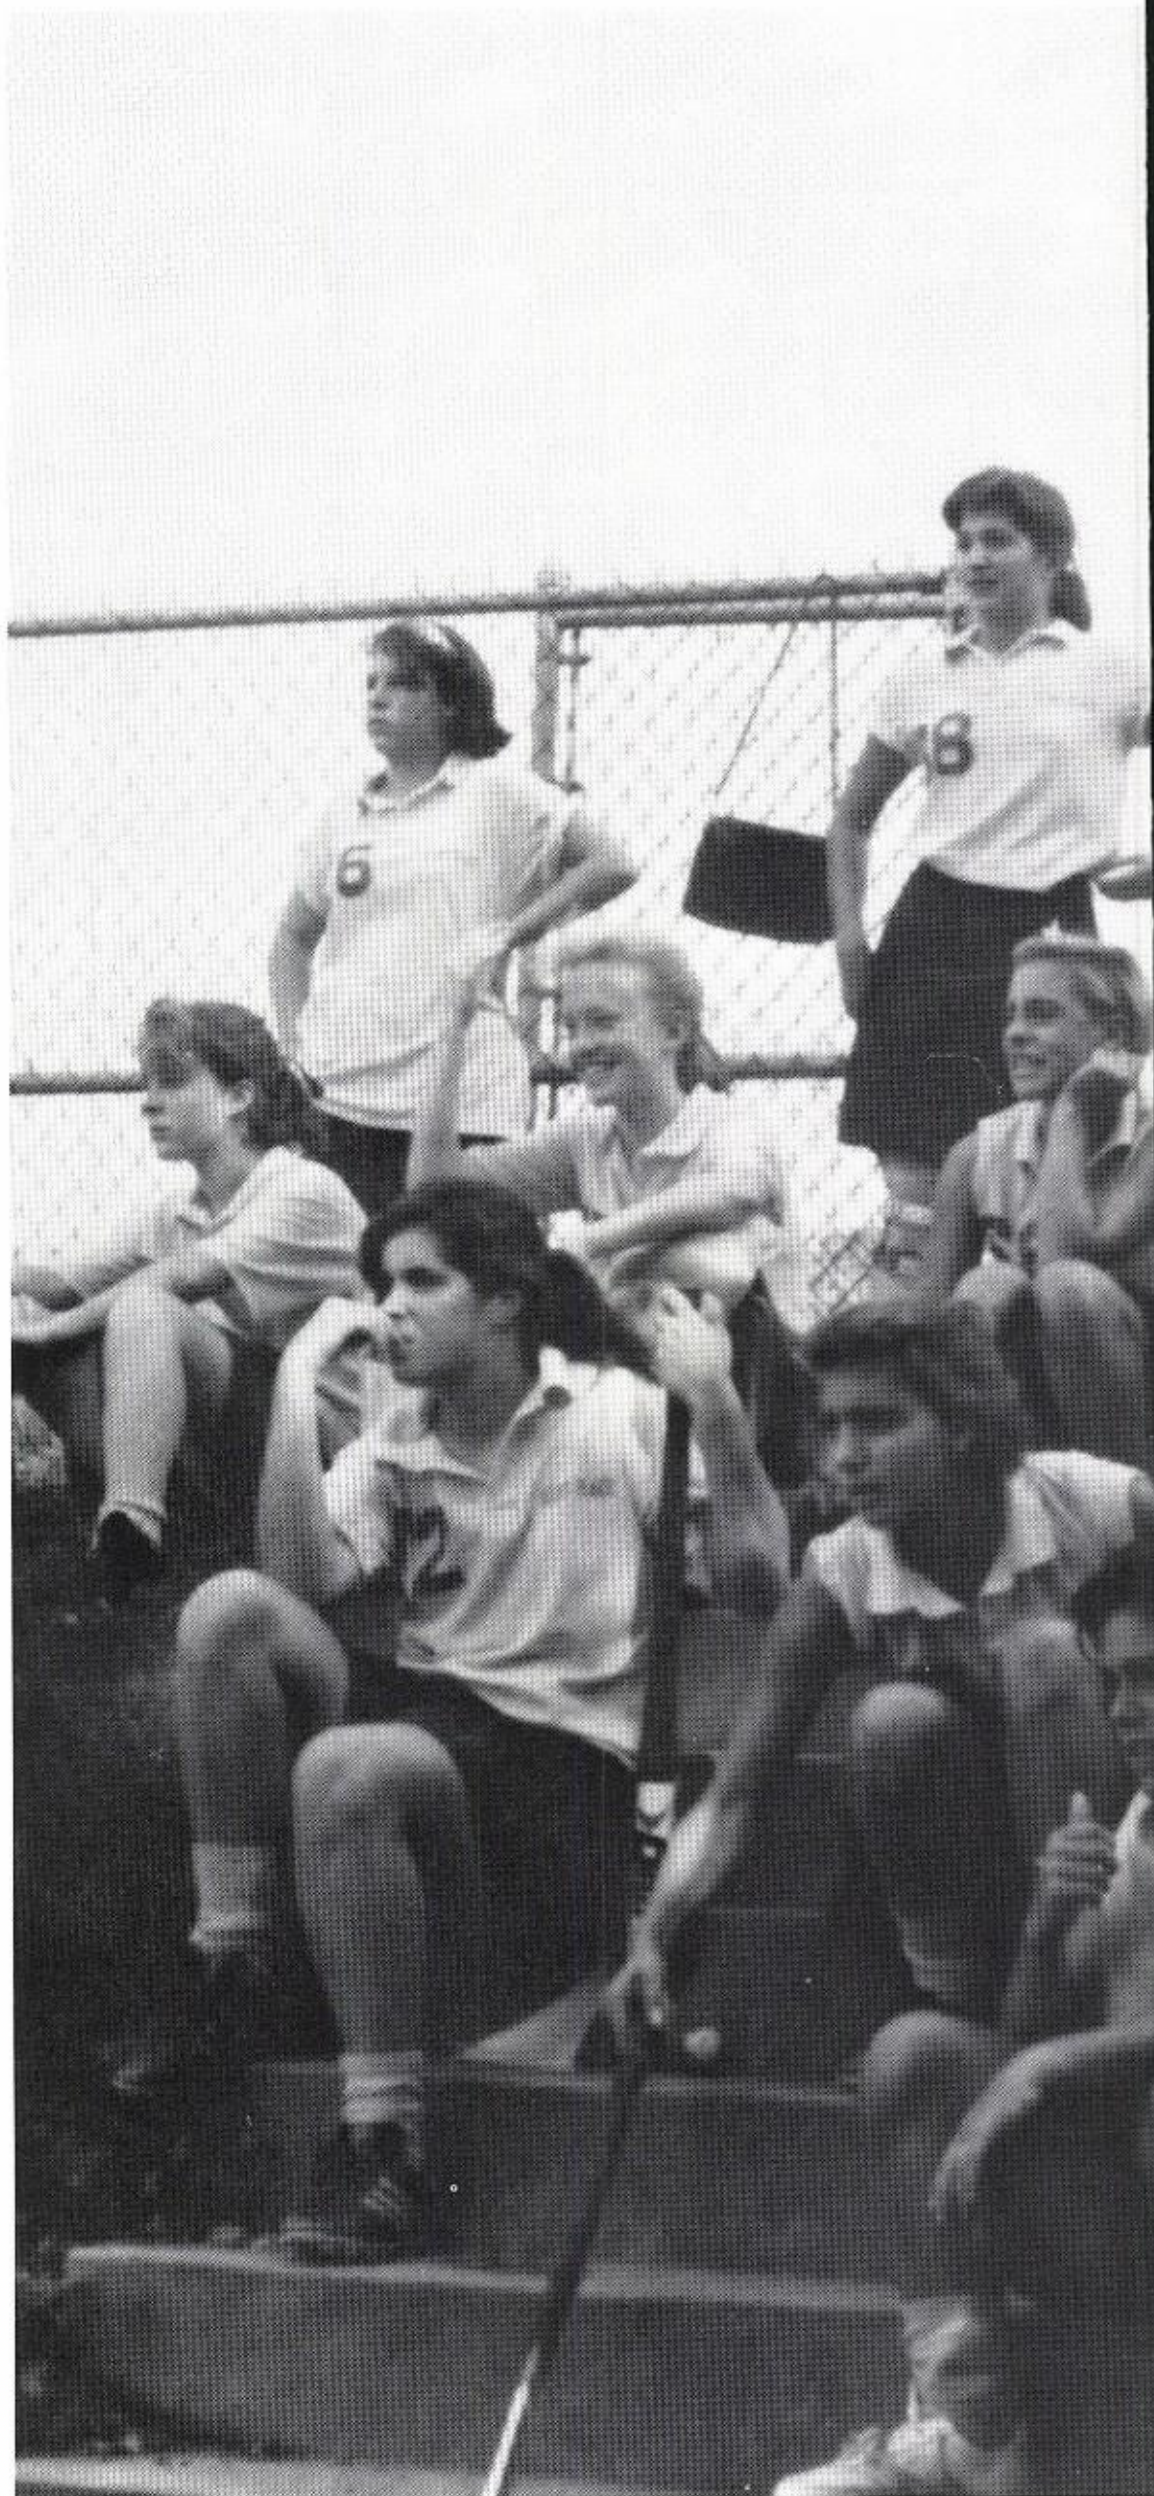

A BRIGHT FUTURE

Field Hockey season actually started in August this year, when the team journeyed to Trenton State College for a long, hard week, talking with British coaches and playing hockey. We ran wind sprints and suicides to get ourselves and our skills into shape for preseason on September 2nd. Practices were as difficult as games were exhilarating. Both initiated the many new and young players to spirited competition.

The tireless display of amazing athletic ability stands out this season. Parents, our faithful fans, and new sweatshirts increased team spirit and unity. Whether we won or lost, it was a team effort. Our record doesn't convey the months of work and effort put in by this young team. However, belief in the team prayer that "Those who have the will to win can never be beat" promises that the field hockey team will emerge victorious next season!

CONCENTRATION NEVER ENDS. Katie Hensler is still intent on the action even when off the field.

HOOPLA!

New coach Cheryl Wood kept the basketball team crouching low and shooting high. It was a "building year" for their team which had lost a few of their starters. Practices were still as grueling as ever, but a 6-12 record was the reward-not bad for a building season. In the dreary winter months, the Christmas Tournaments brightened team spirit. Coach Wood provided a smooth transition for the team, with one important difference in the practices-no more jumping rope or agility drills. Of course, these were sadly missed.

Instead, there was greater emphasis on "skill drills" rather than dribbling and ball handling. At the end of the season, K.P. entered the Independent Schools Tournament ranked eighth, and we advanced to the quarter finals where we lost to Mt. St. Dominick.

VOLLEYBALL

SERVE! SET! SPIKE!

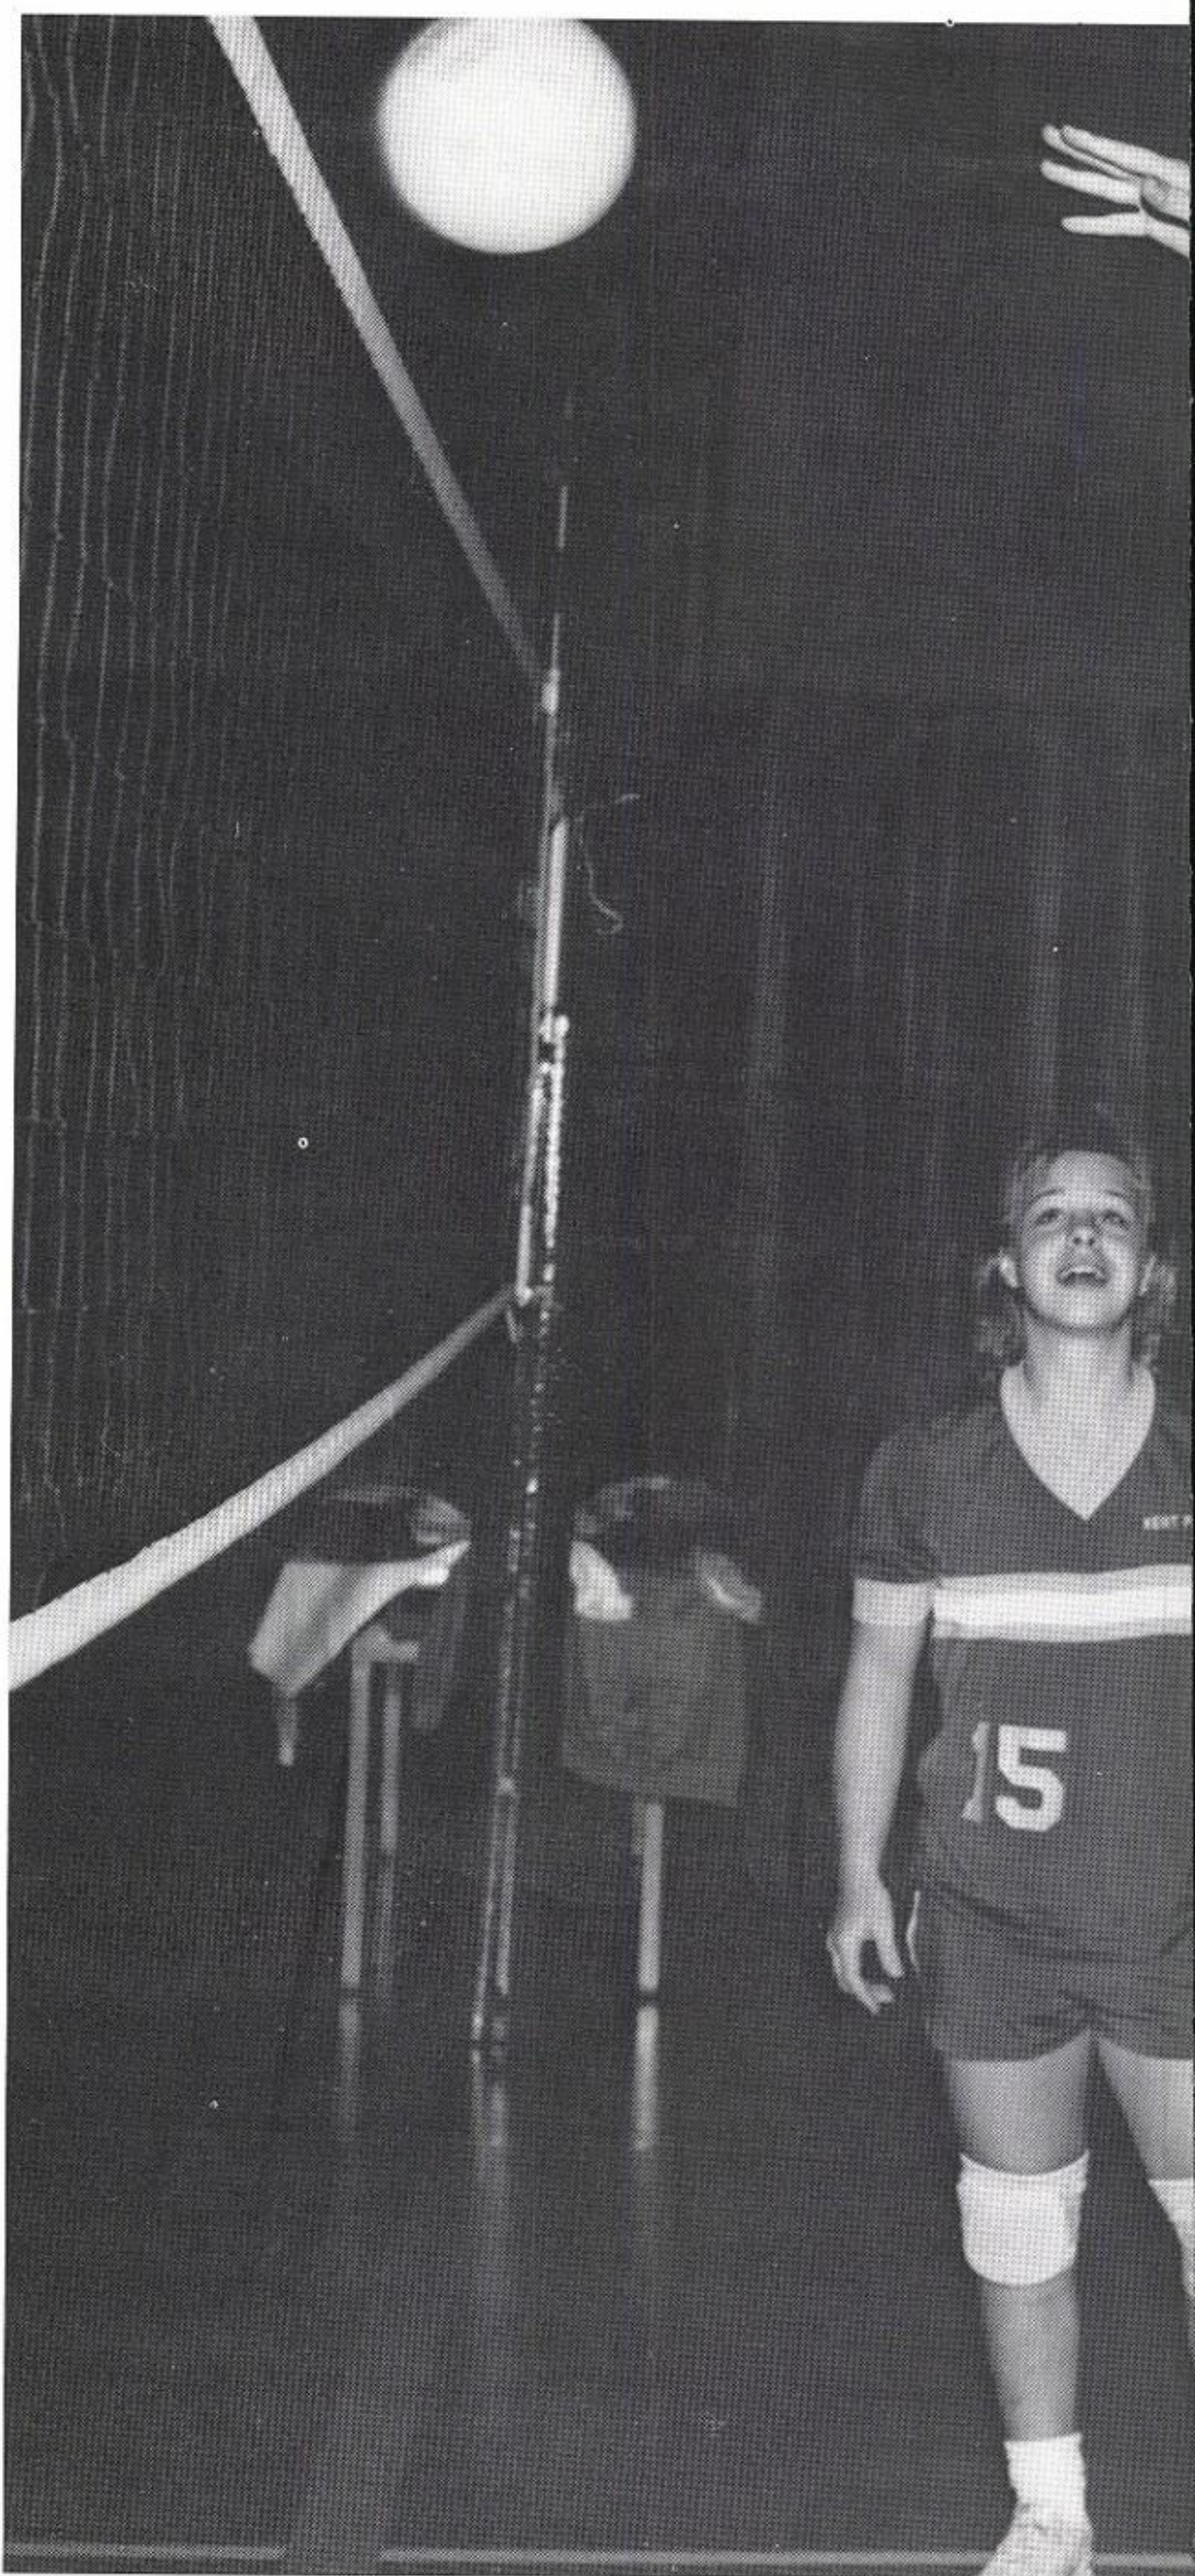

The Kent Place Volleyball team has had another successful year, managing once again to win the NJISAA Division A championship for 1987.

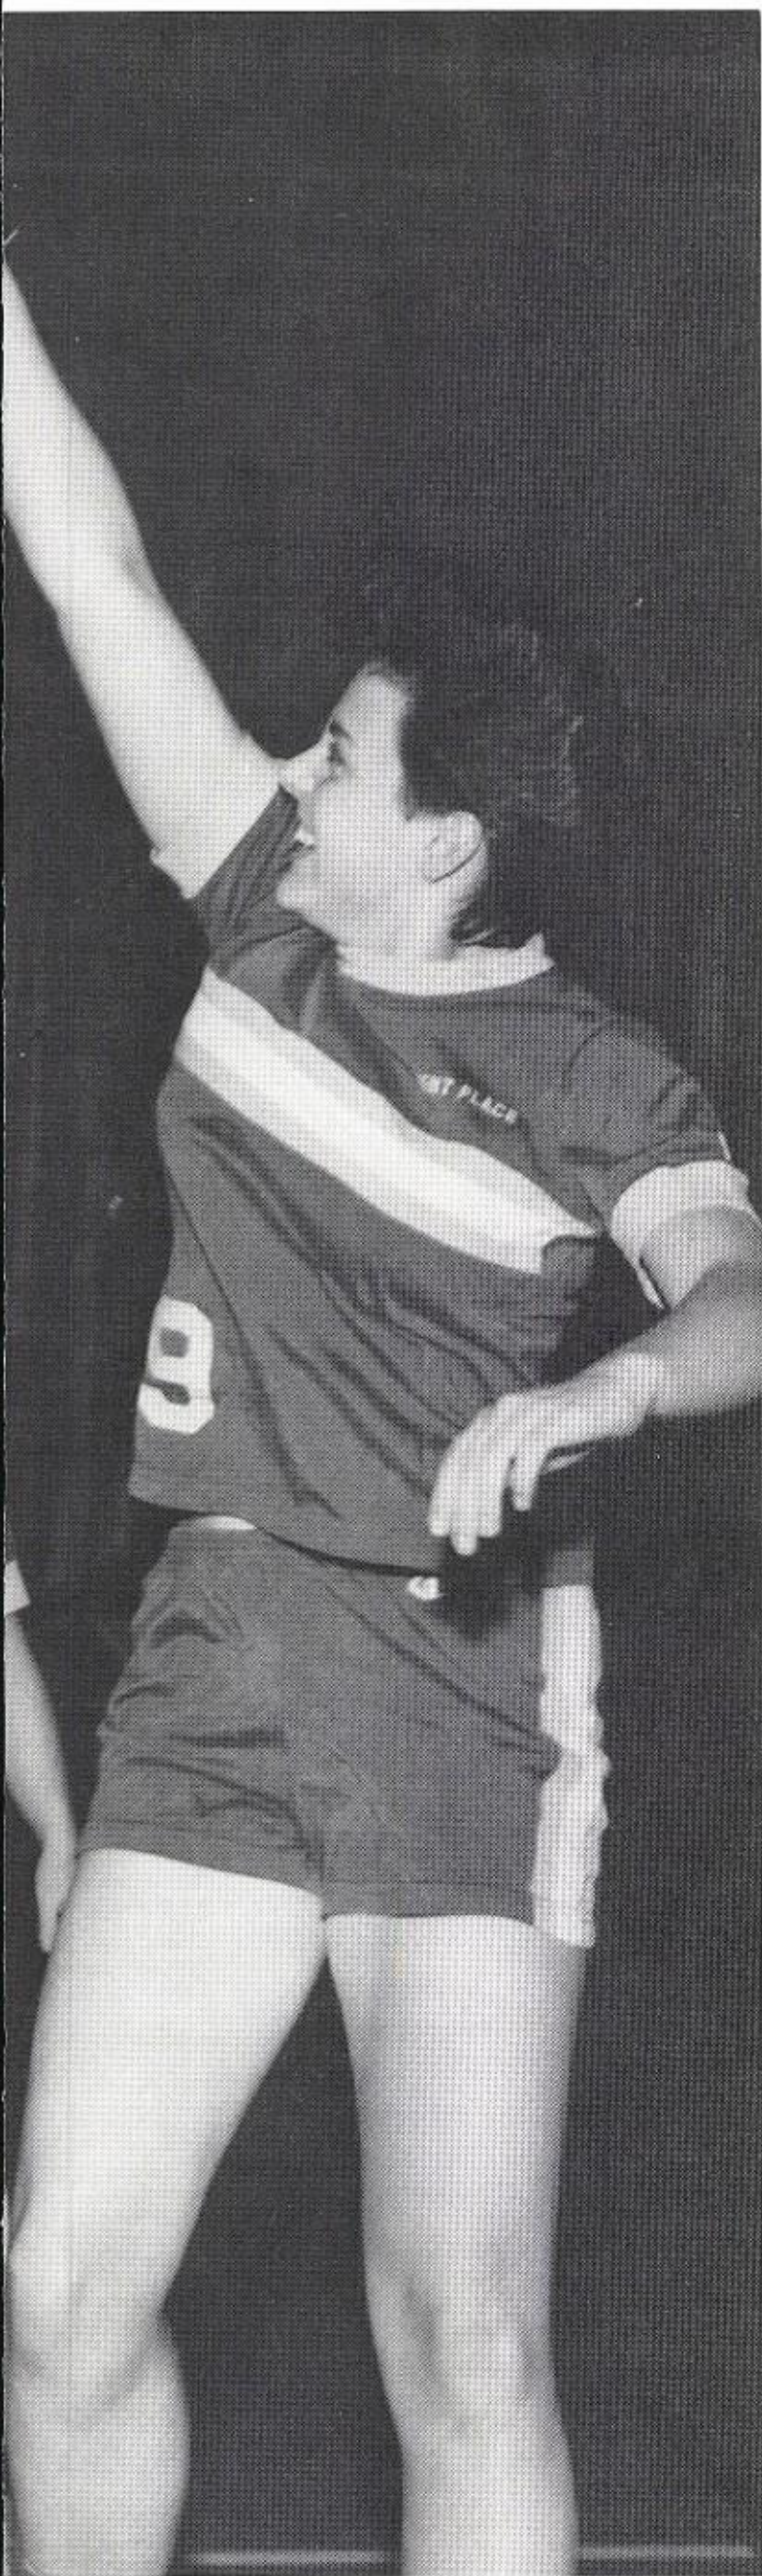

This season was special for two reasons. Replacing Coach Horner, Coach Tizzy Greulich maintained the high team spirit and concentration that has made the team number one. We also welcomed our FSA student, Stina Nyberg, who brought more than a little pizzaz to our practises and games.

Co-Captains Tori Brown and Cindy Buck were our fearless leaders, supported by senior veterans, Jenn Dorsey and Beth Jennings. The younger members hold much promise for 1988.

PITCHER THIS

Out on the softball field, we jolly green "Kent Place Pickles" tried our best to keep in the running . . . not to mention in the throwing and catching, too! Starting the new season with only three returning players, we were a fairly new and young team. Though we began without an experienced pitcher, we refused to be discouraged by the outcomes of our first games and we optimistically proceeded to do better as the season went on. Still, the most important part is that we "KP Pickles" know how to have fun out there, winning or losing, and that's what really counts - not the scores.

WHERE IS THE BALL? Sarah Keppler looks on slyly as Stacey Werner slugs away. PROCEED WITH CAUTION. Chris Bittner might just hurt someone with that powerful peg.

WHAT'S THE SCOOP?

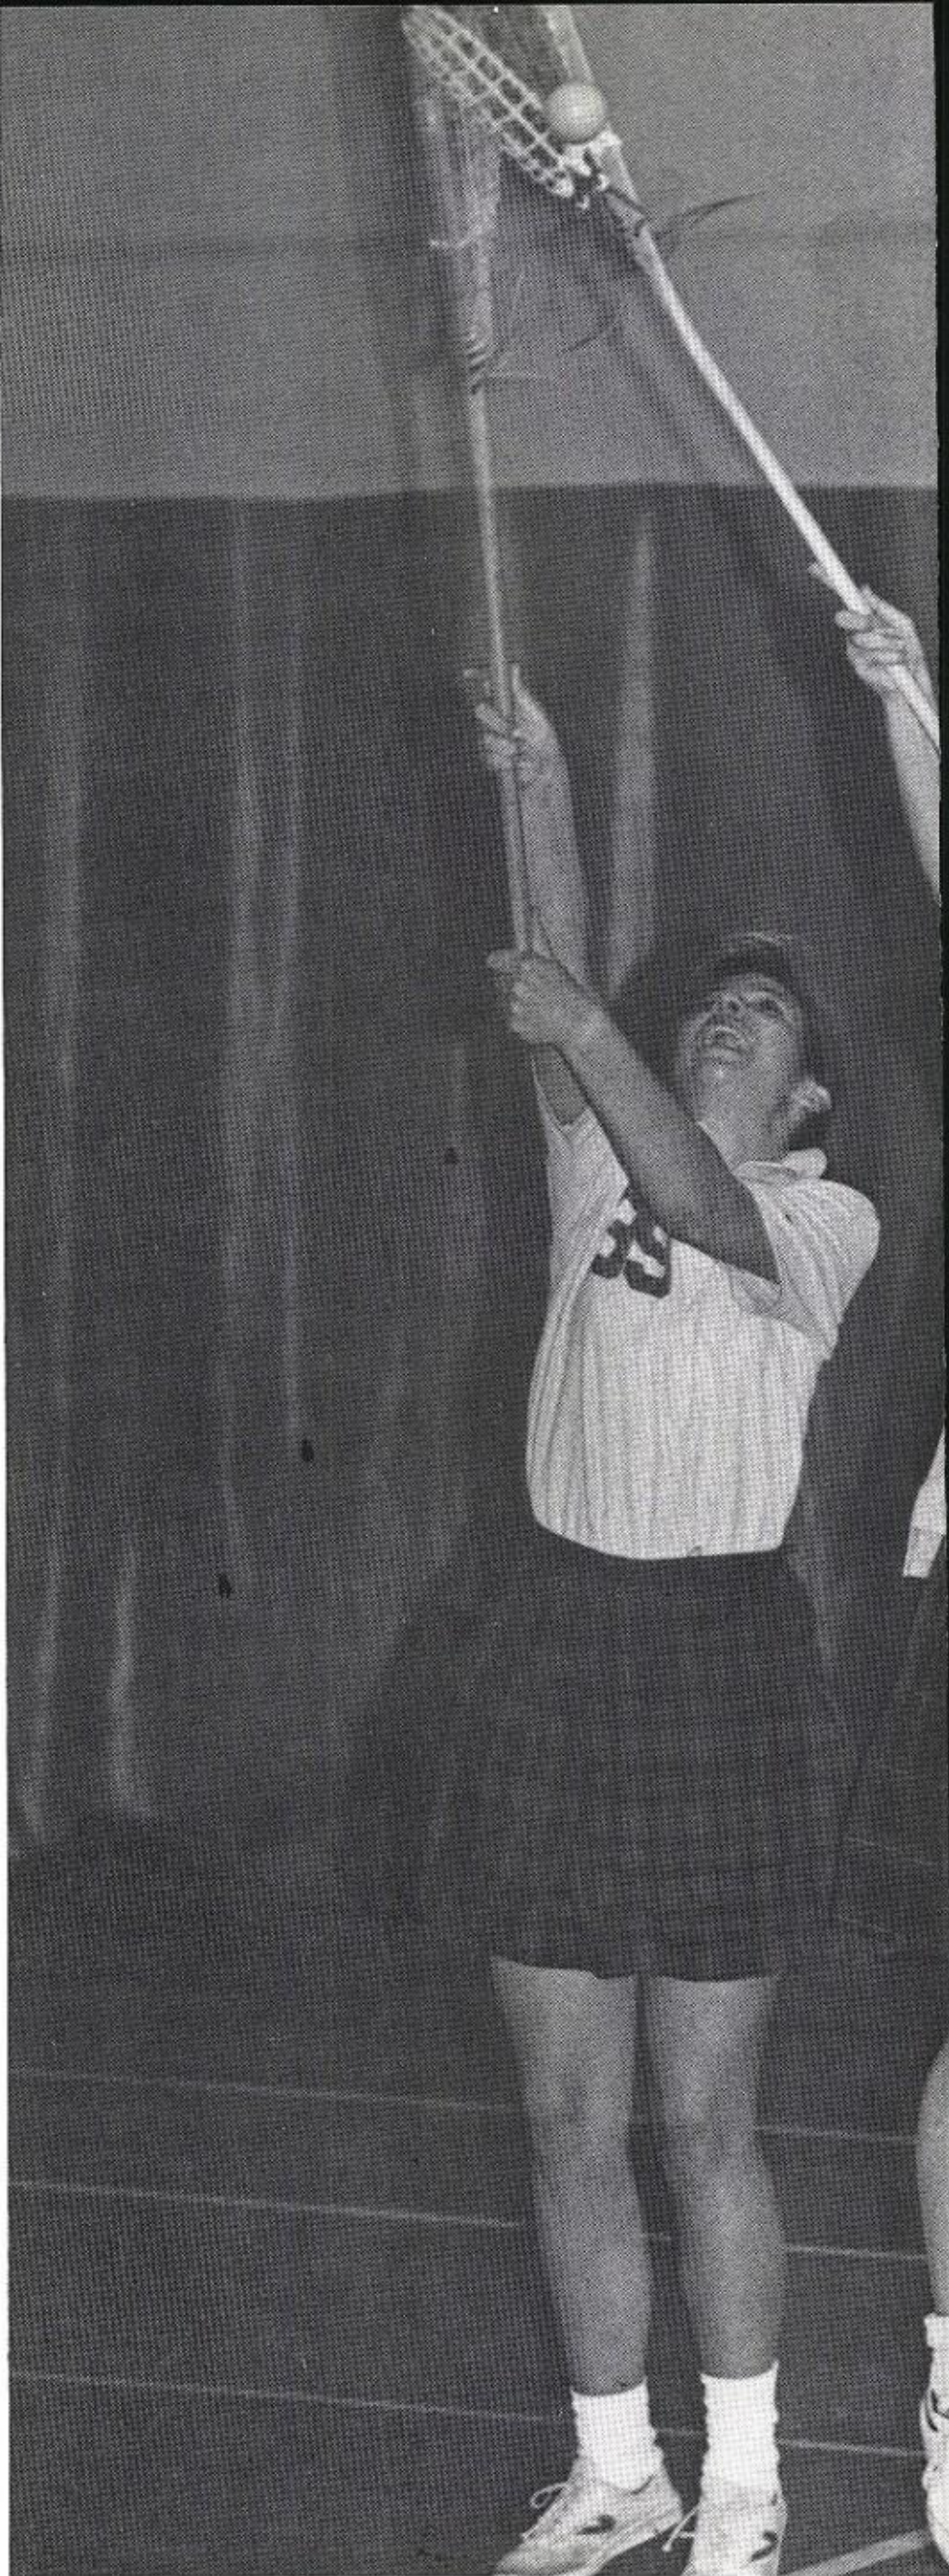

While our goals included mastering the basic lacrosse skills, coaches Hattersley and DelTufo also supervised rigorous conditioning sessions to get us in shape. "Suicides", 50-yard sprints, and endless runs around the campus proved to us that we were definitely not marathon material at the moment. Once the season began, however, we found ourselves amply prepared to face the competition.

Led by returning seniors Tori Brown, Suzi Burry and Stephanie Hodde, several juniors, sophomores and one freshman added strength to the varsity squad. The J. V. was comprised of many new players supported by a few returning ones.

Our determination to play well, win, and ultimately make it to the playoffs has motivated us and made all the "suicides" seem more tolerable.

FACES IN THE CROWD

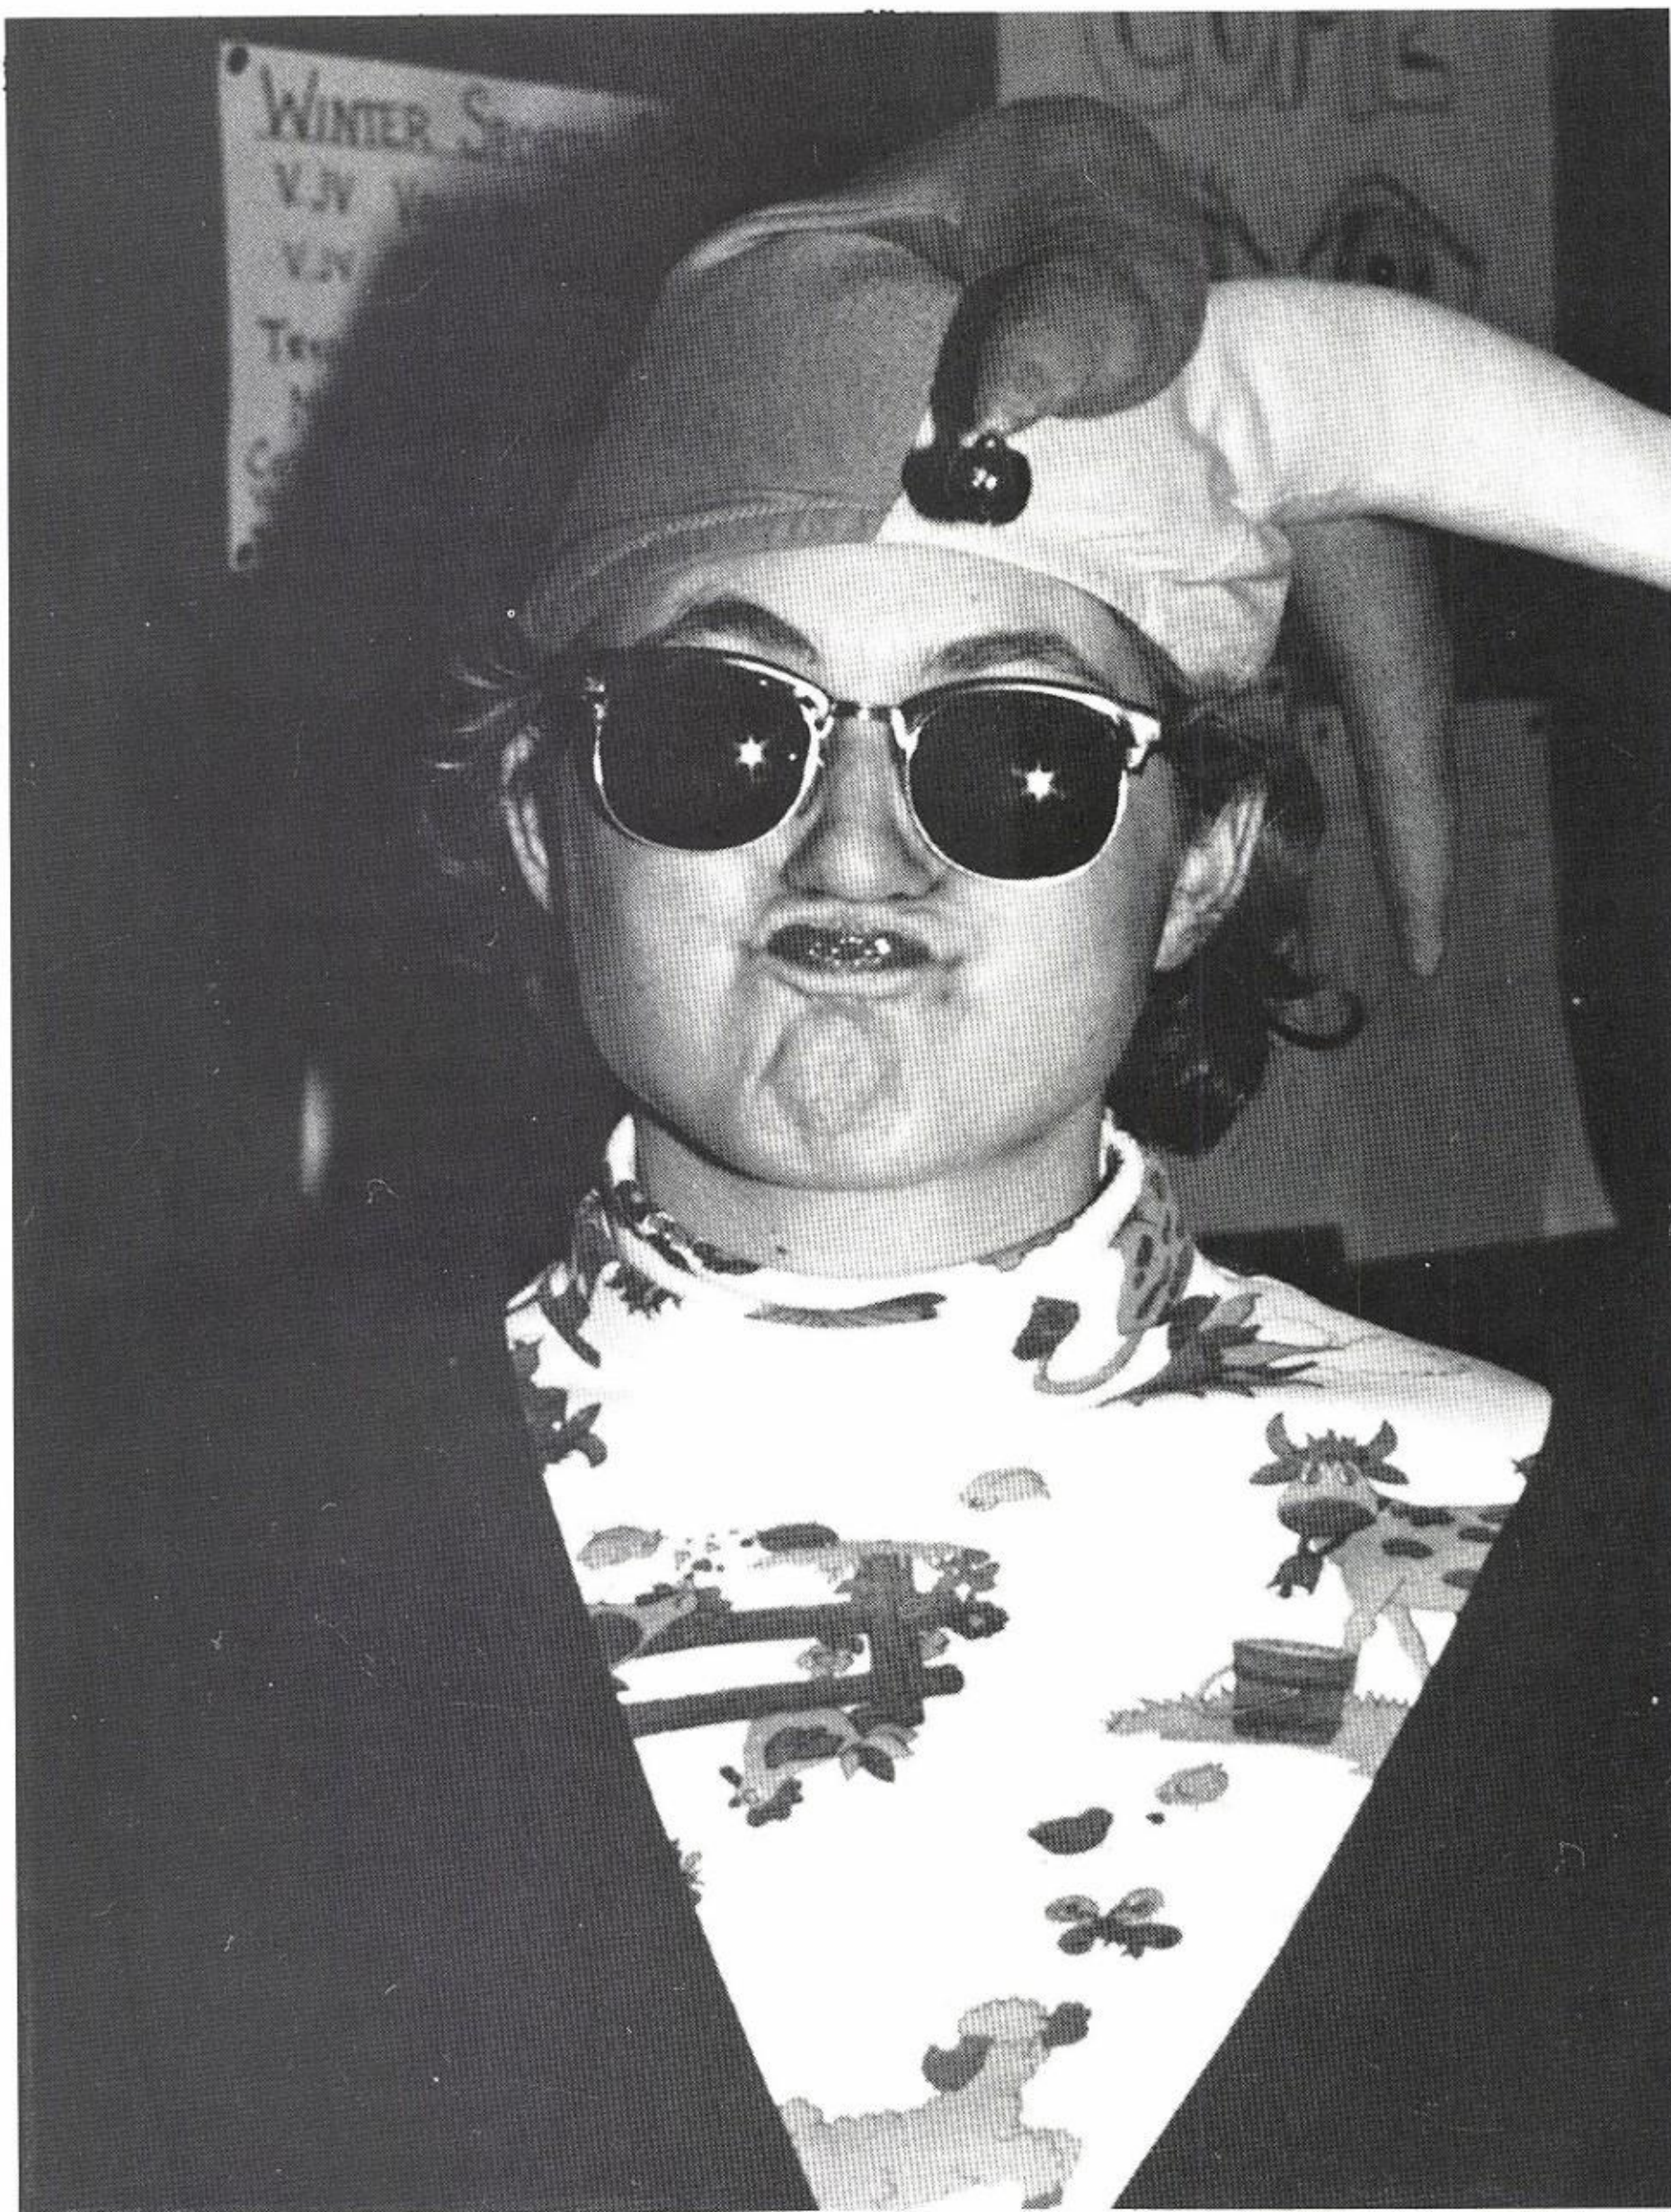

Kent Place turns out to support its team.

Individuals-what an understatement

One look at K.P. girls will tell you that, in every person, there is a different ambition, sense of style and personality. Deeper though, the sense of belonging to the family is strong, because there is something that binds us together. That something could be truly caring teachers, lunches on the lawn, or just smiles and hugs between caring friends.

The different classes are linked by the varied friendships and activities at KP. Big Sister-Little Sister parties bring seniors and freshmen closer as the seniors impart their infinite wisdom (the best way to cut a class or to deal with a teacher's bad mood). Clubs and sports also link the classes. The Freshman Jamboree, Sophomore Special, and Junior Trip to D.C. bring the classes together. By senior year, they have earned their position as leaders of the school. The sharing of fun, advice and even tears between individuals at KP is something that only a real family can provide.

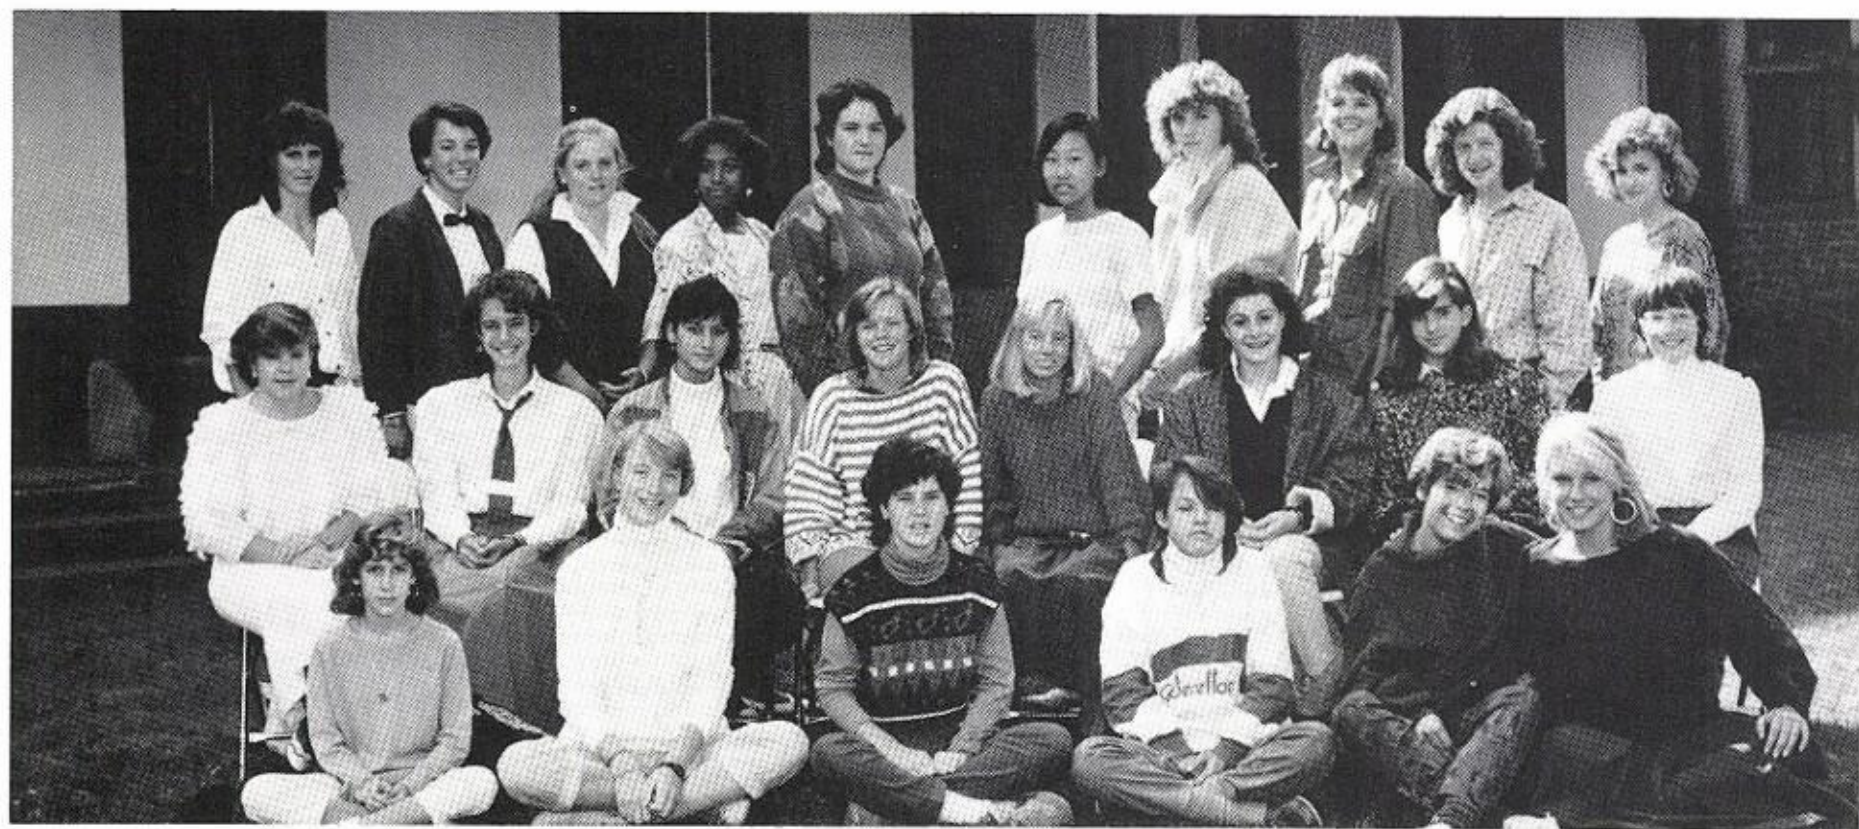

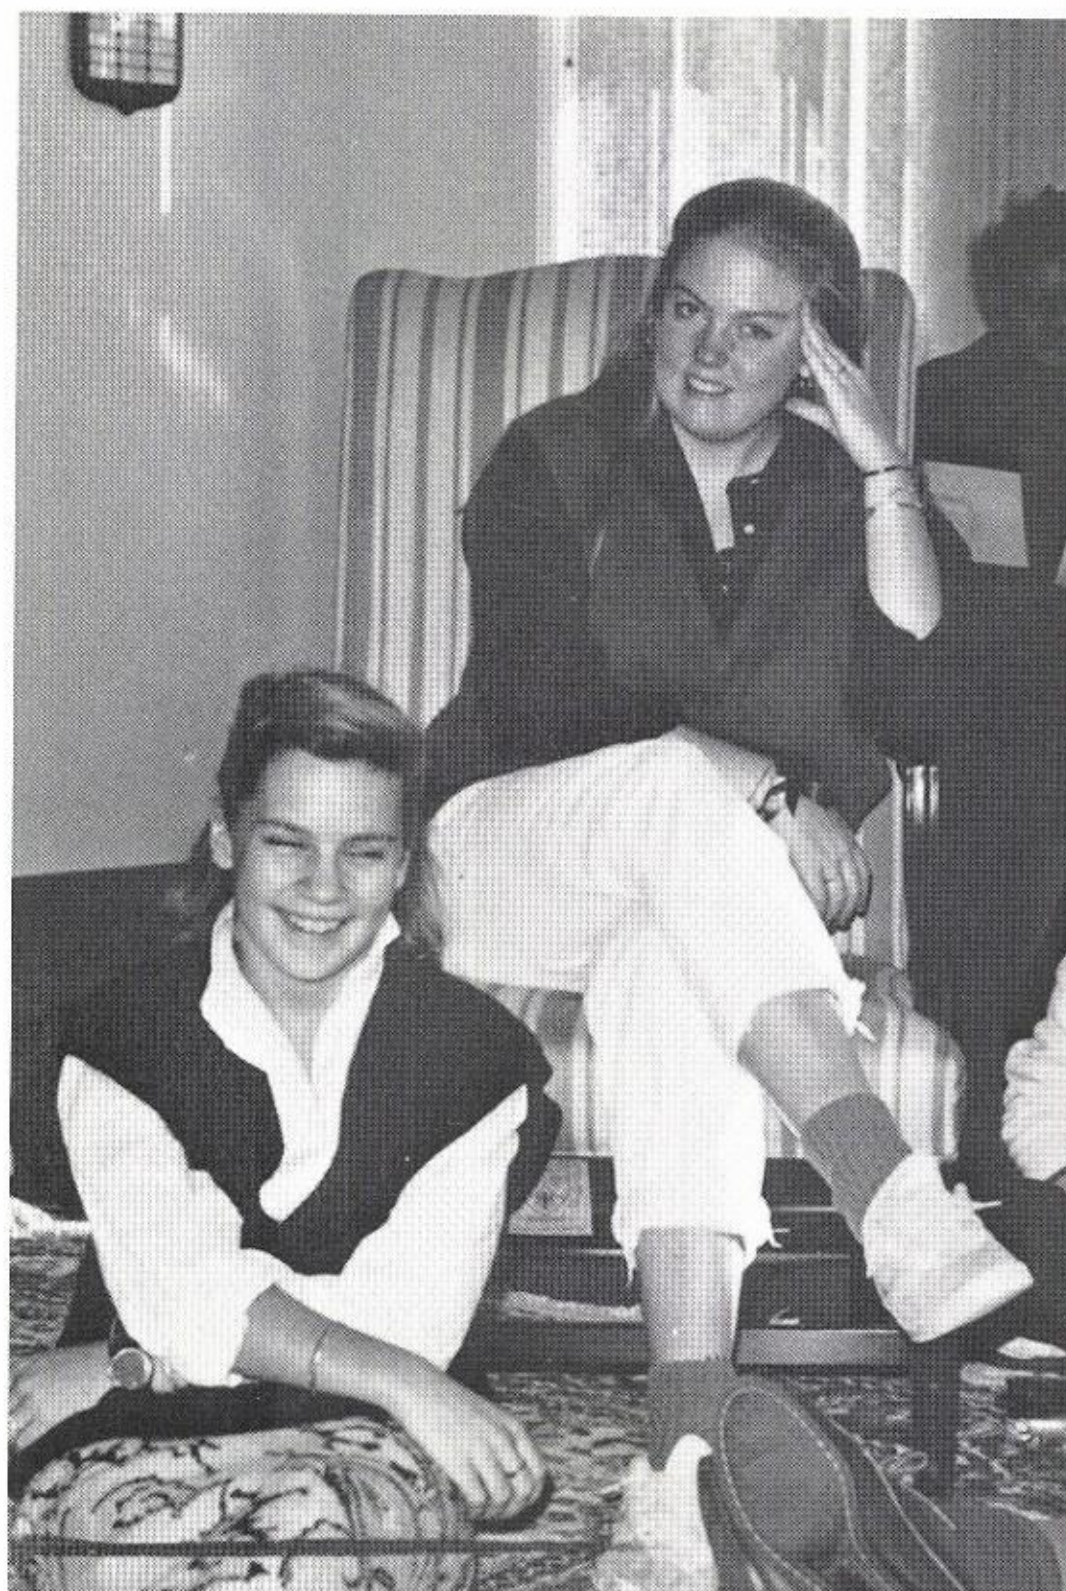

"Surely you jest!" Joking around, Karen Lindner's kindergarden playfulness shines through!

There are three phrases in the freshman lounge that are ever-present: "Oh no! I forgot-", "Look at all my homework!!", and "Does anyone have anything I can eat?!?". This year is a lot of work, but it has been fun too. The Jamboree, the bake sales, and "Red and Green Day", to name a few, put smiles on the faces of the tired, hungry and overworked, so they say, freshmen. One lounge alert prompted a frenzy of vacuuming, dusting, and general pandemonium-not a new development. The usual atmosphere is happy and ready for fun, although the occasional "Oh God, I just KNOW I failed", downhearted face appears. This year has gone well. If only they could take down those embarrassing pictures in the front hall . . .

The tired the hungry, and the over-worked

EAGERLY AWAITING MORNING ASSEMBLY, J.W. Connolly, Cory Bridwell, Katie Johnson, Maren Eisenstat, Sabrina Evans and Quemeca Lewis exchange last night's gossip. TEST OF TRUST-Jen Grossas, senior Christy Remey, Liz Kanner, Anne Kelligrew, Cory Bridwell and Julie Fischl come together at the Freshman Jamboree.

SOPHOMORES

SUGAR HIGH: Tanda Tucker starts the day off with a lollipop.

Our sophomore class has been more than just a group of "wise fools". With scenes from Tennessee Williams' A Streetcar Named Desire, endless readings in the book Mrs. Byrnes christened "McKai" and "wrapping up" our class's fund raiser, we have been too busy to get into much trouble. This year we worked hard-for some of us it was the first encounter with Mrs. Britton's English tests. We also had a lot of fun as we flaunted the fact that we were no longer freshmen. Now we have next year to look forward to when we can flaunt the fact that we are no longer "wise fools" but upperclassmen.

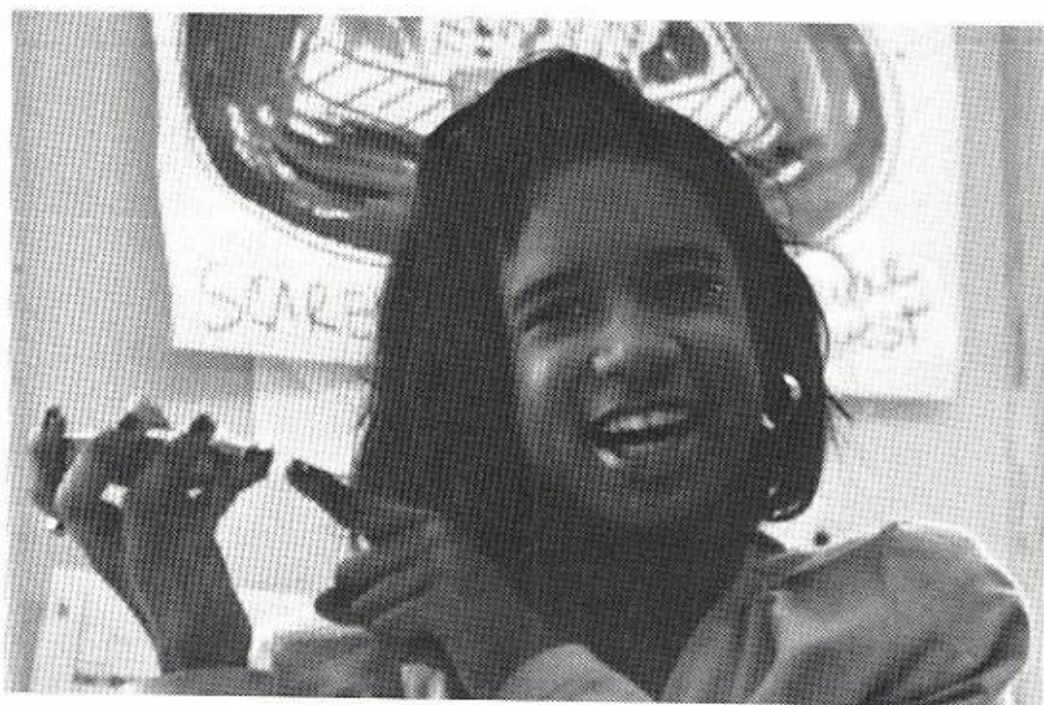

A WORKING PARTNERSHIP: Melanie Edwards and Vanessa King team up in the Bio Lab.

NOT JUST A BUNCH OF WISE FOOLS

THE BAGEL A LA K.P: Chermayne Holloway presents the no-time-to-cat-mad-dash-for-class-ultimate breakfast substitute.

FIRST ROW: Sarah Humphries, Melanie Edwards, Dedra Howard, Chermayne Holloway, Cantesi Collier, Stephanie Thornton, Jennifer Hagmann. SECOND ROW: Laura Peron, Suzanne Lopez, Casey Anderson, Alexis Belladonna, Pam Buehler, Kara MacKenzie, Sarah Shailer, Phoebe Sade, Martha Fanning, Amy Visceglia. BACK ROW: Joanna Henning, Emily Fischbein, Sarah Zimmerman, Jennifer Goldberg, Betsy Gomperz, Julie Fleischmann, Jenny Schnitzer, Vanessa King, Julie Roscoe, Annie Simpson, Sarah Casey.

CANDYLAND. Heidi Herms and Cynthia Connell anticipate big sales.

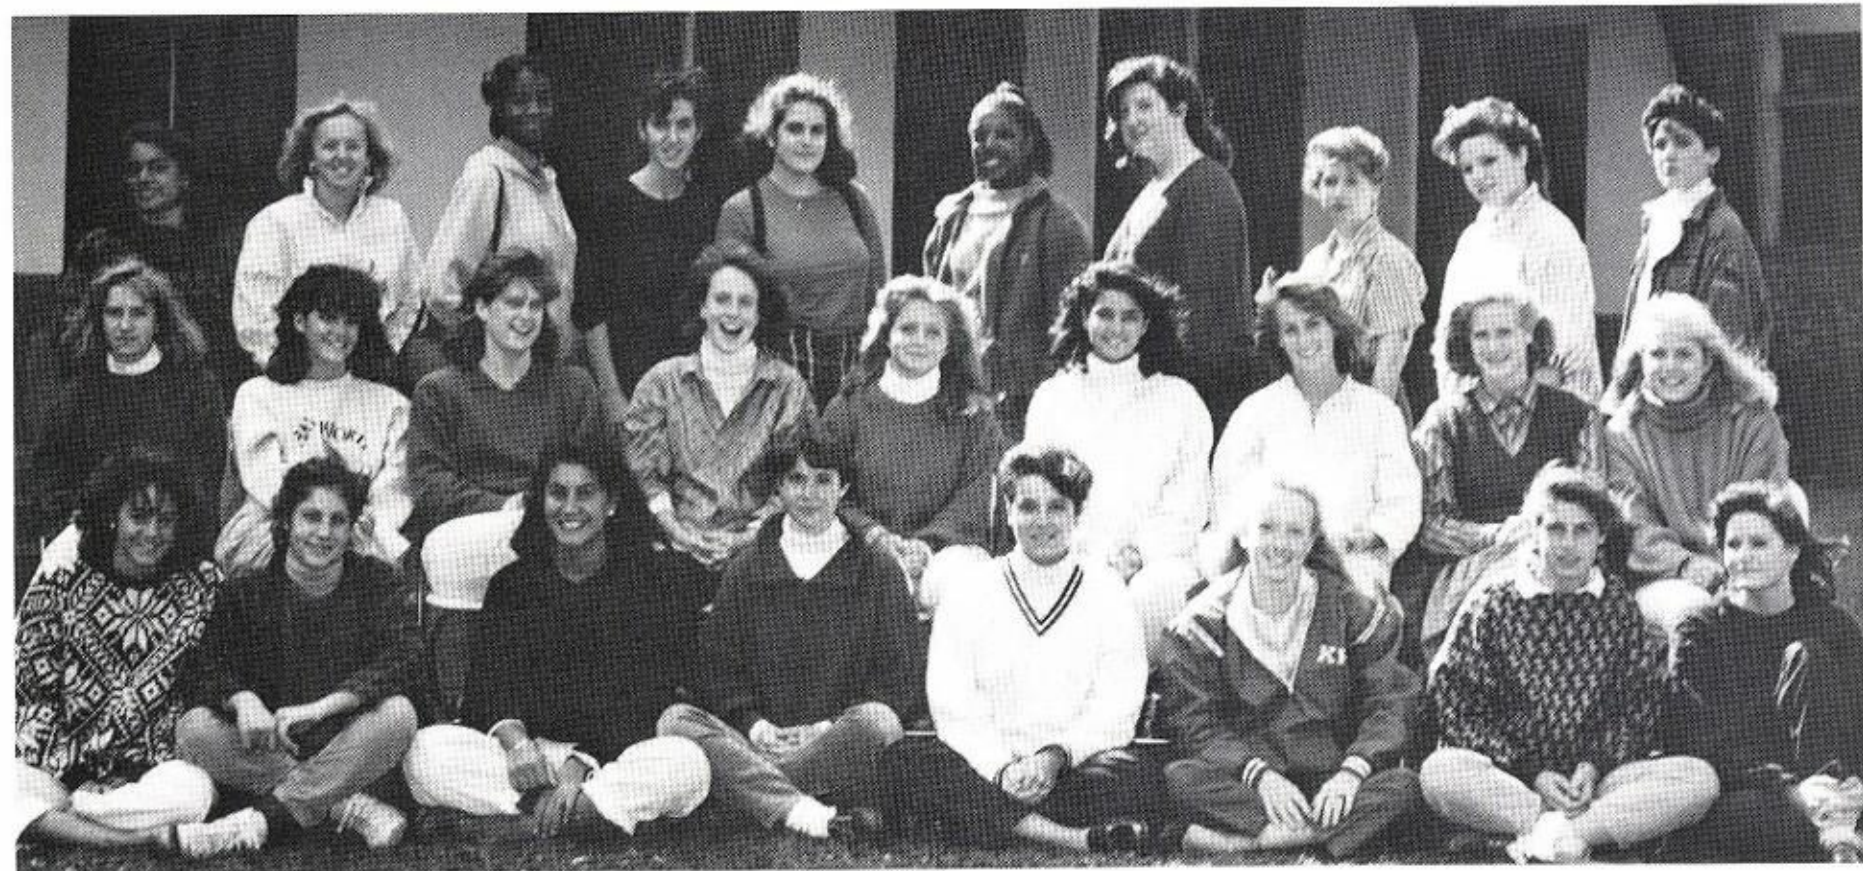

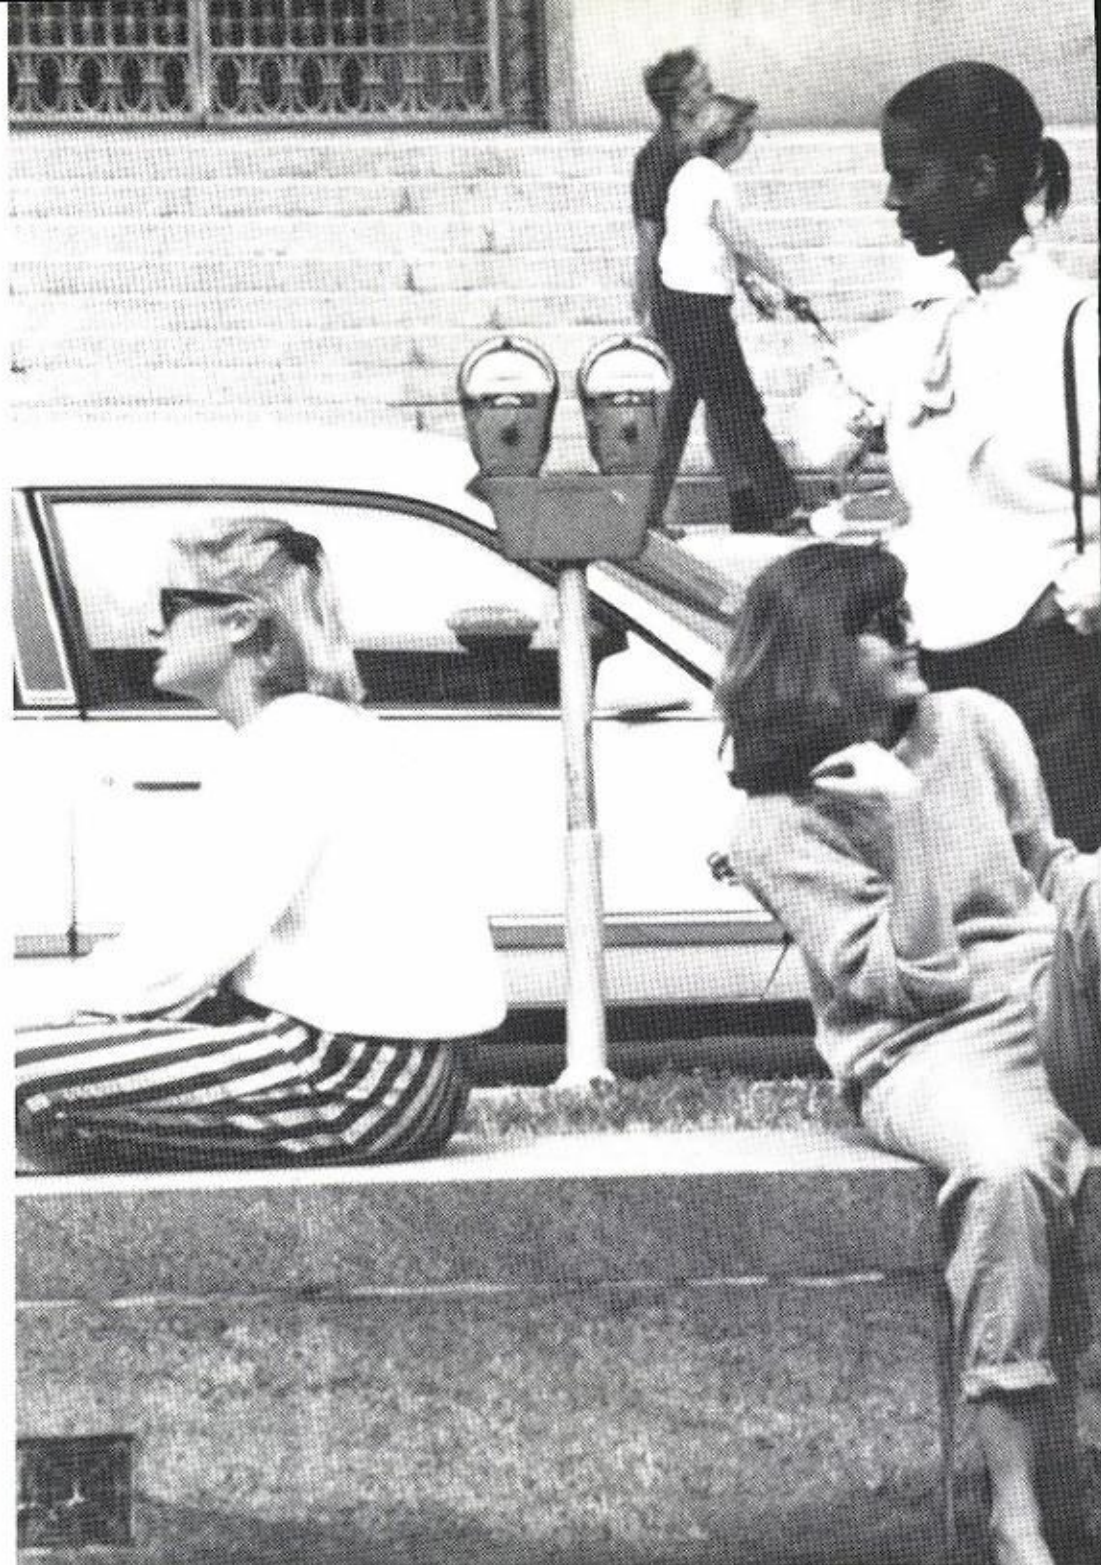

JUNIORS

As Junior year progressed, we realized that all the horror stories we'd been told were actually true. Nobody was sure whether we were sporting sunglasses to imitate Tom Cruise or to hide baggy eyes. We were prepared to handle anything that came our way. Then we met Dr. Cole's and Mrs. Ryan's English exams!

New college advisors announced that yes, we had to take S.A.T.'s if we planned to advance to "higher education." Forgetting the pleasures of sleep, we became addicted to anything with caffeine to finish the papers for which Junior year is famous.

Our mascot, the prom and senior year approaches. Now college is not that elusive a goal. Soon there will be time for some R and R . . . well, possibly.

WATER FIGHT Margot Fell, Cristin O'Hara, Vanessa Whitehead, and Phoebe Schimpf relax in D.C. after late-night adventures at HoJo's.

FRONT ROW: Aimee Bosquet, Lexie Galesi, Lara Bonomo, Colleen Dwyer, Aimee Feuer, Chrissy Lapp, Beth Datoli, Cristin O'Hara.
SECOND ROW: Nicola Couchman, Betsy Johannesen, Beth McDonnell, Emilie Fesq, Gretchen Ferrar, Lisa Hertz, Carter Flegal, Margot Fell, Bonnie Gerhardt.
BACK ROW: Meena Patel, Jennifer Kopf, Vanessa Whitehead, Karen Hein, Diane Merians, Tuesday Thomas, Catherine Bramhall, Laura Nicinski, Alexis Gibson, Gina Cramp.

TV distractions Bruce Willis, Cosby and Family Ties

NEW JUNIORS Margot Fell and Aimee Bosquet enjoy the first day of school. LAST MINUTE CRAMMING. Stephanie Wilkerson reviews her list of everything she has to do.

Let's dance in style
 Let's dance for a while
 Heaven can wait,
 We're only watching the skies
 Hoping for the best
 But expecting the worst
 Are you going to drop the bomb or not?
 Let us die young or let us live forever
 We don't have the power
 But we never say never
 Sitting in a sandpit,
 Life is a short trip
 The music's for the sad men
 Can you imagine when this race is won?
 Turn our golden faces into the sun
 Praising our leaders,
 We're getting in tune
 The music's played by the madmen
 Forever young, I want to be forever young
 Do you really want to live forever
 Forever-and ever
 Some are like water,
 Some are like the heat
 Some are a melody and some are the beat
 Sooner or later, they all will be gone
 Why don't they stay young?
 It's so hard to get old without a cause
 I don't want to perish like a fading horse
 Youth's like diamonds in the sun
 And diamonds are forever
 So many adventures couldn't happen today
 So many songs we forget to play
 So many dreams swinging out of the blue
 We'll let them come true
 Forever young

And as far as I'm concerned
I'm glad I got the chance to say
That I do believe I love you.
And if I should ever go away
Well then close your eyes
And try to feel the way we do today
And then if you can remember
Keep smiling, Keep shining
Knowing you can always count on me, for sure
That's what friends are for.
For good times and bad times
I'll be on your side for evermore . . .
Well you came and opened me
And now there's so much more I see.
And so by the way, I thank you.
And then, for the times when we're apart
Well then close your eyes
And you know these words are coming from my heart.
And then if you can remember,
Keep smiling, Keep shining
Knowing you can always count on me, for
sure
That's what friends are for.

"It doesn't happen all at once," said the Skin Horse. "You become. It takes a long time. That's why it doesn't happen to people who break easily, or have sharp edges, or who have to be carefully kept. Generally, by the time you are Real, most of your hair has been loved off, and your eyes drop out and you get loose in the joints and very shabby. But these things don't matter at all, because once you are real you can't be ugly, except to people who don't understand."

There was no God in his heart, he knew; his ideas were still in riot; there was ever the pain of memory; the regret for his lost youth-yet the waters of disillusion had left a deposit on his soul, responsibility and a love of life, the faint stirring of old ambitions and unrealized dreams.

I know myself, he cried, but that is all.

Baby Child as a man
as a living grain of sand . . .
Sitting on the ever changing shore,
Greeting the sunrise . . .
Picked up upon the Gypsy women,
Hair Flaming Night as ravens even sleep .

Tambourine complimenting her chant and
choice of graces,
And Love Her God . . .

I actually looked upon her on my right .

And Baby Child then secondly looked his left to eye
and 11 or 12 women, men and little ones approached:
They clad in their masters wish;
White robes swaying to be baptized.
These two worlds crossed each other in front of me, when Afterwards, Baby Child sipped a heartful of ocean . . .
Spat out the waste and walked upon the
New Day.

And see the great Achilles, whom we knew.

Tho' much is taken, much abides; and tho,
We are not now that strength which in the old

Crisp bread. I have never eaten so much crisp bread as now when I am here in the U.S. Partly, I buy incredibly expensive "Swedish Crisp Bread", partly I appeal to uncomprehending friends at home to send proviant. Right now I am desperately waiting for a package of crisp bread which seems to have disappeared somewhere over—or in—the Atlantic ocean.

I fancied that I was anything but typically Swedish, but the longer I am here, the more Swedish I feel.

When I was in Chicago and saw the Tribune Tower, which has stones from other famous buildings walled in, I trotted forward and patted the stone from the Stockholm Town Hall despite that a) it was probably a fake and b) I never pat the Stockholm Town Hall when I usually pass by it daily.

PIGGY IN THE MIRROR

Shapes in the drink like christ cracks in the pale blue wall i'm walking slowly and quickly but always away
twisting twisting to the floor flowers in your mouth and the same dry song
the routine from laughter land
16 white legs and a row of teeth
i watch you in secrecy
your dying for the hope is gone from here we go nowhere again i'm trapped in my face and i'm changing-
too much i can't climb out the way i fell in jump with me
for that old forgotten dance
the midnight sun will burn you up your life is cold
your life is hard
your life is too much for words these occasions are such a relief another point another view to send we start to talk
and its all so safe
i feed you in my dreams
footsteps on a wire
high above my head
the stain reveals my real intention
i'm the waiting beast
i'm the twisted nerve
as i dance, dance
back to the body in my bed
look at the piggy
piggy in the mirror

"Let's frighten the dragons," I said to Pooh.
 "That's right," said Pooh to Me.
 "I'm not afraid," I said to Pooh,
 And I held his paw and I shouted "shoo!
 Silly old dragons!" -and off they flew.
 "I wasn't afraid," said Pooh, said he,
 "I'm never afraid with you."
 So wherever I am, there's always Pooh,
 There's always Pooh and Me.
 "What would I do?" I said to Pooh
 "If it wasn't for you," and Pooh said: "True,
 It isn't much fun for One, but Two
 Can stick together," says Pooh, says he.
 "That's how it is," says Pooh.

Oh - don't live up
To your given roles
There's more inside you
That you won't show
But you keep it hidden
Just like everyone
You're scared to show you care
-It'll make you vulnerable
So you wear that ghost
Around you for disguise
But there's no need
Just 'cos it's all we've known
There's more inside you
That you haven't shown.

CALIBAN

Our hopes of finding a mascot were few
I don't think we knew what we'd have to go through.

We searched the world over, from deserts to seas.

We never dreamed that he'd be found in the trees!

Here will unfold the incredible plot
Of how we discovered our Senior Mascot.
Our band of adventurers all did set sail
When all at once they were caught in a gale.
A wierd looking isle was where they ran aground.

They doubted a mascot would ever be found.
When out from the mists came an odd looking man,

Who said "My name's Prospero, I'll help if I can".

They told him their mission, he gave them a guide

Who was ugly and dull and who sulkily
sighed,

"Look, it's my job to help you in your quest,
But I want you to know that I'm tired and need rest.

So in order to make this as short as can be,
I'll show you right now what I think you should see."

He led them through swampland and into a wood

And said "Right up there. Don't you think he'll be good?"

Our brave explorers got it out of the tree,
Thanked their guide and their host and set sail for KP.

Our mascot was hairy and big and he ate.
He ate and he ate and did not use a plate.
When they came into port, he said he wanted to swing

Around the spire of the Empire State Building!

He's a very nice mascot, except that we've found

His hands stay so dirty since they hang on the ground.

He makes funny noises and beats on his chest,

But other than that, he's really the best.

Now that I've given you more than one clue,
I would like to introduce him to you.

We've named him after the guide - that strange man -

And so we present to you our Caliban!

Advertisers, Patrons, Sponsors, and Parents.

It has been an eventful year. There's something special that happens to a Senior; it will eventually happen to all of you. It's the ecstatic relief of Senior Slump. It's the feeling of nostalgia that seeps in and makes the Seniors realize that each event is her last at Kent Place. This is it, girls: you've made the most of it. The Seniors say goodbye to a great experience and wish good luck to those who follow.

Kim Scott wraps up the year with a French Club celebration.

GOODBYE AND GOOD LUCK. CLASS OF '88

Cargoes Bids Goodbye

Believe it or not, we made it. No one could help that little sigh of relief when the final deadline was finished and in the mail. We weren't sure whether to believe last year's tales of weekend long sessions and struggles to get first the right pictures and just the right layouts until we made it ourselves.

Mrs. McPherson of course deserves the most credit for this yearbook. Not only did she bake the most delicious cookies and cakes, but she was always there to help and to nudge us along. Through computer and printer failures and desperately awaited pictures that turned out blank, she kept our enthusiasm up.

We started the year by deciding to make this yearbook an original, up-to-date momento of 1986-1987. With the help of fashion magazines, a stress-test card, and an unending sense of humor and ability to laugh at ourselves, we did it.

Amanda MacKenzie and Gail Carpenter enjoy (?) just another manic Sunday.

COLOPHON

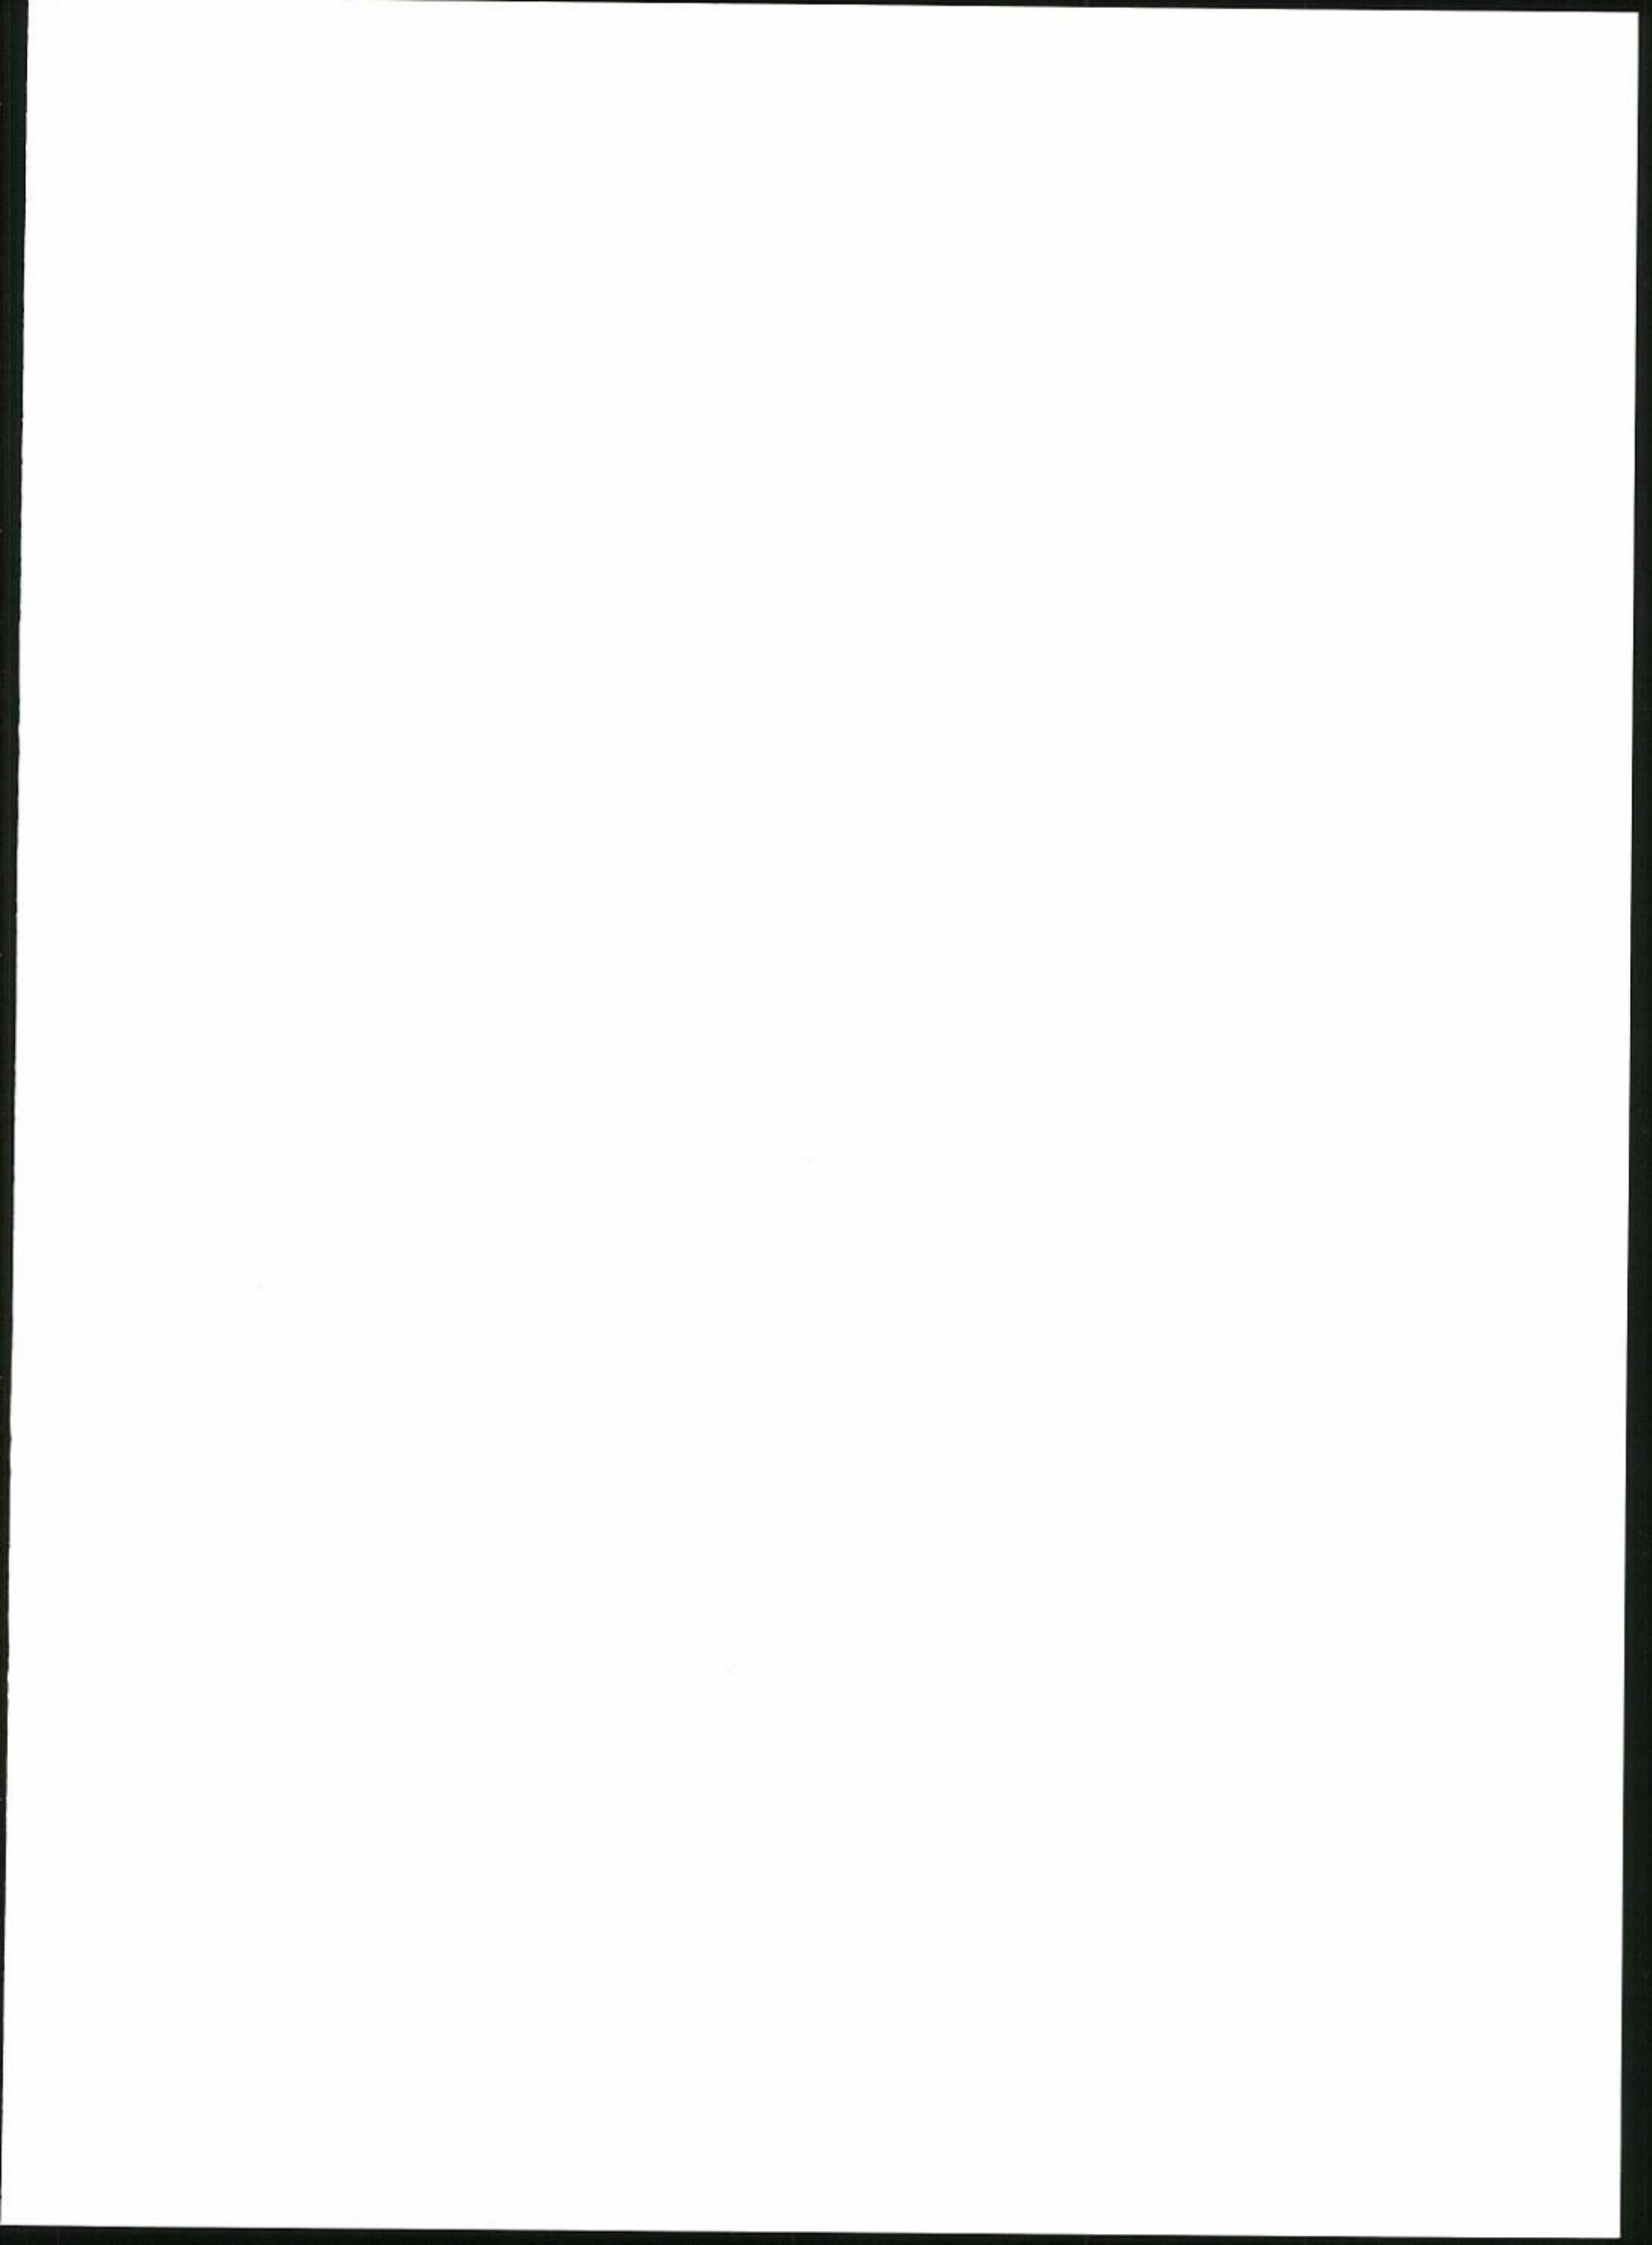

Jostens Printing and Publishing Division of 401 Science Park Road, State College, Pennsylvania 16801 printed the book. The cover is a custom silkscreen school-designed on 120 point grey binder board with green application. The end sheets are printed with black tempo ink on light beige transi-colored paper stock. The 1987 Cargoes in printed in 80 pound matte paper in 8 and 10 point Times Roman type. Headlines used were Times Roman bold, italic and Helvetica Bold as well as special art large initials.

HANNATH-

What is there that I can say. I LOVE YOU. WE'LL ALL BE TOGETHER
WE'LL DANCE AND SING UNDER THE MOON AND STARS - ON THE DEWEY GRASS
IN THE FOREST UNDER A SILVER BARKED AND GREEN LEAVED EL AND THE SCENT OF THE FLOWERS WILL FLOAT IN THE AIR WITH OUR LAUGHTER. GOOD LUCK ALWAYS - AND HAPPINESS FOREVER.

HAVE 'FAITH MY LOVE'

I LOVE YOU

LOVE JOE
